SUMMARY.

The Shakespeare Festival was opened brilliantly at Stratford-on-Avon on Thursday.

A feature of the celebration was the grouping of the national and colonial flags around a six-yard Union Jack, the gift of King Edward.

The "Times" special correspondent at Manchester confidently forecasts the defeat of Mr. Winston Churchill, president of the Board of Trade.

The Dewsbury election has resulted in the return of Mr. Runciman, president of the Board of Education.

Russia, Germany, Sweden, and Denmark have signed a convention for the preservation of the status quo in the Baltic.

The North Sea agreement between Great Britain and Germany has been signed in Berlin.

More bodies of so-called Afghans, numbering several thousands, have joined the Mohmands.

The Ameer's authority has not been asserted, and the mullahs' influence is growing rapidly.

The mobilisation of British troops has been ordered.

The general opinion in Northern India is that the policy of withdrawal pursued in the case of the Zakka Khels is largely responsible for the present situation.

Some of the frontier tribes imagine that Great Britain is afraid of offending the Ameer.

The London petition to be presented to the House of Commons against the Licensing Bill, is 4½ miles long, and contains 517,000 signatures.

Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael, the newly-appointed Governor of Victoria, will sail for Melbourne by the R.M.S. Macedonia.

The United States Senate has ratified the general arbitration treaties with Great Britain and Spain.

The Natal Government is providing for the special representation of natives in the Legislative Council.

Robert Caldwell, who was a witness in the Druce case, has been pronounced a mental and physical wreck.

It is improbable that he will ever be extradited to England to answer the charge of perjury preferred against him.

Sir Robert Hart, Inspector-General of Customs in China, after occupying that office for 45 years, has started for England on a year's leave of absence.

He was accorded a tremendous "send off" in Peking. It is not expected he will return to China.

The Supreme Court at Shanghai ordered the steamer Maori King to be forfeited to the King for false registration and for flying the British flag.

The defendants, Gainsburg and Company, a Russian firm, have appealed against the decision.

An anonymous donor has given Dr. Frodsham, Bishop of North Queensland, £5000 towards the endowment fund of his diocese.

President Cabrera, of Guatemala, upon whose life an attempt was recently made, had not been seen publicly more than twice or thrice since January.

He has informed the Powers that he has unearthed an extensive plot, and by his order 18 of the ringleaders have been executed.

The official list of injured persons in the Braybrook collision has now reached 282.

Messages of sympathy with the sufferers continue to flow in from all quarters.

The special board to inquire into the circumstances of the Murrurundi railway collision has been appointed.

The board consists of Mr. E. H. Wilshire (chairman), Mr. R. Dunbar (chief traffic manager of Queensland railways) and Professor Warren, assessors.

An amicable settlement has been arrived at on all points relating to the wharf strike agreement. No further trouble is expected.

The Industrial Disputes Act will come into force on a date to be proclaimed.

The machinery is now being prepared to permit of the Act being proclaimed in operation as from July 1.

In the Arbitration Court yesterday Judge Heydon was congratulated on his appointment to the office of President of the new Industrial Court.

Judge Heydon, in replying, urged the industrial classes not to condemn the new Act without trial.

The House of Representatives continued its consideration of the Senate's recommendations in the tariff yesterday.

The House agreed to the increased duties on blankets and hats, and refused reductions on carpets, curtains, and gloves.

The work of valuing properties transferred from the States to the Commonwealth is almost completed.

It has been suggested that a conference be held in June to adjust outstanding items.

Divided opinions were expressed at the Labour Congress as to the attitude to be taken by the unions towards the Industrial Disputes Act.

The Congress decided to recommend all unions to meet, discuss, and find out the true contents of the Act.

The Congress carried a motion that, where practicable, the abolition of night work in all trades and associations be advocated.

The continuous eight days' training of the troops was concluded yesterday in unfavourable weather.

Before the companies disbanded Lieutenant-Colonel Lyster said he was very well satisfied with the work performed.

The Submarine Mining Company of the Australian Engineers will remain in camp at Chowder Bay for another week.

Unemployment in Melbourne is more pronounced this year than it was in the corresponding period of 1907.

This is said to be largely due to the comparative failure of the harvest.

The Union Company's steamer Taviuni has gone ashore a mile south of Westport breakwater.

Efforts are being made to establish a steamship service between Eden and Melbourne.

The unemployed at Broken Hill number about 1000. The Mayor suggests the extension of tramways and road work to relieve the strain.

Advices received by Chinese merchants in Sydney state that the establishment of a Chinese National Bank, with a capital of £1,000,000, has been authorised.

The headquarters of the bank will be at Peking, and branches are to be opened at the principal commercial ports of the world.

The visiting bowlers and the New South Wales teams were entertained at a picnic at La Perouse yesterday.

The strike at the Corrimal pit is still unsettled.

Mr. Warden Harry Graves, a well-known stock and station agent for many years, died yesterday.

A flying survey of the Mount Horeb to Tumberumba railway has been made to within 10 miles of Tumberumba.

While the down mail-train was shunting in the yard at Junee yesterday morning two carriages, containing passengers, were derailed.

The passengers showed the utmost consternation, demanding to be let out, as they feared a repetition of the Braybrook disaster.

The inter-University lawn tennis tournament was concluded at Adelaide yesterday. R. M. Rolland (Melbourne) won the singles championship.

The annual sale of yearlings was brought to a close at Randwick yesterday.

During the three days 310 youngsters were sold for a total of 33,857 guineas, an average of 109 guineas.

There is practically no change in the wool market. The business transacted has been on a limited scale.

Barrier stocks further receded in value yesterday, consequent on the fall in the price of lead.

New South Wales copper stocks were rather quiet, with holders, however, quoting firmly.

To-day's forecast: Cloudy to showery on the coast and highlands; southerly winds, veering later to easterly; squally on parts of the coast.

FARMER AND COMPANY, LIMITED.

YE ENGLISHE DAMES AND DAINTY LACE WEAR.

"Our English dames," wrote Lord Bacon, "are much given to the wearing of costly laces, which they much esteem." And from Bacon's time and before dainty laces have held a high place in the affections of the fair. Even the family of that grim visaged Puritan, Cromwell, used "much costly lace for personal adornment," despite the "severe simplicity" of the Protector and his times. Seeing the splendid specimens obtainable in Lace Wear, one wonders not at the fascination it exercises. We ask you to inspect in our Lace Department the Display of Lace Goods for Evening and Day Wear. You will agree with us.

LACE FRONTS, SCARVES, ETC.

Smart FRONTS for COATS and SKIRTS, with Muslin backs, in Fine Net and Valenciennes Lace, with Medallions down the centre .... 8/6 each.
SHORT "V" FRONTS, in Paris or White Guipure, very Smart Wear .... 3/6 to 12/6 each.
LACE COLLARS for Inserting in Blouses, all New Shapes, in Paris or White 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, to 21/ each.
SHOULDER SCARVES, for Day or Evening Wear, superlatively stylish and graceful. In Black, real Needlerun Spanish Lace, soft bright finish .... 27/6, 33/6, 35/, to 80/ each.
Also in Cream, similar style, Spanish Lace .... 25/ to £5/5/ each.

DISPLAYED IN OUR LACE SECTION.
We are also showing some very handsome White and Silver Sequin Scarves 15/6, 21/, 25/, 27/6, and 35/.

See Our Range of Novelties in Lace Kimonos, Silk Sashes with Brocaded Ends, Dainty American Linen Stocks, Silk Bows, Cravats, etc., including the new Boston Cravat, at 3/6 each, in Checks or Plain Colours.

CHILDREN'S SMART ¾ HOSE.

These are in Cashmere, with turnover tops, in the following Clans:—Stuart, 42nd, M'Duff, Gordon, Argyle, and M'Kenzie.
Length of feet, 7 inches ...... 4/ per pair.
Length of feet, 7½ inches ...... 4/3 per pair.
Length of feet, 8 inches ...... 4/6 per pair.
Length of feet, 8½ inches ...... 4/9 per pair.

BEAUTIFY YOUR BUTTER.

A CURIOUS AND CUNNING CURLER.

By means of this Curler, which is a handy little instrument, one pound of butter can be curled ready for table use in three minutes, and it is so simple that a child can use it. PRICE, 2/ EACH.
A lady expert will be in attendance in our George-street Shop on Monday and following days from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. to demonstrate the possibilities of the Curler.
CALL AND SEE THIS CURIOUS CURLER.

SPECIAL VALUE FURS.

THE NEW STYLE
OVERCOAT.
Our tailors have made up Ready-for-Service a large number of these new Combination Overcoats.
The style is identical with that worn in London to-day.
The wide skirt makes it very stylish. It is loose fitting—most comfortable, and is warm enough for our winter, and sufficiently rainproof to withstand a heavy shower.
We have advertised our cheaper Overcoats. These are of superior quality and finish.
The materials are exclusive, and are in mid and dark grey, with overchecked designs, introducing reds and greens faintly, giving a handsome effect.
The sleeves and collars are fitted by hand, and the coats are perfect fitting.
PRICES, 45/ to 70/.
PEAPES AND CO., LTD.,
"MEN'S OUTFITTERS,"
309-311 George-street, Sydney.

THE RING PAPER CLIP IS A REAL CLIPPER.
The "Ring" is a round paper clip, with a double point, and we can heartily recommend it as the best clip in use. It has no projecting ends or sharp points to tear the paper; it never tangles; and holds the paper perfectly flat on both sides.
Such a clip is of inestimable benefit to a busy man who handles documents.
We sell them at 6d per 100, or 4s 3d per 1000; if posted the cost is 8d per 100, and 6s per 1000.
Other clips of popular pattern that we stock are the Uni, Daisy, and Octo, all of which sell at the same price as the Ring clip.
We can supply anything in the way of Stationery or Printing at very moderate rates. And you can rely on getting good quality every time.

FRIENDS OF THE SEASON.
It is a pleasant theme that of BLANKETS. It is PART of our BUSINESS to BUY to SELL, and as we can BUY on MORE ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS than OTHERS, we can CERTAINLY SELL CHEAPER than THEY. We buy our BLANKETS direct from the MAKERS. We buy BLANKETS in LARGER QUANTITIES than any OTHER STORE, and we PAY CASH DOWN for all the BLANKETS we BUY. As a NATURAL COROLLARY, every BLANKET we OFFER at THE NEW PALACE EMPORIUM
is presented in its most ATTRACTIVE FORM by reason of the economy there is in ANTHONY HORDERNS' FAMOUS LOW PRICES, rendered possible only by our policy of SPOT CASH TRADING. BLANKETS certainly come FIRST in the CATEGORY of WINTER WANTS; indeed, they are the FIRST THING the average HOUSEKEEPER thinks of when WINTER is HANDY. The COMFORT of GOOD SOUND BLANKETS is past DESCRIPTION; the MISERY caused by their ABSENCE is likewise a CONDITION which WORDS FAIL to PORTRAY. The BLANKET SECTION of THE NEW PALACE EMPORIUM
is now PARTICULARLY ATTRACTIVE. We show BLANKETS both for CAMPING in and CAMPING out, FRIENDS of the FAMILY and FRIENDS of the BUSHMEN, and
ANTHONY HORDERNS' FAMOUS LOW PRICES,
MAKE them FRIENDS INDEED.

KUBELIK. KUBELIK.
KUBELIK. KUBELIK.

After several years of anxious anticipation, music lovers of the Commonwealth now hear, with complete satisfaction, that KUBELIK, the VIOLINIST OF VERITABLE SUPREMACY, has at last been induced to pay a brief visit to Australia.

Rumours of his prowess, and records of his mighty performances, have but whetted the musical appetite, and it is only necessary to intimate to the Australian public—always appreciative of the greatest in Art—to rest assured that KUBELIK'S short tour through this country will be A BRILLIANT AND MEMORABLE TRIUMPH.

TOWN HALL, TUESDAY, MAY 19.
TOWN HALL, THURSDAY, MAY 21.
TOWN HALL, SATURDAY, MAY 23.

KUBELIK is now concluding in the United States a tour that, from its very inception to yesterday's cable from Vancouver, has been a history of glorious and sustained success. The approaching visit to Australia is his first to this part of the world, and it is certainly a matter for congratulation that the GREAT MASTER OF THE VIOLIN will be heard fresh from his old-world triumphs, and in the very beginning of his matured career.

STECK.

If there is no Piano in your home now you are depriving yourself of a good deal of happiness in life that you might just as well have. If you doubt this, ask the opinion of any intelligent person whose advice you value.

Do you know you can come here and secure any instrument in our stock at once, arranging to pay for it on exceptionally easy terms of payment, in almost every instance as low as five pounds when taken, and a very small amount monthly.

Why shouldn't you come to us immediately and make a selection? At all events, why not come now and inspect the STECK Pianos?

EASILY FIRST
HERCULES OIL ENGINES.
They are FIRST in the way they are put together, taking very little space in the boat. They are FIRST in reliability, never breaking down, and often at the crucial moment saving the lives of all on board, as in the case of the Ringdove, reported in the "Herald" of May 24th last year. They are FIRST in easy and effective handling, as all who use them will testify.
Our arrangements with the leading boatbuilders are such that we can quote for the complete Launch.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued.

In the square facing the hotel the reverbere was lit and flung a yellow beam into the dim room. It looked almost orange against the sombre rows of chestnut-trees. From turquoise and primrose and interweaving chrysoprase-green, the sky was setting into the misty blue of evening. There was little noise outside; the occasional rumble of a cart, the tramp of labourers returning homeward, now and again voluble French voices, filling the night and passing on.

Wroth began in the same tired accents that had characterised his speech all through. Now and again only his voice rang out passionately. Spiridion set himself to listen, scarce interrupting by a word, his hands loosely clasped between his knees, his head bent. His attitude, for a while, was somewhat like that of the priest in the confessional, prepared for a tale of conventional error and folly. But very soon he straightened himself and turned to the speaker, amazed, stirred to sympathy, almost to enthusiasm.

Not only was the life that Worth laid bare to his listener that of a rare, of an audacious soul, deeply feeling and greatly aspiring, but the young man had the gift of expression. His words were simple mostly; but he had pauses and reserves, sudden outbursts, that illumined as with a flash of genius. Spiridion saw the solitary, unloved, misunderstood child and his fatherly heart bled for him. He was carried along by the turmoil of a wild youth, perpetually flung back from its highest flights; beheld that youth set for manhood under lurid skies charged with cloud, fired by lightning; saw the promising existence doomed, it seemed, to destruction, doomed to go down in the storm, in the darkness, when, like a star, Juliana shone out upon him.

"She came to me," said Wroth in his low, veiled tones, "out of the night. We were at revels in my old abbey, blasphemous revels—a dozen of those good friends of mine you have just heard about, masquerading it in monks' robes, and I as the prior—she never told you? It is like her to be silent; I loved her first for her wonderful silence. She came in upon us. When I saw her face ——"

Then he fell himself upon one of those pauses more eloquent than speech. Spiridion nodded dreamily. He remembered how the child Juliana had come into his own desolation. Over the tempest of this reckless young life. . . and in the dead melancholy dusk of his own bereft existence, the same star.

"When we looked upon each other, when her eyes met mine, I knew I loved her," went on Wroth at last. "I had an hour—an hour with her alone, in the silent ruined church." Once again came the high break of passion into words and voice: "I never even touched her hand. She told me she was not free. But she gave herself to me then, and she knows it, as I to her—soul to soul." He faltered on that. Spiridion could find no words; he made a gesture as if to touch in sympathy the young passionate hand that beat the table, and then drew back before a depth of feeling that forbade comradeship. Suddenly the hand fell still. "That was a year ago. She failed me." This was spoken calmly—with a dead weariness.

"Poor boy," said Spiridion to himself; "how he has suffered."

"She became free, she knew where to find me. From the instant of the drawing of that last breath that set her free, straight she should have come to me. At least, she should have sent me a message—warned me. She waited her mourning months—her conventional mourning months. Oh, she came, she was still in time; she came; it was to fail me again. She saw me on the edge of the abyss—she would not put out her hand to save me."

The lines about his face grew ever more bitter as he spoke. Spiridion's gentle nature was flooded with compassion.

"The abyss—my poor friend?" he hazarded. "Marriage with another woman?" He thought he understood; some old entanglement with another woman. And Juliana's pride, he knew her pride—no, she would not have spoken! "But, it was you who failed then," he cried, with quick revulsion of feeling. His Juliana, before the year of widowhood out, coming to seek her lover—her lover of an hour, whose hand she had never even touched (la singulière histoire!), and to find him pledged to another woman!

Wroth fixed him with a haggard look.

"I!" he cried. Storm broke loose in him. A torrent of words. In language of flame he told the story of his extraordinary, his unholy pact; the devilish tempting by his lawyer; his mad freak, the scene in the tavern-room, his choice, the black figure, the veiled one who was Juliana—Juliana who stood and watched him go to his doom and never stretched her hand to save him!

La Roche-Amand sat breathless.

"She brought herself to that," he exclaimed at last; "to stand in that room, with those creatures, for you to choose her! . . . Eh, comment done, how is it you do not understand, you who loved her? She could do that much; she could do no more. What, unveil herself, speak a word in such a place, touch you, you, who could not feel her presence? But, oh, unhappy one, and you chose that other——"

Wroth stared again; then gave one long sigh and leant his forehead on his hand. Had he wept, or even groaned, it would not have gone to Spiridion's heart so keenly. The old man rose from his seat and paced the room in agitation, broken phrases escaping him. "These poor children! My poor children! Mon Dieu! what a story, what mismanagement! If I had but known you; if she had but come to me! She never came to me—eh, but they love each other, these poor children!" He tapped his forehead, halted by the other's chair. "Listen, milord——"

"I'll never give her up," said Wroth lifting his eyes. "If she goes to the end of the world I'll go after her. She belongs to me. No one else shall ever have her."

"Tut, tut!" said Spiridion irritably. "That's not the question just now, young madman. What we have to do is to find some way out of the maze—that marriage of yours, why, even in my Church it could be put aside! With you Protestants and your divorce, why, sir——"

Wroth stretched forward and turned over the letter that lay with the big seal uppermost on the table.

"I have just written to the man who inveigled me into this pretty contract, to the worthy family lawyer . . . who acted for the best, who did—what was it he called it? —some rather equivocal things for my sake, for the sake of the moneybags, to save me from ruin. "You see," continued Wroth, raising a haggard look, "I sold myself; I sold my soul for money. You could not expect a lawyer to think of a client's soul, I suppose." He was shaken by an acrid laugh; then, with a gesture of utter weariness, flung his arm across the table and dropped his head upon it.

"Yes, yes, my young friend," said Spiridion. He understood little enough of the intricacies of the legal situation; but the facts were patent enough; and so were the boy's sincerity and misery. "You say you have written to your lawyer?"

"That he must break the marriage—set me free," replied the other dully. "That he must move heaven and earth—hell, if he likes—and set me free. I'd be a beggar—literally; worse than a beggar.

"Eh, mon Dieu!" interrupted Spiridion eagerly.

"Oh, I know that would not matter; I know now that nothing matters except her and me. But he cannot do it, Minchin cannot do it, not without ruining himself . . . . and I can't ruin him, Count, not even for her."

He lifted his head to fix his friend with a hopeless glance. Spiridion looked perplexedly down at him; then his face cleared.

"At least you have written; that was the right thing. If you fail——"

"I'll never give her up," said Wroth.

The quiet way in which he said it was more expressive of determination than all his former passion. La Roche-Amand stood awhile in silence. It was all very wrong; most reprehensible, no doubt. This rash young man had but paid the penalty of recklessness in his money entanglements. The mad marriage was a desecration of all that should be held sacred. The pursuit of Juliana afterwards was morally indefensible. Yet his sympathies were flowing out to the culprit, unchecked by facts.

"With my whole heart I wish you good," he cried at last.

"Thank you," said Wroth.

He rose from his seat to hand his guest his hat and cane. Their hands met. Spiridion had come thirsting for blood; as he took his departure he was longing to take the sinner to his heart, as a father his son.

"I shall be thinking very seriously this night about it all. I shall inform myself. I shall consider. . . ."

As he took his homeward way through the gloom of the woods he was haunted by the echo of Wroth's exhausted voice, by his pallid face and shadowed eyes. Juliana, wheeling round upon him, superb in anger, had shown no such symptoms of distress. Juliana, who had stood aside and watched her lover doom himself. Strange—strange! "Women can be very hard sometimes," thought Spiridion the old man, even as Wroth the young, "aye, and good women the hardest of all!"

On the subsequent morning Wroth was awakened by his valet, who brought him a letter. It was early; the birds were clamouring in the chestnut trees, and the sunshine was radiant, but the world still cold. Spiridion had written, evidently in great perturbation:—

"Mon jeune ami, there is no help for it. Nothing will serve Juliana but she must [illegible] this very day. It is, perhaps, best so. Frankly the situation is impossible. Lady Wroth is in my house, and declares herself too ill to leave. I know not how it may be; I cannot turn her out by force. Separation between you and Juliana is no doubt demanded, for the present, by the most elementary discretion and delicacy. Yet I am loth to think of the pain it will give you. I shall escort her, I shall remain with her. I shall be expect news from you. Be reasonable, mon enfant, be patient, be prudent. We leave immediately: she does not wish to see you before her departure."

Wroth read the letter twice. His brow remained clear. He called for ink and paper, penned a line, and, having folded and sealed it with a wafer, bade his servant convey the missive instantly to the chateau.

What he had written was short and to the point:—

"Wherever she goes, whatever happens, I follow."—Wroth.

Peggie lay in the great bed, in the great bed chamber, the oddest presence in such a haunt of reserved and delicate memories. The impudent prettiness of her face looked out between the curtains of faded mauve brocade, which had shaded two generations of severely aristocratic dowagers. She was harboured in the appartement de la comtesse-mere, as was still known that wing, solemnly consecrated in the days of Mon-Repos's prosperous life, to worthy and honoured age.

On the back of the prie-Dieu her big hat hung rakishly, its emerald plume startling the dim violets, the fainting lilacs of panel and hangings. Her crude scent overpowered the lurking fragrance of lavender. A gaping trunk disgorged billows of tawdry finery. Peggie liked high colour in everything. A pair of scarlet gold-embroidered sandals stood at pert angles, close to the aggressive sheen of the orange-satin morning robe, which made a note of discordancy on the "dying roses" of the embroidered quilt. The spirit of the room—that of the grande dame, the old lady, the devote—seemed to be shrinking, amazed, shocked, reprobating, from this garish occupant.

Peggie herself was not much better pleased—a dingy old place, a gloomy old bed. . . . She wanted to be up and doing, to be out in the sunshine, making mischief, living her life as instinct prompted, and here she was—stuck! She had a fine appetite; and under Madame Thomas's gimlet black eyes, she had had to check herself in the midst of her crusty roll to keep up those airs of illness which alone justified her presence in this coign of vantage.

Like those of most such intriguers, Peggie's plots were all for her immediate gratification; the next step was always a matter of perplexity, to be solved by impulse.

NOTES.

The Leichhardt Brotherhood Club's tourney, the secretary advises, was finished a few days ago. Details are not yet to hand. A meeting of the tourney committee will be held to examine the scores, and declare the winners of the prizes, of which more later on.

The Glebe Club Easter tourney is progressing. Mr. E. Grant at present stands well for the first prize. Mr. W. A. Cobbin also holds a good position, and may come out on top.

Among the Sydney Club players scratch matches for practice are the order of the day. Several fine games were played between Messrs. Mills and J. Lees during the week. The endings of some were critical, and were played in a masterly manner.

Late reports to hand of the fight for the London championship show the following points:—Jordan, 19½; Atwell, 12½; Sallaway, 11; Kaiser, 10; Birkinshaw, 9½; Vink, 8½; Lyons, 8½; Grant, 7½; Young, 5; Scott, 3½.

A new star has appeared in the American checker firmament in the person of Mr. Joseph Drouillard, the champion of the Western States, who is out with a challenge to any player in the country for 500 dollars a side.

RESERVED RAILWAY CARRIAGES

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I would like, through the medium of your valuable columns, to refer to the above subject. In the train Sydney to Mount Victoria and return, a certain number of reserved carriages are allowed to parties supposed to number eight persons. I would like to say that I consider this privilege is altogether overdone and abused. Too many carriages are now taken up in this manner, to the great annoyance and inconvenience of the majority of the travelling public. As the flurried passenger hurries along the platform on the lookout for a vacant seat, the word "reserved" meets his or her eye nearly everywhere. The best carriages with lavatories are reserved. If any passenger wishes superior accommodation, I say let him pay extra for it. I feel sure that an extra charge would obviate this evil. I am, etc.,

Katoomba, April 8. HENRY HICKS.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

BRITISH SOCIALISM.

In "British Socialism" (Smith, Elder), Mr. J. Ellis Barker gives the fullest examination of the movement that has yet appeared. The value of the book lies not so much in Mr. Barker's criticism as in his marshalling of the evidence as to what socialism really is as it exists to-day. He quotes four or five hundred books and pamphlets, and he has evidently spared no pains to make his present-ment complete. He has thus produced an interesting and valuable book. We find 24 references to authorities on the first two and a half pages of the book—an indication of the thoroughness with which the author's method has been applied. It is the most useful method at the present moment. Most writers have treated socialism as an abstract theory rather than as a business proposition, and what we really want to know is what its practical proposals are worth. Mr. Barker estimates that a bibliography of socialism would include at least 30,000 volumes, and he has given his attention mainly to the propaganda literature as it is found in Great Britain. Of course, this is not a very fair way of getting to the root of what socialism stands for—any more than it would be a fair way to judge a Parliamentary party from its election placards. For the propaganda everything is crude, forced, robbed of its saving clauses. It must be so. To succeed socialism must be presented to the masses as a sort of popular religion—an appeal to emotion with the doctrinal difficulties kept carefully in the background. Should we judge the philosophy of Christianity from the methods of the revivalist? And this, of course, implies a weakness in Mr. Barker's treatment. Nevertheless, a dynamic belief is dynamic by virtue of its crudity no less than by virtue of its reasoned strength. It is well to take account of the crudity; it is not well to use it to inflame resentment. Space does not permit us to follow consecutively the mass of detail in this volume. The most we can do is to pick a few items at random. The socialist pamphlets try to make out that only one-third of the income of Great Britain goes to the workers, the inference being that the other two-thirds go to the capitalist class. Mr. Barker contests this, but he seems inclined to accept the following rough estimate:—

Income of 33,000,000 workers	£650,000,000
Income of 10,000,000 middle class	£475,000,000
Income of 1,000,000 rich	£600,000,000

If equality of distribution is the goal even these figures are not very satisfactory to the worker. Mr. Barker reviews the fundamental doctrines of socialism with which everyone is now familiar, and points out such fallacies as he can find. A chapter on Trades Unionism and socialism is very interesting, inasmuch as the British unionist has hardly begun to move toward the new social gospel, which looks to find its converts among the half-starved proletariat—there is a half-starved proletariat. According to Mr. Barker's summing up, socialism cannot co-exist with Imperialism, and it is likely to be the ruin of foreign policy. As to the growth of socialism as a factor in practical politics some interesting figures are quoted. In 1867 there were 30,000 socialist voters in Germany. In 1907 there were 3,258,968—and but for special election factors there would have been nearer four millions. In France in 1887 there were 47,000 socialist voters: in 1906 there were 896,000. The Labour vote cast in Great Britain in 1906 was 335,000, which gave thirty Labour members, twenty of them out and out socialists, and it appears from other figures that there are at least a million socialists of one brand or another in that country. Moreover, the doctrine has begun to spread among the two million trades unionists, and perhaps their "stand-off" attitude cannot be relied on to continue. It is significant that since 1893 the Independent Labour party has been able to spend over a quarter of a million sterling on propaganda. More than a million copies of some socialist books have been sold. Such a movement cannot be ignored, and its mistakes need more convincing treatment than the author seems able to give. By way of palliatives he urges us "to strengthen the lower middle classes by well-devised legislation," since these are the most effective barrier against socialism. But Mr. Barker thinks that all the want and misery which are the food of socialist agitation will disappear at once—if only the country can be converted to Protection! This is perhaps sufficient comment on his ability to discuss a complex problem.

NEW WORLDS FOR OLD.

The limitations of Mr. H. G. Wells become evident in "New Worlds for Old" (Constable). This book is his confession of faith as a socialist. Mr. Wells is a step-by-step socialist, anxious to retain as much private property and conventional morality as possible. There was a moment when Mr. Wells might have invented a socialism founded upon science, and he, of all men, ought to have seen through to the fundamental fallacy of socialism. That fallacy lies in the supposition that social evils can be remedied by more or less completely equalising the distribution of wealth. In reality this is quite a secondary factor in social well-being. Of itself, it implies little progress. The figures in the above paragraph show that the "workers" and the "rich" each receive about a third of the national income. If the million rich were completely dispossessed this, therefore, would double the income of each of the 33,000,000 workers. He would breed more rapidly; the misguided socialist philanthropy on which Mr. Wells here insists would prevent his weaklings dying off. In one or two generations at the most the number of "workers" would be doubled, and their individual incomes reduced to what they are now. It is no use equalising the distribution of total wealth unless you limit the numbers who are to share in it. Mr. Wells is frightened to face a dilemma for which his biological training must have prepared him. He has all the scorn of a bourgeois for scientific eugenics—and hence he prepares failure for his socialism at the start. And at the end he has contributed nothing to the socialist propaganda that was not there before. But he succeeds in showing that virulent denunciation is not the right treatment for the socialist. Socialism, in the first place, is a destructive criticism of society as it stands. Of course, there is much to criticise, and it is well that our eyes should be wide open to it. In the second place, it is an attempt to construct a more highly organised, and therefore more efficient, state. To return to Mr. Wells. He believes in meliorism—that is to say, he thinks that society, left to itself, is always getting a little better, and he looks on socialism as a way of consciously hastening this process. Here he makes his first wrong assumption. Evolution does not imply progress toward perfection; it only implies progress toward correspondence with one's environment—whatever, good or bad, that may happen to be. We are beginning to think we can alter the environment; as a rule we can only make superficial changes in it. Mr. Wells then with some skill makes an appeal to sentiment. He bids us hearken to the cry of the little children. He paints a disgusting, and unfortunately true, picture of the child-life among the lower strata of British workers—filthy, diseased, unfed, hardly clad. And he stultifies his argument by surrendering to conventional morality, assuming that those things must be, and proposing to make this debris of humanity a charge upon the State—with the inevitable result we have pointed out above. In his criticism of private ownership Mr. Wells is on rather firmer ground. He points out rightly that socialism does not mean communism or collectivism. It does not permit private ownership to exploit public services, or the means of production. It does permit, in Mr. Wells' scheme, individual possessions to any reasonable extent. He shows that private ownership unchecked is responsible for a good many of the secondary evils of society, and he insists that it is only a phase in social development. It was considerably limited, for instance, so recently as in feudal times in England. After stating the general case for socialism on orthodox lines, Mr. Wells proceeds to answer various objections. Socialism, he now tells us, would not destroy "the home"—tells us rather disingenuously, when we remember how small a part "the home" plays in many of Mr. Wells' utopias. Incidental to his argument that his socialism would not abolish all property, he makes rather a strong point by showing how the savings of the small man are swallowed up and lost by financial operations under the present regime. "Simple people believe the great financiers win and lose money to each other. They are not such fools. They use the public, and the public goes on being used, as a perpetual source of freshly accumulated wealth." He proceeds to show how the middle-class man, the small shopkeeper for instance, is being ground out of existence between the upper and the nether millstone. He is rather disingenuous, again, in his discussion of the relationship between socialism and religion. He is painfully anxious to appease the nonconformists—though his previous books show that he knows very well how destructive to religion a socialism bending all its energy in the first place to education would be. Mr. Wells, indeed, is curiously unable to conceal the weak points in his argument. There are many of them, but the book, for all that, is one for all intelligent people to read and think about.

SOME SHELLEY LETTERS.

Bertram Dobell publishes for the first time an interesting collection of letters from Shelley to Elizabeth Hitchiner. These letters present us with the prologue to the drama of Shelley's life. They show us what the poet was in his youth. Professor Dowden has made some use of the material in his "Life of Shelley." It tells a strange story, a peculiar episode in the poet's search for the ideal. The acquaintance with Miss Hitchiner began in 1811. Shelley was staying with his uncle at Cuckfield, and the lady was a schoolmistress in a neighbouring town. Her father, formerly a smuggler, had become the keeper of a public-house. When she met Shelley she was 29, very thin, and somewhat tall; and she seems to have been a woman of more than average ability. Shelley was not yet 19, entirely a boy in knowledge of the world. He protests at the beginning of the correspondence that reason is to be his guiding star! A curious mistake that was for a poet who beyond all others was to live in a world of imagination. It is hardly necessary to say that these letters have nothing in common with modern correspondence. They remind one rather of the once fashionable epistolary novels. Shelley treated Miss Hitchiner as his goddess for twelve months. He wrote a great deal in that time. The lady came to live with the Shelleys (he was married), and remained for five months. Then he was disillusioned, and she left. At 40 she was still unmarried, and had published a poem. Subsequently she married an officer in the Austrian service. Before leaving England she left these letters with a solicitor and never reclaimed them. They were transcribed in 1896 by a Mr. Wise, who privately printed thirty copies of them in 1909. This is the basis of the present edition, which is thus a book of considerable literary interest. (Sydney Book Club.)

THE IMPORTUNATE NOVELIST.

In "The Grain Carriers" (Blackwood) Edward Noble writes a fierce denunciation of the commercial greed which grinds down the merchant service, makes life afloat a hell, and sends many a jerry-built steel carrier to the bottom. The story is concerned with two grain ships (sailing), and their voyage from San Francisco to Liverpool. One of them never gets there. In the one we have the good old type of captain in a rotten overloaded ship. In spite of careful nursing she founders. The captain's wife dies of exposure in the boats, and he himself does not survive to reach England. There is a pathetic little love story that links the two ships, for the captain's daughter is saved. The other ship is not quite so unseaworthy, but she has a Dutch captain, a bullying Yankee mate, and a shanghaied crew. Presently there is revolt and mutiny. The "young gentlemen" who are supposed to be learning their profession, but who have had to do all the work, seize the ship, and navigate her home, keeping touch with the sister ship, whose captain and captain's daughter, they love. This material is very strongly worked up, though, of course, the picture is rather over emphasised.

Mr. Rowlandson (N.S.W. Bookstall Co.) forwards a copy of Gallizier's "Sorceress of Rome." This is sound historical fiction of the type which helps to save the American novel from contempt. The canvas is large and full of detail. The treatment perhaps is a little lacking in breadth, and the book consequently needs leisure reading. But the tenth century is a fascinating and much neglected period, and Mr. Gallizier has done well to attempt a faithful picture of it. If the picture looks rather melodramatic we must remember that life was then melodrama; the poison cup, the mystic of the catacombs, the phantom at the shrine, the wanton revels in the grottos of Egeria, the incantation and the love potion—all these are real enough if we can place ourselves in the imaginative milieu. A book to read.

In "The Primadonna" (Macmillan) Mr. Marion Crawford gives the world a sequel to "Soprano." All who have read the one will want to read the other. Margaret Donne herself is not spoilt by success, but though the action centres about her the interest lies chiefly in the others, particularly in Van Torp, the Nickel Tyrant, and in the Greek Logotheti, who, in the end, marries Margaret. The story is held together by an eminently judicious murder in a New York theatre—a murder of which Van Torp is accused. Van Torp is a strong and subtle creation, and he has really dramatic moments. As he had an undeniable alibi all the time his neglect to use it is a little artificial. But the discomfiture of the detectives who come to arrest him at Lord Creedmore's is an excellent bit of comedy. Mr. Crawford's story is told with supreme skill and surprising freshness.

Mr. James B. Connolly has already made a name for himself by his deft handling of the men who go down to the sea in ships. In "The Crested Wave" (Duckworth) he gives us a collection of short and vivid sketches which are well worth reading. The author knows his Newfoundland fisheries, and uses their rugged simplicity and rough-hewn tragedy to good purpose.

SHORTER NOTICES.

Messrs. Gay and Bird are issuing a dainty little series of booklets under the general title "Simple Truths Series," and the general editorship of R. D. Stocker. One is a collection of "Oriental Gems" from the sacred books of the East; another is a selection of extracts from H. A. J. Munro's prose version of the "De Rerum Natura" of Lucretius. The idea seems to be well carried out. Messrs. Bell forward the volume on Grieg in their attractive little set devoted to short appreciations of musicians. Marlborough and Co. forward the volume on "Dutch" in their exceeding useful "self-taught" series of introductions to modern languages. These manuals are excellently arranged, and would form a serviceable addition to formal grammars.

A. C. Fifield forwards a set of Fabian socialist booklets. These issues constitute a revised and excellent edition of some of the most famous Fabian tracts. Each booklet contains nearly a hundred pages, and is excellently got up. Those who wish for an academic presentment of socialism will get it in brief form nowhere better than here. The first volume deals with the relationship between socialism and religion, the second with that between it and rural industry; the third contains Sidney Webb's essay on the difficulties of individualism, Bernard Shaw's "Impossibilities of Anarchism," and papers by Sydney Ball and Sir Oliver Lodge; while the fourth outlines the basis and policy of socialism. It is a sad pleasure to meet those old friends in new clothes.

It seems rather late in the day to issue an "abridged official" account of the Second Afghan War, 1878-1880. Such an account, however, is now produced by the Intelligence Branch, Army Headquarters, India, and published by John Murray. The book was originally compiled by the late Major-General Sir Charles MacGregor, who served through the campaign. He collected a large quantity of notes and documents, and handed them over in 1885 to Captain Oliver, who threw them into a connected form. It was, however, decided to treat it as a secret work. Since then it has been revised, and the question of publication has been considered from time to time. Now, at last, publication is considered "safe." The work has been very fully illustrated with maps and plans, and the narrative is an important contribution to history, although rather trying to the patience of the general reader.

THE "SYDNEY MORNING HERALD'S" THIRTEENTH INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM TOURNEY.

REPORT OF THE JUDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—You have forwarded me 78 entries for the above tourney; others have been sent in, but too late for this year's competition, and these, I presume, you will reserve for your next tourney.

Of the 78 entries, 20 have been withdrawn or are disqualified for unsoundness; and I have to add that some of these found wanting in the latter respect embody very pretty ideas which, with a little more care, would have yielded excellent specimens of the two-move genus. Several of these unfortunates were not published in your columns. Fifty-eight problems remain for consideration, and 23 of these I must dismiss as being more easy and obvious than candidates for tourney honours should be. Of the other 35 entries I am obliged to pass over 23 more with a general commendation, very fair specimens, all deserving praise, but hardly in the running for either prizes or honourable mentions. These 23, thus placed in the second rank, are "mottoed" as follows:—"Occupy," "Queen Bess," "Either Knight," "Perplexity," "Gobo," "Still Waters," "Asjebliet Welbedankt," "Marie," "My Sweetheart," "Finem Respice," "Diamond," "Dark Horses," "King of Freaks," "Dream Faces II.," "Nelson," "Once More," "Patience," "Acacia," "Koenig," "Pilgrim's Progress," "Reliance," "Harmony," and "Butaritari." These eliminations leave 12 problems which call for more detailed criticism, and with them I now proceed to deal.

No. 994, "Velvet Glove."—The only faults I have to find with this composition are that the Black King is a fixture, and that the position is rather crowded. Otherwise this is a very fine problem indeed, embodying the idea of a key move which allows Black to give a double check. This "task" was first accomplished, I believe, by Mr. Heathcote about seven years ago, previous to which it was generally regarded as impossible. There are no less than four tempting tries, viz.: 1. QK3, 1. RKKt3, 1. RQ5 or K5, all neatly defeated. The mates are not remarkable for purity, but the author has cleverly avoided duals. An excellent composition, evidently the work of a master. A word of praise is also due to the motto, which exactly depicts the nature of the problem. Apropos of these "Task" problems, I should like to express the opinion that, in competitions of a general character, all such compositions must be judged on their merits as a whole, without special reference to the self-imposed "tasks."

1026, "Up to Date."—A pretty key, but not difficult, although it increases the liberty of the Black King. 1. KtKKt6 is a plausible try, but is met by 1. . . . PxP. There are no duals, and the White King assists in one of the mates. Five variations, all of them neat. A decidedly pleasing composition.

1028, "C'est trop d'Honneur."—The chief merit of this lies in the key, allowing Black to give a dis. ch. by 1. . . . KxKt. The necessity for the White Bishop going precisely to Kt6 is also ingeniously brought about. Still, it is rather a built-up composition, with only a few variations.

1032, "Ruse de Guerre."—The key is a direct threat, proposing 2. QQ mate. Position crowded and unnatural but free from duals. Only four variations and but one attractive mate, after 1. . . . KxKt dis. ch.

1033, "Triple Block."—Nice key move, threatening 2. KtQB8 mate. To avoid this, Black has four possible moves, and some of the resulting mates are pretty enough. A neatly constructed problem, but not at all difficult of solution.

1039, "Dream Faces (I.)."—The key threatens a dull mate by 2. QxR, which is a pity, since otherwise it gives two flight squares to the Black King, and also the Queen moves to where she can be taken. Some unimportant duals, but most of the variations are pretty and the mates nearly pure. A clever though not very difficult problem.

1052, "Under the Guns."—A quaint and ingenious piece of work. The key, though not hard to find out, permits of two dis. chs., with captures of a Rook by the Black Bishop. The result is agreeable, but unfortunately the solution is easy.

1058, "Twilight Memories."—A quiet waiting key of an unexpected kind, were it not subtly suggested by the counter check, 1. . . . BxKt. No duals and six variations. Some very neat mates, especially those following on moves of the Black Knight at K3. Notwithstanding the preponderance of White's strength, the economy of force is noticeable. A very neat composition.

1056, "S.M.H."—A pretty idea, but unfortunately very simple and obvious. The obstruction of the Black Knight (moving from Kt2 to Q3 or B4) is a noticeable point, inviting comparison with No. 1053. Variations many and clever.

1059, "Reprisal."—Another case of a clever key, leading to a double check of the White King. The task, however, is by no means so artistically performed as in the case of No. 994. Other points in this problem hardly call for notice.

1060, "On the Wing."—A fairly open position. The key, however, is a simple and obvious threat, and none of the mates causes much surprise.

I have no hesitation, Sir, in assigning the first place in this competition to the admirable problem "Velvet Glove." For the special prizes which you are good enough to offer I recommend equally "Twilight Memories" and "Up-to-Date," as I find it impossible to place either of these in front of the other. Honourable mentions are certainly due to "Dream Faces (I.)" and "Eden." Indeed, I am sorry that there are no more prizes to award, since both these compositions are deserving of special recognition. With congratulations, Sir,

I remain, etc.,

F. J. YOUNG.

On receipt of the judge's report we opened the sealed envelopes in the presence of Mr. A. W. Britton, the well-known interstate player, and found the successful competitors to be:—

First prize: (No. 994, Velvet Glove), G. Heathcote, Arnside, Westmoreland, England.

Special prizes (tie): (No. 1058, Twilight Memories), A. Charlick, Rose Park, S.A.; (No. 1026, Up to Date), F. A. L. Kuskop, 24 Adelaide-road, Wellington, N.Z.

Hon. mention: (No. 1039, Dream Faces I.), A. Charlick, Rose Park, S.A.; (No. 1055, Eden), J. D. Williams, Port Pirie West, S.A.

The competitors included other well-known names, as P. G. L. Fothergill, J. von Dijk, Gilbert Dobbs, T. D. Clarke, P. F. Blake, A. W. Daniel, F. Lazard, and E. Palkoska.

After the customary interval of three months we shall be pleased to forward the prizes to the successful competitors. We are sure our readers will join us in hearty thanks to Mr. Young for the care and time he has lavished in adjudicating.

We have pleasure in announcing the conditions of the "HERALD" FOURTEENTH TOURNEY.

The "Sydney Morning Herald" fourteenth international problem tourney.—Conditions:—(1) Competitors may send in as many original problems in diagram, accompanied by full solutions, as they please. "White to play and mate in two moves." (2) Each problem to have a nom-de-guerre or motto. The composer's name and address to be enclosed in a separate sealed envelope, with the like motto. Seals will not be broken until the awards are made. (3) Each problem to have but one author, not to have competed in any other tourney, or been published before. (4) Problems to be addressed "The Editor, the 'Sydney Morning Herald,' Sydney, Australia," and reach this office by December 1 next. The prize we offer for the problem that the judge (Mr. F. J. Young, of Hobart, Tas.) deems best is five guineas. Should he so recommend, two special prizes will also be awarded.

Competing positions to hand to date:—Nelson, Holmes, Wish For Thee, Courage Sans Peur, Fidelity and Justice, Al Araaf (6).

TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your paper to-day drew my attention to the fact that the Public school teachers of New South Wales, who so desire, are undergoing examination this week, and curiosity prompted me to look up a few of their text books. Before long I came upon this staggerer in Lyle's "Man and His Markets": —"The rich New South Wales (coal) centres of Newcastle and Wollongong are on tidal rivers, the Hunter and the Nepean (!), and close to Sydney."

This is one of the many loose and erroneous sentences I have come across, and it makes me feel that there is a lot of room for improvement in the choice of text books.

I am, etc.,

April 21. OLD TEACHER.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Mr. Harry R. Roberts, who made his mark here as a bright young actor under George Rignold, and with the Broughs, closing with a farewell starring tour (with his wife, Miss Maggie Moore) in "David Garrick," and other costume pieces, has returned from America, after an absence of nine years. His first appearance in the United States was at San Francisco in Lewis Scott's drama, "The Silence of Dean Maitland," he then toured the United States in the leading part in "Quo Vadis," and, opening as Napoleon to the "Madame Sans-Gene" of our one-time visitor, Miss Mary Van Buren, played lead in a long modern repertoire with Mr. Dan Frawley's company. His New York debut at the Broadway Theatre was as the Dean of Westminster in "The Price of Peace," for which he was especially engaged by Mr. Arthur Collins, the Drury Lane manager, and his success therein with press and public caused Mr. David Belasco to secure him for five years to support Mrs. Leslie Carter. He opened as the young Papal Nuncio, who figures prominently in Belasco's play "Madame Du Barri," and remained in the cast four years, two seasons at the New York Criterion, and two seasons at Belasco's Theatre (New York). Since then this now noted artist has created at Boston the chief character in Stange's "The Wooing of Priscilla," and was chosen by Edward Pepple, author of "The Prince Chap," to star in that charming comedy-drama in England. This led to Mr. Roberts's debut at the London Criterion nearly two years ago, when his art was warmly commended by the press, whilst the wholesome fun and fresh comedy of "The Prince Chap" were also appreciated. After a long tour of the United Kingdom, Mr. Roberts was glad to accept Mr. Allan Hamilton's plans for an Australasian tour with "The Prince Chap," which he will open at Christchurch on June 1, after the arrival of new artists from America, not reaching Sydney until November 14. During his absence the still young actor has played several classic parts (Charles Surface, David Garrick, etc.) in first-rate companies, and he has returned here ripened by experience with some of the best actors of the day. He talks vivaciously of his extended travelling, and was especially impressed by the simplicity of the negroes "down South."

Melbourne, which has been getting by far too many "first night plums" lately, was again to the fore with the Easter productions of two of the most talked of pieces of the day—"Peter Pan" and "Miss Hook of Holland." J. M. Barrie's play is so curious in its alternation between the real and the fantastic, that had it not been already read about and written about for two years past, any reference to it in the brief space at disposal would be useless. Part of it is pure pantomime, as in the fight between Peter Pan's infantile following and the pirates, the opening scene in the nursery is domestic, and there are wit, pathos, and nonsense in it. The Melbourne critics agree that the piece has been beautifully presented by Mr. J. C. Williamson, and that Miss Tittell Brune's interpretation of the elf-like character of "Peter Pan" was clever and artistic. This strange play is likely to repeat here the successes it has achieved in England and America. In Paul Rubens's quaintly Dutch musical comedy, Messrs. Meynell and Gunn introduced an entirely new company from England, and incidentally brought back to the Theatre Royal, after a prolonged continuance of drama, "the gaiety and music that belonged to 25 years ago at the same house." As to the story, we read that it concerns "the recipe for a divine liqueur, 'Cream of the Sky,' lost by the distiller Hook, and found by one Slinks, a glorious loafer, who sells it to a forlorn soldier for many guilders, which he proceeds to knock down in tots of liqueur, additional wearing apparel, a cane, and a somnambulist attendant, who has the rich and rare gift of being able to sleep standing up." All accounts agree that a first-rate, and singularly well-balanced combination has been formed for this whimsical piece, in which the vivacity and pure soprano tones of Miss Ruth Lincoln as Sally Hook, the fun and charm of Miss Emmeline Orford as the maid "Mina," and the clever low comedy of Mr. Edwin Brett as the old distiller, and Mr. Wm. Cromwell as the lazy Slinks, were conspicuous. Miss Grace Sinclair, a well-known London actress in musical comedy, is now on board the incoming mail steamer Oruba for this company. Messrs. Meynell and Gunn have specially engaged this artist to play the leading part in "The Belle of Mayfair," made famous in London by Miss Edna May.

Since her successes in Stuttgart Miss Fannie Bauer has been making an equally prolonged stay in Ireland, touring the country repeatedly from her headquarters at Dublin, where she is already a great favourite. The London debut of the Sydney soprano was to take place at the St. Patrick's Day banquet at the Hotel Cecil. Recently Miss Bauer sang at a matinee at the Dublin Theatre Royal, at which Mr. MacCormack (the young Irish tenor for whom Mr. Ernest Gye predicted a great future in a letter lately written for this column) created a quite unprecedented sensation. Miss Bauer, who describes the voice as "a lovely tenor of the Italian type," also refers to the strange fact that Mr. Gerard Kean made his debut on the same occasion. No one will be surprised to learn that the general opinion of the Dublin press is that this young Australian singer requires further study. The Sydney contralto, Miss Eva O'Connor, was to make her Dublin debut on March 17, Miss Alice Hollander was singing with a theatrical company at the Dublin Theatre Royal, and yet a third Sydney contralto, Miss Kate Rooney, had only just left the Irish capital for London.

Mr. George Lauri's departure for England on a six-months' holiday will leave a vacancy in the Royal Comic Opera Company, and Mr. J. C. Williamson will fill it by appointing Mr. Victor Gouriet principal comedian. This new artist was to have made his debut here as Moolraj in "The Blue Moon" last year, but was disabled for many months by a badly sprained ankle during the Adelaide season. His first appearance in his new surroundings will be as Baron Popoff in "The Merry Widow." The new piece is now in active rehearsal under Herr Slapoffski and Mr. Gerard Coventry at the Theatre Royal. Mr. Gouriet's place with the No. 2 Company will presumably be filled by the new Dutch-dialect comedian from America, Mr. George Loder, who will appear here as the Cincinnatti brewery proprietor in "The Prince of Pilsen" next month. There will be other changes for this new piece, as Miss Fanny Dango is to be transferred to it for the part of a pert pageboy, whilst Mr. Whitehead, a new American baritone, has been engaged for the principal singing part.

The return of Mr. Percy Grainger with the Ada Crossley party in September will excite renewed interest owing to the progress made by the young Australian pianist since his last visit here, more especially in connection with his interpretation of the music of the late Eduard Grieg, whose friend he became during a visit to the home at Bergen. Writing to his aunt, Mrs. Reginald Quesnel, of this city, Mr. Grainger states that he had just been engaged to interpret the music of Gabriel Faure (who should not be confused with Faure, the great French baritone) at a reception given in honour of that French composer at the London house of Sir Felix Schuster. On the evening of the same day he was to play Tchaikowsky's "B Flat Concerto" with Mr. Henry Wood's orchestra at Queen's Hall, making a heavy day. On March 3 Mr. Grainger played Grieg's "Concerto" with orchestra at Birmingham, and was recalled many times, finally recognising the encore with his own "Irish Dances." The young pianist has so many engagements ahead that he has cancelled his proposed appearance at Copenhagen, and will now remain in England until he gives a recital of his own in London during June.

AUTUMN CHILLS.

The changeable days and chilly nights at this season of the year are particularly perilous to those afflicted with a weakness of the chest and bronchial tubes. With such people a cold contracted during this uncertain weather generally makes its presence felt throughout the whole of the winter. Now is the time for weak-chested people to inhale a few Peps occasionally, and so get the throat, chest, and lungs in a strengthened condition to ward off coughs and colds, and prepare the system to resist the ravages of the cold winter weather.

Always have Peps handy, and you need never fear a cold summer or winter. Sold by chemists and stores, or post free from the Peps Pastille Co., 39 Pitt-street, Sydney, at 1s 6d and 3s per box.—Advt.

PRESCRIBED FOR THE ROYAL FAMILY.

FOR YOUR LIVER AND KIDNEYS.

WHEN YOU FEEL TIRED, weary, and despondent, you are suffering from the troubles of a bad liver. The remedy is simple—just a dose of Kutnow's Powder before breakfast. The Kidneys, moreover, are most important organs of the human body. They are the little governors of our well-being and comfort. If clean and free from uric acid poison we are energetic and happy. If clogged up with poisonous sediment we are on the borderland of serious disease. Kutnow's Powder cleanses the entire system, sets the liver working again, flushes the kidneys, and frees them from all unhealthy deposits. Dyspepsia, headaches, and constipation always give way before the influence of Kutnow's Powder.

The Medical Herald says:

"Disorders of the liver—whether arising from excessive or deficient secretion of bile, with such well-known characteristic symptoms as headache, diarrhoea, and low spirits, or with the important symptoms of dyspepsia, such as constipation, a feeling of abnormal fulness or emptiness, heartburn, an offensive taste, foul breath, furred tongue, flatulence, and languor—these are now most successfully treated by Kutnow's Powder. This preparation is a natural antiseptic aperient. It produces an immediate sense of relief, or, to put it in the words of a patient, 'It seems to at once take away a load of trouble.'"

Famous Testimony from Famous Men.

Prof. I. N. Love, M.D.

(Late Professor at the Marion-Sims College of Medicine, and College of Physicians and Surgeons), wrote: "The great surgeon, Prof. Lawson Tait, M.D., himself a sufferer from a gouty diathesis, for years found Kutnow's Powder of great value to himself personally and in his practice. Kutnow's Powder stimulates the activities of the bowels and kidneys. It cleanses the bowels, acts as a diluent, and flushes out the kidneys in a most satisfactory way. Thorough elimination is salvation, and there is no better eliminator than Kutnow's Powder."

A Civil Engineer writes:

"Southsea, May 9th, 1907.—Mr. W. Barns Kinsey, M.Inst.C.E., F.G.S., having received a bottle of Kutnow's Powder at Dundee, Natal, some time back, has pleasure in stating that his personal experience of it for the alleviation of rheumatism and allied complaints bears out fully what Messrs. Kutnow and Co. claim for their preparation, and he has had much pleasure in recommending it to others, who have also received like benefit from its use."

A Royal Academician writes:

"1 Abbey-road, St. John's Wood, N.W., April 5.—I have used Kutnow's Powder for the last five years, and it has added to the pleasure of my life. I take a tablespoonful every morning when I rise, and find it a most refreshing drink. I have never needed to increase the dose, and it has acted perfectly in assisting nature all the time. I am now strong and healthy, and give you my experience, which may be useful.—John MacWhirter, R.A."

Guard Against Fraud.

The Genuine and Original Kutnow's Powder can be had of all conscientious Chemists throughout the world. When you ask for Kutnow's Powder and do not receive the package and bottle bearing the fac-simile signature, "S. Kutnow and Co., Ld.," and the registered trade mark, "Hirschensprung, or Deer Leap," you are being defrauded by an unscrupulous dealer, who is intentionally foisting upon you a worthless substitute.

SCIENCE NOTES.

W. G. P.

THE WORK OF MAYOW.

The Alembic Club has just reprinted from the edition of 1674 the work of John Mayow, and the student of chemistry has now in easily accessible form one of its most interesting historical documents. Although his claims to prominence were overlooked until recently, and then somewhat unduly asserted, Mayow is undoubtedly a significant figure, for he was the first to give a nearly true account of respiration, and he anticipated Priestley, Scheele, and Lavoisier by a century in explaining the part played in combustion by oxygen—though, of course, he did not call it by that name. In the "Tractatus de Respiratione et de Rachitide," 1668, he explains very fully the behaviour of air in respiration, and in the "Tractatus Quinque Medico-physici," 1669, he concludes that not all the air takes part in respiration and combustion. He noticed that what is left (nitrogen) is somewhat lighter than common air, and that it does not support combustion. Unfortunately, he missed the product of combustion, carbon dioxide, which dissolved in the water over which he collected his gasses. He recognised that air and saltpetre contain the same "subtle spirit" (oxygen), but his idea of how this was connected with air was peculiar, for he had no theory of gasses to guide him. He thought it was fixed in the air particles much as it was in the salt, and that it was "torn from them by the burning of a lamp or the breathing of animals." He recognised the increase in weight when a metal is burnt to form its oxide, but he did not follow up the clue by making the exact weighings, which would have been the foundation of a theory of chemical composition. Nevertheless, his conclusions are sufficiently remarkable for a time when the orthodox belief was that fire, air, mercury, and salt were the essential elements. As to respiration, he says quite correctly that the aerial particles enter the mass of the blood, and are there deprived of their oxygen; and he regards this as the principal instrument of life and motion. He scoffs at the idea of a "vital flame" being the source of animal heat. Unfortunately, he tried to make his "aerial spirit" do too much, and when by its aid he tried to explain the phenomena of light, colour, elasticity, and so on he came to grief. Nevertheless he was a man exactly a century before his time, and deserves the honour of the forerunner.

IRONCLADS AND LORD ROSSE.

The Institution of Naval Architects has just become possessed of an interesting series of letters of Lord Rosse, written between 1854-5, which show that he was one of the first to conceive the idea of ironclad battleships. He seems to have clearly appreciated the importance of armour protection against horizontal shell fire, and he worked out details to satisfy himself that stability could be secured. He proposed floating batteries of moderate size to fight in smooth water, the sides being armoured with five inches of iron. The correspondence throws a curious light on the naval opinion of the time. In a letter to Sir John Burgoyne Lord Rosse proposes an armament of 16 heavy guns, a draught of about 13 feet, and a displacement of about 1500 tons. Sir John doubted if the armour would be effective, and added that the navy had a thorough dislike of iron. Lord Rosse pressed his scheme on the Duke of Newcastle, but without result. However, five ironclads were begun in France in 1854, and a little later some were laid down in England, though not according to Lord Rosse's design. The history of early armoured ships in the United States was recently referred to in these notes. It is interesting to find that Lord Rosse was a prime mover in the new departure, and that his scheme was quite worthy of his scientific reputation—and the dates are a striking comment on the rate of naval evolution.

ELECTRIC SLEEP.

Professor Leduc, of Nantes, a well-known experimenter, claims to have successfully applied electricity as a local anaesthetic. He submits the body of the patient to a low-tension direct current, interrupted and re-established at intervals. A general insensibility is produced, in which operations may be safely carried out, though so far as the experiments have gone the patient remains conscious. If very promptly applied the process restores electrocuted animals. No ill effect seems to follow the "electric sleep." The best results are said to be obtained when the current is made and broken about 110 times a second, to attain which a clever bit of apparatus has been designed. A Russian doctor has experimented largely with Leduc's method, and he shows that, however long the treatment has been kept up, the normal condition returns as soon as it is stopped. Leduc tried the experiment on himself, and, according to him, the sensations of the patient are rather unpleasant. The victim, although conscious, loses the faculties of both speech and motion. Hearing, however, is not altogether suppressed, for Leduc heard as in a dream the conversation of those by his side. When animals are the subject of experiment they at first show surprise and become restless, but soon they appear to sleep. An electromotive force of five or six volts is sufficient, and an increase in potential produces the symptoms of epilepsy.

THE EXTENT OF SPACE.

The unit for the measurement of space is the light-year—the distance covered by light after it has travelled for a year. It traverses 186,000 odd miles a second. The nearest star is about 275,000 times as far from us as the sun, and light from it takes over four years to reach us—that from Sirius takes eight years, from Arcturus 24 years, from the North Pole star 60 years. Some of the stars just visible to the eye are more than 300 light years away. Many recent "new stars" have been the result of collisions that took place hundreds of years ago. The light that then blazed up has only just reached us. But all these are relatively near neighbours. Stars that are faint in a large telescope may be 3000 light-years away. Many of them are much more. Close as they look in the sky, any two stars on the average are further away from us than we are from the nearest star—four light-years. In the constellation Cassiopeia are two faint stars side by side. But one is only nine light-years away, and the other is 21. Although they seem to be fixed, they are all moving at random. In 17 centuries Sirius has moved by a moon's breadth as it appears. This at the distance of our moon means 2000 miles, at the distance of the sun a million miles, but at the distance of Sirius thousands of millions of miles. Our own sun moves rather slowly—at the rate of about 12 miles a second—but how far has that carried us since the journey started? All the stars of our universe share in this drift, which seems to be divided into two streams, as though two universes were passing through each other—as most likely they are. But beyond all this there is evidence of infinitely more distant universes far outside the common drift. Professor Garrett Serviss so interprets the white nebula in Andromeda. Its spectra he thinks those of a mass of incandescent solid bodies crowded together in perspective. It is a vast system of interlocked spirals like many Milky Ways wrapped one within the other, while the centre is occupied by a compact globular cluster of stars—a strange contrast to our own universe, where the central region is almost empty, only a few stars (our own is one of them) floating there as if they had got astray from the galaxy. If Professor Serviss is right in his interpretation this Andromeda universe may be a million light-years away. There are other nebulae with similar spectra which would likewise be universes. But even this tremendous conception is out-stripped by Fournier d'Albe, who, in his book on the "supra" and the "infra" worlds, professes to trace an evolution of universes into more complex masses. He would see one example of that in the double drift of our own stars. To him the stars are in fact the molecules of a kind of cosmic chemistry. Well, perhaps we can imagine a being to whom the movement of an electron might seem slow-paced eternity!

AN UNRIVALLED SITE.

SYDNEY, THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

(BY NORMAN SELFE.)

Those who are well acquainted with Sydney and its surroundings, and have also visited the principal cities of Europe and America, are practically as one in their conclusions that nature prepared an unrivalled site when she laid out Port Jackson and its surroundings for the capital of a great country. With waterways and shores almost ideal for the accommodation of a maritime commerce; with solid rock for foundations; the choicest of stone and brick earth underfoot; with the most durable and beautiful of timbers for the cutting; all the materials for the erection of a structural metropolis, and the establishment of any emporium of trade, commerce, and manufacture, have been provided within handy reach of our founders.

Business over, can we find another capital where the tired citizen can as quickly and easily reach so varied a choice of pleasure resorts? With sandy beaches, mountain passes, rocky dells, secluded valleys, and rippling waters to keep him in mind that life after all has its compensations.

But with all the advantages of such surroundings it is a fact that the actual site on which the City of Sydney has been built was originally in many respects a most unpromising one, and the average citizen of to-day has no idea how much we owe to our early rulers for making rough places smooth and our pathways so straight. It is the fashion to find fault with the manner in which Sydney was laid out, but those who complain have apparently never realised the fact that the original surface of what is now the city, varied from sea level to as much as 120ft above high water, and that where now all is smooth and level hundreds of thousands of yards have been excavated from the heights, and filled into the hollows.

EARLY ENTERPRISE.

Under the despotic rule of early days there was a concentration of effort to a definite end that has not been apparent during the past 60 years. In the formation of Brickfield Hill alone between 30,000 and 40,000 cubic yards of material are recorded to have been moved from the higher levels to the Haymarket valley. The cutting down of Kent-street, which was absolutely impracticable a few years ago for wheeled vehicles, was a gigantic task; and the Argyle Cut, which has not been improved for at least half a century, testify to the foresight and energy of our first rulers. Not only were these and other great works carried out by central authority, but there is evidence that even greater ones were contemplated for the improvement of Sydney, which under the multiplication of authorities since obtaining are still in abeyance. For instance, the extension of George-street, both to the north and to the south, to give a practically continuous and straight thoroughfare from Dawes Battery to Redfern, was not only intended, but was shown upon numbers of printed maps of Sydney right up to the thirties. With all the opportunities of later years, however, no attempt appears to have been made to continue George-street through the Rocks area, although the scheme has often been discussed in the press. Neither again has the proposed additional outlet to the south, so much needed, been provided; but, on the contrary, the railway authorities, with a total apparent disregard for the ordinary traffic of the city, have recently actually closed an important cross-street at this most throttled chief entrance to the city.

Unlike most cities, Sydney has only one main outlet to the interior of the country, by the Parramatta or Great Western road. We have to traverse the same all the way to Ashfield before the Liverpool or Great Southern road diverges therefrom, and still a little farther for the old Great Northern-road via Gladesville. Yet it is a fact that a row of ugly sheds has just been erected in a most prominent position to blight the appearance of this main portal of our city, the Mayor and aldermen of the City Council being just as powerless to prevent this barbarism as they were to stop the blocking up of Devonshire-street.

As a matter of fact, the supposed rules of the city are, in most important matters, only such in name; while the Railway, Tramway, Telegraph, Water and Sewerage Departments, as well as the Harbour Trust, all work their own sweet will with our streets, pulling down, blocking up, building and upsetting things generally for the purpose of their own improvements, without any need for permission from the Mayor and council—the nominal governors of the city—to sanction the same as part of a broad and comprehensive scheme of improvements. So much so is this the case that it has long been seen by thoughtful observers that no drastic improvements are possible in Sydney until some central authority has been established by the Government with an absolute controlling power over the whole metropolitan area, and over the various authorities to which public works are now, or may be in the future committed.

A NEW NEW YORK.

A recent article in "Munsey's Magazine" for November, entitled "New York the City Beautiful," is so pertinently applicable to Sydney that it should be studied at length by all who desire to see Sydney "the City Beautiful" as well as New York.

The writer of this article, illustrated by H. M. Pettit, is Mr. Herbert N. Casson, who points out that three years ago "the desire of New York for admiration became so positive that she appointed an Official Beauty Commission," and the descriptions and illustrations of some of the proposals emanating from this commission indicate such marvellous works that the most radical and extensive improvements yet proposed for Sydney pale into insignificance before them. In fact, the suggestions for beautifying New York call for an expenditure of half a billion dollars." This amount, in American reckoning, is 500 million dollars, or, say, £100,000,000, and the writer adds that "Miss Manhattan is resolved to be handsome at any cost." If it be admitted that New York has 10 times the population and income that Sydney now possesses, then the equivalent expenditure here would be not less than 10 millions, which leads us to ask, What would not that sum effect on our beautiful site if judiciously and economically applied?

As bearing upon the point often urged that Sydney labours under great disadvantages through its public works being carried out by a number of separate organisations, each of which entirely ignores the work of the others, and the proposal that the Government should appoint a special commission to deal with city improvements, Mr. Casson says, speaking of his city:—"She has always had local schemes and local accomplishments, but her aim is now to carry out a plan of improvement for the whole city, so that one reform shall not be checkmated by another." One would almost think that the writer had had Sydney in his mind when he penned this paragraph, and had seen the piecemeal work now being carried out on the Rocks site, and which is being, pawn-like, dotted here and there as if to effectually block any proposals for kinglike moves in the future. Again, the same writer says:—"How to prevent New York from being a jungle of individualism—how to shape it more and more into a socialised city of convenience and beauty—has been the main idea underlying the work of the commissioners. . . . Its people must know that a city is not a mere aggregation of separate communities, but an organic whole, in which all parts must co-operate freely for the general good."

APPOINT A COMMISSION.

One of the greatest improvements ever made in affording a fresh outlet to this city of Sydney was carried out by the private company which built the original Pyrmont and Blackwattle bridges, and established a direct route from Market-street to Camperdown. Since that day a number of possibilities for further great improvements have been lost, because many of the mazes of narrow streets and lanes which now hem in the central city are the work of later years. Fortunately, however, Sydney has many latent possibilities still that can be utilised if a thoroughly comprehensive plan is formulated at once, and every improvement in the future is made an integral part of that comprehensive whole. It is no part of these remarks at present to indicate even the most-called-for improvements, but the proceedings of our architectural and engineering societies, as well as past correspondence in the press, all show that much expert consideration has been given to the subject. With all our talk there does not seem to be in Sydney that practical pride in our city and State which is found in America. Can anything stir up our citizens from that apathy which has already lost us so much? And can we hope that, like New York, a general interest in the works of a Beauty Commission will lead to similar mighty changes? With that effected all may be proud to claim their part and lot in Sydney, for, wherever the seat of government may be, Sydney is certainly destined for the chief city of the Commonwealth. Let us see, then, that we all do something to make her worthy of such destiny.

DIGESTIVE DISORDERS.

AND CHAMBERLAIN'S STOMACH AND LIVER TABLETS.

NOT A CURE-ALL.

BUT MADE FOR SPECIFIC COMPLAINTS.

Chamberlain's Tablets are in no sense a cure-all, neither are they designed to take the place of the regular physician. Nine-tenths of the trouble to which the flesh is heir is due to indigestion in some form; illness that originates in the digestive organs—The Stomach—The Liver—The Bowels. Chamberlain's Tablets are a simple medicine that is immediately available, one that is safe, that acts promptly, effectively, and gently upon these delicate and vital organs. They should be taken upon the first symptom of illness, and continued with regularity to a perfect cure.

WE MAKE GOOD.

Buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Tablets from your chemist or storekeeper, or if they cannot supply you, send direct to us for a bottle, enclosing stamps or postal note for 1s 6d. If you derive no benefit from their use after a fair and thorough trial, write us about it, and we immediately refund the price. Or send us your name and address on a post-card. We will post you a sample absolutely free of charge.

CHAMBERLAIN MEDICINE CO.,
608 Harris-street, Sydney.

WALGETT, N.S.W.

Fred. Gillett, Esq., writes:—"For years I had been a sufferer from chronic constipation due to my sedentary occupation—tutor. I tried a free sample of Chamberlain's Tablets, and the results were so satisfactory that I have since used half a dozen bottles. The Tablets have certainly done me a great deal of good, for when I first began to use them I had to take four Tablets twice a week to produce the desired effect, but now a couple of Tablets a month keep the bowels in good order."

WELLINGTON, N.Z.

Mrs. S. Stockbridge writes:—"Chamberlain's Tablets are the finest corrective we have ever had in our home. I always give them to my children, and find they are the safest medicine for them. What I like about Chamberlain's Tablets is that they are mild and gentle in their action, and never have any bad after effect."

SOME WHENS.

AND GOOD ADVICE.

When the appetite is lost, and the sight or smell of food excites a feeling of nausea—then take Chamberlain's Tablets.

When the tongue is coated, and there is a slimy, bitter taste in the mouth—then take Chamberlain's Tablets.

When the complexion is sallow and pasty, or there may be a slight yellowish discolouration on the forehead or in the whites of the eyes—then take Chamberlain's Tablets.

When there is a dull, throbbing pain in the head, or perhaps a violent sick headache or dizziness, or black specks floating before the eyes, or dimness of vision—then take Chamberlain's Tablets.

When there is a bad attack of the blues; the world is all wrong, and nothing that can be done or said will reconcile one to his fate—then take

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.

YES-NO.

If your stomach, liver, and bowels are all right you are right all over, aren't you? YES!

If your stomach, liver, and bowels are out of sorts you don't feel right, do you? NO!

Then what is needed is a medicine that will put them right, and do it right off.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS WILL DO!

STRENGTHEN AND REFRESHEN.

Chamberlain's Tablets strengthen and build up, while violent carthartics tend to weaken and depress. The result of their use will be a surprise to those accustomed only to the drastic pill, composed largely of Mercury and Jalap.

WE SAY

Don't take medicine when medicine is not needed, but when medicine is needed, take the best, and take it right off, and the best for all digestive disorders is CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.

LIFE'S LITTLE THINGS

ARE WHAT BOTHER US.

If we were able to live just right all the time there would be little need of medicines, less need of doctors. But some little thing is constantly coming along to put us out of balance—exposure; a cold; change of diet or of drinking water; irregular meals; any little thing will at times upset the best of us.

Nothing particular the matter, but we don't feel good. At such times the wise ones among us take a few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets with the certain knowledge that they will put us right, right away.

TO WIN BATTLES

is to get there first with the best army. The way to prevent sickness is to get there first with the best medicine, and its name is

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.

A FAMILY MEDICINE.

Chamberlain's Tablets are so shaped that it makes them exceedingly easy to swallow. Their small size makes them particularly convenient and pleasant for children, and delicately constituted persons who require small doses.

Chamberlain's Tablets are a most convenient and economical medicine; no spoon or glass is needed, and no measuring to be done. Each Tablet is an accurate dose.

Chamberlain's Tablets are put up in a small bottle that can be carried in the pocket.

They are handy for travellers, and are always ready in time of need.

Chamberlain's Tablets aid digestion, promote the appetite, stimulate the liver, keep the bowels open, and put all the internal organs in a natural, healthy condition. They are peculiarly a family medicine.

ST. KILDA, VIC.

Mr. E. Davey writes:—"Chamberlain's Tablets have done me a lot of good; so much, in fact, that I have recommended them to some of my friends who have been troubled with constipation and indigestion."

CONSTIPATION.

GENERAL CAUSE OF ILL-HEALTH.

It is unanimously recognised by the medical profession that self-poisoning by the absorption of gases generated in constipated bowels is one of the most potent causes of ill-health. Constipated bowels may arise from deficient action of the liver, or from muscular weakness of the intestinal walls, but whatever the cause the fact remains that poison which should have been cast out of your body is absorbed into the blood, and distributed throughout every vital part of the body. The results—Stomach and Liver troubles, Headaches, Neuralgia, Heart Distresses, Eye, Ear, Skin, Kidney, Bladder, Throat, and Lung Troubles—are to be seen on every side of us, but in the majority of cases the simple foundation—constipation—has long been lost sight of. Chamberlain's Tablets are the one medicine that will guard you against these troubles. Do not use a medicine that will merely force your bowels into temporary action, leaving them weak and certain to need a laxative again, but take the one medicine that will strengthen the muscular action of the bowels. That "one" medicine is

CHAMBERLAIN'S TABLETS.

THEIR ACTION.

Chamberlain's Tablets act gently, pleasantly, and naturally, without irritating or nauseating, and do not produce the constipated habit which results from using pills.

WHY BETTER THAN PILLS

Chamberlain's Tablets differ from all other medicines in their composition, and in their effect upon the system. They are compounded from roots, herbs, and solid extracts, each of the highest medicinal value, and each acting upon a specific organ of the body, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, and removing the very cause of the disease.

N.S.W. CHEMIST

writes:—"Chamberlain's Tablets are very popular with my lady customers. I have sold as high as six bottles to one during the past year, and two or three to many. On the recommendation of one lady I have sold over fifty bottles. She never tires of telling her friends what Chamberlain's Tablets did for her."

IN THE GARDEN.

TREES AND SHRUBS.

After a good rainfall it is a good time of year to make new plantations of shrubs, and rearrange and transplant those that are overcrowded, providing that the soil has been well prepared, and is in a good condition to receive them. Early autumn planting is the best, as the plants will get well established in their new positions before the cold weather, and will also be much more likely to succeed during the ensuing summer than if the planting was deferred to spring. It is an error to suppose that the roots of trees and shrubs entirely rest in winter, for unless frost bound they work and grow without ceasing all the year round. Hence trees and hardy shrubs transplanted now root at once. And it is of great importance to have three months for rooting before the top is called on to move. If got in early, the roots start into immediate growth, and prepare for the production of leaf and branch in the following spring.

For giving brightness and beauty to a small garden during the winter months few conifers can surpass the golden variegated forms of Retinospora plumosa and pisifera. Gay and cheerful looking at all times, and forming by reason of their glowing tints a striking contrast to the more or less intense green of evergreens generally, they appear as the dull days approach to gain in richness of colour, the golden hue of the foliage becoming more and more intense as the days get shorter and darker. R. plumosa aurea is a gem, neat and compact of growth, yet preserving the graceful, feathery outline which we so much admire in many of the Coniferous family, and withal so perfectly hardy as to defy all changes and extremes of weather, bearing quite a fresh and happy appearance in the midst of severe and continued frosts. These delightful little shrubs can be recommended to all concerned in gardening matters. These Retinosporas, making as they do a large amount of fibre close at home, do not at all mind frequent removal. When taken up, if well watered when planted, but a small percentage will show signs of distress. Always bright and fair to the eye they light up corridors, winter gardens, balconies or window ledges, and as near as foliage can do supply the want of bright flowers when such are somewhat scarce.

At one time no one would think of venturing to leave a palm out during the winter, but the Chamerops humilis, known as Fortune's palm, is so hardy that there is no risk incurred, as it has in several districts withstood the severe frosts for years without suffering the least permanent injury. Wind, however, appears to be its greatest enemy. It should therefore be placed in some sheltered spot.

SELAGINELLAS OR LYCOPODS.

These moss-like plants, often called lycopods, possess charms peculiarly their own, and their pleasing shades of green enhance the beauty of all plants with which they are associated. The culture of the majority is simple, and may be summed up as follows:—A regular supply of moisture, shade from the direct rays of the sun, a still atmosphere, and good drainage. This is applicable to all the species, and is imperative for successful culture.

All the greenhouse selaginellas will grow well in a mixture of fibrous loam and leaf mould, with sufficient silver sand and pounded potsherds added to keep it porous. Let the loam be rather rough; the plants will do all the better for it being so. When ready to commence re-potting, turn the plants out of their pots, and divide them into the requisite number of pieces, taking care, in the case of the branching varieties, such as Selaginella stolonifera to secure a piece of root with each division. Fill the pots with the compost described, and press it rather firm, keeping it a little higher in the centre of the pot; then, with a stick for the purpose, make a hole in the centre, and insert a division of the plant, around which, towards the edge of the pot, insert as many pieces as may be thought necessary to form a symmetrical appearance. When potted, place the plants in the most airy part of whatever structure they are to stand in; give them a good watering through a fine rose, and in due time you will be rewarded for your care. S. metallica is one of the handsomest of the species.

VERDANT LAWNS.

Most persons who have a lawn in the garden have trouble with it. The grass does not grow so well, nor does it look as well as was hoped. But it should be remembered that if grass is constantly being taken from the lawn and nothing returned to it, it is almost sure to suffer. To have a smooth velvety turf of a deep verdant green the lawn must be fed, and fresh seeds of approved kinds sown at least once a year. It is well to get a mixture of the best lawn grass, and white Dutch clover seeds and sow in autumn or early spring over the entire surface, covering it with the following mixture. To a barrowful of finely sifted soil add two pounds of guano and one gallon of soot, if it can be obtained. Scatter it over the seed enough to cover it, and keep it frequently rolled down, being careful to keep birds and poultry from it. If the season is moist there will soon be a wonderful improvement, for the grass will grow thick and strong, and be of a deep green colour.

THE MOLE CRICKET.

This insect pest is very troublesome wherever it has found a home, for it seems to devour the roots of almost any plant that comes in its way, and amongst Gladioli and other bulbs, and plants it is often very destructive. They live almost entirely underground, burrowing and making horizontal galleries like a mole.

Mole crickets are seldom seen above the ground during the day, but they may be traced by the ridges they raise in the soil, and not uncommonly by their destructive work. When full grown they measure about 2in in length, and are of a dark brown colour, with a small oval head, capable of being withdrawn into the chest or front part of the body. These pests have been found so troublesome in some gardens that whole beds of tuberous begonias and other plants had to be lifted, and the beds carefully dug over to find them.

It is difficult to state the best mode of getting rid of them, but generally it is best to dig them out. If that cannot well be done, boiling water poured down their burrows will generally kill them. This cricket is a formidable-looking insect, but it may be handled with perfect safety, for it will not either bite or sting.

SEASONABLE REMINDERS.

Violets require light, warmth, food, and water, and an annual renewal of their youth. A ray or two of sunshine will not satisfy them, nor will little food. They are too often left to live or die as they list in some overshadowed out-of-the-way corner, and in such positions even violets can grow nothing but leaves, and they soon wear out their leafy existences. To have violets as full of substance as those our florists send to market we must let them have plenty of sun and an abundance of food. To have them in the greatest perfection, the same plants should never flower more than one season. Prolong the season as much as you can, but be sure that for the next year's bloom the violet beds are renewed.

Most annuals may be sown in the beds where they are to flower, and this method in many cases is preferable to transplanting if they are judiciously thinned out as they advance in growth. They will not only be stronger by the flowering season, but the duration of bloom considerably prolonged. Pansy seed may still be sown, and seedlings planted out. That general favourite, the sweetpea, should also be sown this month; in many districts where the winters are not too severe they will stand a moderately cold season, and bloom early in the spring, producing a wealth of sturdy flowers of exquisite beauty. Some of the recent introductions should have a place in every amateur's garden.

If the shading of the bushhouse is too dense it will be advisable to take some of it off. This, however, should be done with discretion and on dull days, so that the plants will not suffer from the sudden change. Tender plants that are likely to suffer should be transferred to the glasshouse for protection. See that the drainage of all pot plants is efficient, and water them only in the mornings of fine days.

In the vegetable garden, plant both the long-pod and Windsor beans. They should have plenty of room between the rows; they are sometimes choked by being sown too thickly. Sow largely the early kinds of peas. There are many fine varieties to select from. The present is a good time to sow turnips, both of the Swedish and white varieties.

UNBEARABLE ITCHING.

Eczema in Sore, Red Patches like Ringworm Spread Over the Body and Limbs—Physician No Help—Gradually Grew Worse—Could Not Work with Comfort—Relieved in One Day, and at last is Perfectly Cured by Cuticura.

"About October of last year I noticed a small round red patch on each of my lower limbs, not unlike ringworm. It gradually got so large and irritating that I could not go on with my work in comfort. Finally, sores began to spread all over both of my limbs, and the itching and pain were so acute that I consulted a doctor, who said the complaint was eczema. He gave me some salve, which I used for several weeks. Instead of improving, however, they got gradually worse, and the soreness and itching at last got almost unbearable. I tried all kinds of other ointments, which did me no good.

"One day I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. The following day I had less discomfort, and after using the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills awhile my skin began to heal. The itching and irritation died away, and the skin itself assumed a healthier appearance, too. Perseverance with Cuticura has now resulted in a perfect cure. POULTRY.

Questions relative to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

North Botany.—All the information you ask about geese, could not be supplied in this column. Write to the Agricultural Department, for the April number of the Agricultural Gazette, which contains a lengthy article on this subject.

Fancier.—It would be difficult to advise you the most profitable show fowl to import. There should be better White Orpingtons in England than here, and the breed should have a few years' run. Black Wyandottes are booming in England; we have none in this State.

OLD BREEDS AND BREEDERS.

It is fairly safe to say that there is no class of prize stock breeders so ephemeral as those who embark in the exciting game of poultry exhibiting.

No matter who the exhibitors of any class of stock may be any year, incidental contingencies may occur whereby some of even the most successful may not again appear in the show arena. But, taking all the stock exhibitors of big shows like the Royal together, the poultry section is responsible for the greater annual number of those who drop out by the way. Going back only a dozen years, it is remarkable the few poultry exhibitors of that time who patronise the show pen at present, while if the early nineties are consulted, not half a dozen of the names now grace any society's catalogue. Taking the New South Wales Poultry, Pigeon, and Dog Society 1891 show, where the number of exhibits was almost double that of the late Royal show, there are only three exhibitors whose names are catalogued the present year, viz., Pemell, Cadell, and Bradshaw. The most prominent exhibitors in 1900 were Pender, Hope, Fairfax, Ferguson, Lacey, Dickson, Jones, Croudace, Longworth, M'Keown, Commins, Gosling, Kellick, Kermode, Cadell, Pemell, Goodwin, Peate, Miller, Murdoch, Pratt, Hazeltine, Scantlebury, Pye, Russell, Forster, Dunlop, Churchwood, Goodwin, Marsh, Judd, Shaw, Glasson, Richardson, Hayward, Hill, Hetherington, Dilling, Blader, Samuel, Nancarrow, Kellick, Sheridan, Mayhew, Asche, Palmer, Francis, Compton, Carson, and a few others. Messrs. Mills, of Melbourne, and Beard, of Brisbane, were exhibitors at the Sydney show in the above year, a coincidence being that they were both visitors at the show just over, still as keen fanciers as ever.

The following year or two witnessed many recruits to the exhibiting ranks, the majority of whom have retired. Ramsay, Dunlop, Hemsworth, Bonaventure, Hamilton, and Grantham Farm being the most noted stayers.

But, however great the change in the personnel of the show from eighteen or twenty years ago, that in connection with the nomenclature and other features of the breeds is more pronounced still.

Twenty years ago there was not an Orpington in the Sydney show, but there were between forty and fifty of the good old Spanish, a breed which laid big white eggs, and plenty of them. There was not a Spanish fowl at the late show. 120 Brahmas were shown in 1890, and some of them were just as good layers as many of the more modern breeds which have supplanted them. The passing of the Brahma is apologised for by present day exhibitors on the ground that this is the utility age of poultry keeping. They, however, do not back up their opinions, for against the 120 Brahmas exhibited twenty years ago in eight classes, the same number of classes for Black and Buff Orpingtons at the late show only produced 14 more exhibits. Forty to sixty exhibits of Cochins appeared at the shows at the period mentioned. Regarding the merits of this fowl, Mr. James Pemell, its first importer, and last patron, maintains that they were good winter layers, the cockerels and pullets making the choicest of roasters. There was not one at the late show.

Langshans for a number of years catalogued from 50 to 80 entries. This breed was the utility one of the period; the few now exhibited are of the giraffe type, and of small value as profitable fowls to keep. Plymouth Rocks were a greatly boomed breed in the nineties. There were nearly 100 exhibits of these at some shows, a few specimens now only appearing. Some think there will be a revival. The one-time plentiful Dorking has now almost disappeared, the single specimen exhibited this year being sent over from Melbourne. Their decadence in Australia is to be regretted. They were fair layers, of massive frame; the choicest table fowl in existence. The breed is almost worshipped in England for the above qualities. Game are nearly always associated with Dorkings, a cross of the two breeds being the orthodox one for table purposes, and of all breeds ever exhibited in Australia none enjoyed such popularity as did British game, Australian game closely following.

In 1891 there were no fewer than 360 game fowls exhibited in the July show at the Exhibition Buildings, over the half of these being British.

The game exhibitors were true sports. They made no claim for the fowls, other than that it was an interesting and exciting hobby attempting to produce specimens up to standard requirements. They were usually men of money, and not afraid to spend it, 30 up to an occasional 50 guineas being as common for typical specimens in those days as are the same number of shillings now for some of the perhaps overrated utility sorts. At the show mentioned the entries ran up to 30 in some classes, Croudace, Murdock, Fairfax, Shaw, Hetherington, and Marr securing the firsts in black-reds.

Andalusians, a blue variety of the Mediterranean breed, have been with us about 20 years. Although flourishing for a while the numbers exhibited were never large. There were eight specimens at the late show. They are a good fowl and deserve better patronage. It is said when things are at their worst they will mend, and if any breed of fowls requires and deserves mending, it certainly is Minorcas. This breed has been shown at the old Sydney Society, and the Poultry Club in numbers up to 30 or more a class, some half-dozen only appearing at the show, which closed a few days ago. Minorcas are credited with laying the largest egg of any breed, while for quantity several poultry farms stock them in preference to any breed, an opinion confirmed by the laying competitions, one pen at Rockdale producing 1425 eggs, or an average of over 235 for each hen. Big scores have been made at other tests in the various States, but like all other breeds there are poor producers among them. To those who require a non-setting, profitable fowl, the Minorca and Andalusian can be safely recommended.

Hamburgs have gone the way of those mentioned. At one time as many as 50 specimens appeared at the shows. Like British game they totalled one entry at the late Royal. Hamburgs were great layers, but their eggs were rather small. Still they deserve more recognition. Polish have disappeared. They were a fancy variety, certainly, but good layers, and always won admiration.

Leghorns continue their popularity, not in such numbers as formerly, but good entries withal. Of late years there was an innovation from America of this breed, a smaller variety than our own, and with rose combs. Classes have been made for them for the past two or three years, the present year's display being affirmative that they will soon be non-existant.

Coming to the later day poultry inventions, which have displaced the older breeds, the English-made black Orpington is with us to stay, and for numbers, always keeps ahead of the smaller-bodied buffs. For the first time the Royal catalogued white Orpingtons, which brought out a good entry of 25, including exhibits from Victoria, South Australia, and Queensland. Some of the black breeders complained of the absence of type in the newer colour, but then they did not see the first trio of blacks, which arrived in Australia on November 27, 1887, otherwise there would be no reflections on the whites.

Wyandottes, like the Orpingtons, were unknown in the early shows, and were first exhibited in 1887, at the Exhibition Building. They, with the Orpingtons, are now the ruling show fowl. Of late there has been a slight falling-off in numbers, but new varieties of them are regularly appearing. These enlist new patrons, and, like the Orpingtons, may be considered as stayers.

We have still the old breeds of ducks with us, and a few new ones, the chief attraction at the late show being the massive Aylesburys and Pekins, the former for size and quality, and the latter for eggs, assuring them continued patronage.

THE PENRITH TRAIN SERVICE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I should like to bring under the notice of the public by means of your columns the existing state of affairs in connection with the 5.43 p.m. train Sydney to Penrith. Under the present time-table this train stops at Croydon, Burwood, and Strathfield, thence to Granville, Parramatta, and all stations to Penrith. This is the chief train by which residents at stations beyond Parramatta working in Sydney return home. Since the introduction of the present time-table some six months ago this train has been overcrowded by passengers to the three above-mentioned suburban stations. The result is that travellers to Western stations are forced to stand during the first stages of the journey. The suburban people have numerous other trains about that time by which they could travel home, so that there is no excuse for the Western train stopping at the three stations. Under the old conditions, when the train stopped at Homebush to pick up only, it was comfortably filled with Western season ticket-holders.

Hoping that the injustice of the case will appeal to all,

I am, etc.,

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Barton, Mr. Justice O'Connor, and Mr. Justice Isaacs.)

SALE OF A STATION.

Swan and another v Rawsthorne.

Dr. Cullen, K.C., and Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Messrs. Houston and Co., appeared for the appellants; and Mr. Lingen and Mr. Hammond, instructed by Messrs. Russell and Russell (for Messrs. Whelan and Gilcreest, of Forbes), for the respondent. This was an appeal from a decree of the Chief Judge in Equity in New South Wales in July last, decreeing specific performance of an agreement to grant a sub-lease, and also restraining a common law action for trespass brought by the appellants against the respondent in respect of a certain station property. The matter arose out of the sale by Joseph E. Rawsthorne to the appellants, Arthur D. Swan and William Henry Wheatley, of a station property known as Dine Dine, in the Condobolin district. It had an area of 960 acres freehold land, and about 100,000 acres of leasehold land, with 7800 sheep and some cattle and horses. The purchase money was £7000, of which £1000 was to be paid as a deposit, and the balance on completion of the transfer, but in the leasehold portion there was a homestead lease of 10,240 acres, which the purchaser was to grant as a sub-lease to the vendor. Swan agreed to purchase before he inspected the property, but on going to see it some days later he found that all the station buildings were on the homestead lease that was to be sub-let to Rawsthorne. He objected to this, and an agreement was arrived at on a later date that Rawsthorne should effect certain improvements on another part of the holding. The improvements were effected, but appellants contended that they were not done within a reasonable time, and that Rawsthorne had by the delay forfeited his right to the sub-lease. However, the appellants essayed to use the yards on the homestead lease, but were interfered with by Rawsthorne, and thereupon they instituted a common law action to recover damages, Rawsthorne admitting that he had no defence to it at law. Rawsthorne brought an Equity suit to restrain Swan and Wheatley from proceeding with the common law action, also asking for a decree for specific performance of the original agreement, and the Chief Judge found for the plaintiff on both issues. The defendants now appealed against this decision on several grounds.

Argument had not concluded at the adjournment hour, and the Court rose until Tuesday, May 5.

SUPREME COURT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

BANCO COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Cohen and a jury of four.)

ACTION FOR ALLEGED SEDUCTION.

VERDICT FOR £350.

Stephens v Mitchell.

Mr. Moriarty, instructed by Mr. George M. M'Cauley, of Windsor (by his agent, Mr. Alfred Mitchell), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. James, instructed by Mr. J. W. Abigail, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Andrew Stephens, father of Ethel Stephens, to obtain compensation for the loss of her services, and the expense he had been put to owing to the defendant, Perry Mitchell, having, as plaintiff alleged, seduced her. Damages were laid at £500. Defendant pleaded not guilty.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff with damages £350.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring.)

APPLICATION FOR BAIL.

The King v Brown.

Mr. R. H. Levien (agent for Mr. R. J. O'Halloran, of Tamworth) appeared for Henry Brown, who was committed for trial from the Coroner's Court, Tamworth, on April 23, on a charge of murdering W. A. Welbourne, and applied for bail, pending the hearing of the charge. Mr. D'Arcy Irvine, of the Crown Law Offices, appeared for the Crown.

Bail allowed accused in £500, and two sureties of £250, or one of £500.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Docker.)

A DISPUTED AGREEMENT.

Robinson and another v Wilson.

Mr. Blacket, instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. Beehag and Simpson (agents for Mr. J. J. Reeder, of Balmain), for the defendant. This was an action brought by James Robinson and Percy Sykes Marshall, trading as Robinson and Marshall, of Kent-street, Sydney, paper stock merchants, against Alfred Wilson, of Little Edward-street, Balmain East, to recover £300 for alleged breach of contract, and £95 15s 8d, amount paid to the defendant for certain bales of rope and sail canvas. Plaintiffs' case was that they bought from defendant 36 bales of solid Manila rope and five bales of sail canvas for £95 15s 8d, but they affirmed that the goods were of defective quality. They also said that they had expended money in vainly endeavouring to sell the goods to a client, who afterwards withdrew his regular custom from them, and that their general reputation had been injured. The defence was that there had been no breach of agreement, and that defendant did not give any warranty with the goods sold by him.

Verdict for the plaintiffs £45.

(Before Mr. Salusbury, Acting Registrar.)

CREDITORS' PETITIONS.

William Burns v Frederick William Probst. Mr. L. M. Mansfield appeared for the judgment debtor, and applied for an adjournment, and put in a letter in which it was intimated that the matter was before the Court in Germany. Mr. W. D. Schrader appeared for the petitioning creditor, and consented. Hearing adjourned to June 26.

A. E. Collins, Ltd., v Edmund Burdett. On the application of Mr. Weaver, who appeared for the petitioning creditors, an order of sequestration was made, and Mr. Lloyd was appointed official assignee.

PROBATE JURISDICTION.

The following probates and administrations have been granted by the Registrar:—

Probates.—Henry Tozer, James Curtis, William Davis, James Charles Jones, John Donnelly, Thomas Watson, John Jones, James Aloysius Callachor, Rhys Hamryn Jones, Peter Richard Snelson, Emmeline Mary D. Wooley, Alfred Harris, Ann Hills, Henry David Carter, Ann Burns Langley, Martha Gow, Egbert Pryor, Owen Williams, Patrick M'Coy, Michael M'Mahon, George Adamson, John Cochrane Remington, James Morris, Robert Ferguson, William Hicks, Sophia Schintler, Henry Whittaker, George Miller, James Olds, William James Lind, Frederick Reid, Phoebe Lang, Mary Howard, Mary Ann Lloyd, Adam Smart, James Redmond Clifford, John Grace, Robert Oliver Lord, Percy Albert John Viles, Colin Bleazard, Adam Cuppage Haldane, Maria Isabella Carberry, Josias Moffatt, Reuben Basely, John James Wood, James Pulham, George Munday, James Gordon, Thomas Lochrin, Elizabeth White, Patrick Hill, James Cowley, John Larkin, James Haslem, John Black, Ann Jeanes, Cuthbert Reaveley, Henry Theobald, William Somerville, John Ironmonger, Abraham M. Parks.

Administrations.—Norah Flynn, William Ward, John Bell, Jeremiah Joseph Curley, Annie Courtman, Henry Middleton, Thomas Hinds, Clara Waugh, Fanny Wright, Arthur Caldwell Sawtell, Gertrude Sophia Carpenter, Arthur John Whittaker, Alfred Little, Sidney Myers, Susan M'Guinn, Ellen M'Guinn, Joseph Allen, William D. Evans, Frederick James Bull, Alexander M'Donald, Nina Nerida Ivy Walsh.

ARBITRATION COURT.

(Before Judge Heydon (President) and Messrs. T. E. Spencer and E. Riley, members.)

THE SAWMILL DISPUTE.

The hearing of the claims of the New South Wales Sawmill and Timber Yard Employees' Association against the Kauri Timber Company, Limited, was continued.

Mr. Croft appeared for the claimant union, and Mr. Broomfield, instructed by Messrs. Mark Mitchell and Forsyth, for the respondents.

Mr. James Sutch, member of the Victorian Wages Board, gave evidence with regard to conditions in Victoria.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Rogers and a jury.)

Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

CHARGE OF ASSAULT.

Walter Stevens, Thomas Lang, Wilfred Ernest Farran, Robert John M'Kay, and Nathaniel Dedden, who were defended by Mr. R. H. Levien, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault on a woman at Mosman, on December 3 last.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty against Stevens and Lang, and acquitted the other three. In a rider the convicted persons were strongly recommended to mercy, on the ground of the youth of the prisoners and the drunken state of the woman. Sentence was deferred until Monday.

NEW INDUSTRIAL COURT.

CONGRATULATORY REFERENCES.

APPEAL FOR A FAIR TRIAL.

When the Arbitration Court met yesterday Mr. Broomfield rose, on behalf of the Bar, to congratulate the President, Judge Heydon, and the State on his appointment to the office of the New Industrial Court. Every member of the profession who had had the pleasure of practising before his Honor could bear very strong testimony, he said, to his Honor's great ability and unfailing courtesy, tact, and patience in administering justice in this Court.

Mr. Mitchell, representing the solicitors, and Mr. H. Johns, on behalf of the laymen, also congratulated his Honor.

The President was very much obliged for the kind expressions made use of in congratulating him on his appointment. He felt the offer of that position was a very high compliment indeed, because the powers given to the Judge of the new Court were so great and so unusual as to make it clear that the reliance is placed upon the personal qualities of the holder of the position. He was under no control. As Mr. Broomfield had remarked, the power of applying for a prohibition against his findings and orders was taken away; he had practical judicial work to do, also appellate judicial work, and from his acts in neither of those capacities was there any appeal at all. One could not help realising the great responsibility on those who had the clothing of any Court with such powers, and for that reason he felt it a compliment almost overwhelming when it came upon him to realise that he was thought to be a person who could be entrusted with such a unique position. There was one thing he would like to say, that he felt that a heavier burden will be laid upon him in the new Court than in the old one, by reason of the fact that he should be sitting alone—except, of course, so far as he would be assisted by skilled assessors qualified to advise the Court as to the technical aspects of the cases that come before it. In many ways the Court had been assisted by the members, the representatives of the employers and employees who have formed part of it. He had had experience of two such representatives on each side, and could speak feelingly of the assistance they had given him. He would like to say one word, which, he hoped, would be taken in good part —not as interfering at all. He did not want to interfere in anything outside his sphere, but he could not help seeing, in common with everyone in the community, that the industrial classes were hesitating as to whether they could wisely or safely embark upon the experiment of accepting the new Act. If they would allow him to say a word to them in the kindest possible feeling and spirit, he would venture to urge them to give the Act a trial, not to condemn it without trying it. What steps it might be considered advisable to take in the way of protesting against its provisions could be taken later on as well as now, and could be taken with more force if experience showed that they worked mischief, than could be taken now when the whole thing rested in apprehension and anticipation. The fears which were felt might turn out to be unfounded. What he should like to emphasise was this circumstance, that the present Act was one, the success or failure of which must depend very largely upon the manner in which it was administered. It followed, from the fact that unusual powers were given to the Court, that the success or failure of the Act must depend very much upon the way in which those powers were exercised; that is to say, upon the manner in which it was administrated. And the administration (he was only stating a fact which anyone who read the Act could see) must be largely in his hands. That great trust had been reposed in him. He did not appeal to any member of the community to accept an Act out of confidence in him; everyone would form his own opinion about these matters, but why not wait? This much he could say, that by consideration of the views and interests of both sides, and the community and everybody concerned, as far as he could make this Act a useful instrument for the settlement of industrial disputes and difficulties he would. He would spare no pains on his part to try to bring that about. He was not so sanguine as to hope that this Act alone could relieve everybody else of trouble in these matters of industrial disputes; it would only be a useful instrument—a very valuable instrument, perhaps—that would depend upon the way it was administered, but only one. There would still be necessary on the part of the members of the community, wisdom, forbearance, consideration for each other's wishes and rights, readiness to meet and discuss, and all those other pieces of machinery by which the social and industrial life of the community was carried on without too much friction and without too much loss and trouble. He sincerely hoped, and he trusted his remarks would not be taken in bad part, that the industrial classes would see their way to give this Act a trial, and condemn it not unheard, but if they condemn it at all only after it has been tried and found guilty.

Mr. Spencer was the first yesterday to have the opportunity of congratulating the President on the offer of the appointment to the position. He had had the honour to sit with two Judges—Mr. Justice Street and the President—and he took this opportunity of acknowledging the uniform courtesy, patience, and consideration which had always been given by both Mr. Justice Street and the President. No selection could have been made in the community which would give more widespread satisfaction than the selection of his Honor to the position of Judge of the new Arbitration Court.

Mr. Riley also ventured a few words of congratulation to his Honor. He might state that while he had had the honour of sitting with his Honor, now for over two and a half years, and while they had had very strong differences of opinion in camera on certain matters, yet there was always the best of feeling amongst the members of the Court. He hoped the new Act would prove as useful as the present Act, and that it would do as much good as the present Act had done. The new Act was a new departure as far as the industrial classes were concerned, and they certainly had not the same confidence in it that they had in the Arbitration Act. That might wear off—it all depended on the administration, and the first two or three decisions given by the new Court.

ARE CIGARETTES REFRESHMENTS?

RAILWAY REFRESHMENT-ROOMS.

In Chambers yesterday, before Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Rolin, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett (Crown Solicitor), appeared for Sub-inspector Thomas Kelly, the appellant in a special case, stated by Mr. G. N. Payten, S.M., for the opinion of the Court. Mr. Lamb, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared for the respondent, Philip Hart, in support of the finding of the magistrate. It appeared from the special case that Hart, trading at the refreshment-rooms, Sydney Railway Station, was charged with having on Sunday, March 29, sold cigarettes. Defendant pleaded not guilty, and upon the close of the evidence Mr. Russell submitted, among other objections, that the Sunday trading section of the Police Offences Act, 1901, did not bind the Crown, and that as the Commissioners were the Crown, persons leasing from them were authorised to do what the Commissioners could do; also that the Railway Act of 1901 impliedly repeals the Sunday sections of the Police Offences Act. The magistrate, on the 6th instant, dismissed the information, and complainant now appealed.

Mr. Lamb said that as the matter was one of importance to persons in the position of respondent, he asked that it should be referred to the Full Court. The question whether a lessee of a railway refreshment-room could sell tobacco or cigarettes on Sunday was important to every lessee under the Commissioners. If the complainant succeeded it meant that the public could not get refreshments at railway-rooms on Sundays.

His Honor: Do you mean that lessees could not sell sandwiches or tea?

Mr. Lamb: I say advisedly that if the Sunday trading section of the Act apply to the Railway Commissioners' rooms in Sydney, it simply means that, as far as the Commissioners or their lessees are concerned, they will not be able to sell sandwiches or a cup of tea on Sunday, because they will be liable; and as the matter involves the serious constitutional point whether the Act binds the Commissioners or their assigns, it should be decided by the Full Court.

Mr. Rolin: I do not think it follows that if your Honor found the magistrate to be wrong, the Commissioners or their lessees could not sell sandwiches, tea, or other refreshments; but there is a difference between selling sandwiches or a cup of tea, etc., and tobacco and cigarettes.

His Honor: That is the difficulty that occurred to me when I read the special case.

Mr. Rolin: It may be that if tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes come under the general head of "refreshments," your Honor's decision would go to the whole question.

His Honor: Putting aside the question of cigars, cigarettes, or tobacco, and considering only the point as to selling sandwiches, etc., is that trading on Sunday?

Mr. Rolin: I submit that the Railway Commissioners have only power to lease the refreshment-rooms, and that is the distinction.

His Honor: That would leave the Sunday question still open. Perhaps I had better refer the matter to the Full Court. In any case, there would probably be an appeal to the High Court.

Order accordingly.

LOCAL OPTION COURT.

Judge Backhouse (President), and Messrs. Smithers and Macfarlane, S.Ms., sat in the Local Option Court and heard argument on the evidence taken in regard to the reduction of licenses in the electorate of St. Leonards. This having concluded the Court adjourned.

AMERICANS AND BRITISH.

SOME PLEASANT MEMORIES.

BRITISH FLEET AT NEW YORK.

MAGNIFICENT YANKEE RECEPTION.

To Mr. Alexander Knox are we indebted for a description of the official visit to New York, on November 8, 1905, of the British Atlantic battle fleet, commanded by Prince Louis of Battenberg. Mr. Knox was in New York at the time, and as the guest of the New York Chamber of Commerce had exceptional opportunities of taking part in the festivities.

A British man-of-war had not been in the Hudson River since the rebellion in 1776, and the British fleet's arrival tightened the grip of friendship between the two nations in a manner that astonished the world. Soldiers, sailors, and citizens vied with each other in extending a magnificent welcome to the visitors. Blood was thicker than water. What diplomacy had failed to do kinship found a way to accomplish.

With the fleet's arrival began the festivities; but preparations for its reception had been commenced months before. New York Harbour and the city streets were a blaze of colour. Every American ship flew a British flag, and the British lion looked forth proudly from every place of prominence. Miles of coloured bunting were strung across the streets from building to building; and numerous arches emphasising the national welcome met the eye at different points.

Fighting Bob, as the American people dearly love to call their Admiral, went out with his Atlantic squadron to meet the British fleet. The Yankee guns roared a giant salute, and Yankee tars yelled themselves hoarse as the two fleets came within call. British tars responded, amid the flashes and thunder of the cannon. Then came the escort into New York Harbour. The scene presented features of splendour never to be forgotten. From the spectacular standpoint it was magnificent; but the spectacular was relegated to second place by the picture of strength which the combined fleets furnished. Immense crowds, delirious with excitement and admiration, watched the vessels steam into New York Harbour. The great ships under skilful hands were manoeuvred into a single line of 42 units, which reached from 42nd street to 123rd street—a distance of about five miles. Formidable, indeed, this array of battleships looked; and people unconsciously asked themselves what combination of Powers would dare face the sea strength of these two nations in their full might?

The visiting crews upon landing were accorded a tremendous ovation. The Americans were determined to do the thing properly. They were demonstrating to the world that the interests of a cousin oversea were largely bound up in theirs; and all their Yankee enthusiasm was stirred up for the occasion. Even the anti-British section of the community overcame its misgivings and joined in the general felicity. So pronounced was this fact that a prominent American, Major-General Hamilton, paused amid the celebrations to remark that had such a profusion of British flags been displayed before the Spanish-American war all the troops in the United States would have been needed to quell the resulting riots.

The visitors were at once taken in hand and treated to a round of gaiety. The celebrations committee took the view that the visitors, being sailors, would like to get away from the sea for a bit. Aquatics were, therefore, barred. All the entertainments were on shore. The fun was fast and furious while it lasted. Banquets and theatre parties, sports and excursions, suppers and athletic contests succeeded each other in endless variety. The sailors were in a little heaven for the time being, and breathed only by accident. A feature of the athletics was a fight between the best amateur British tar and the best amateur American tar. The contest took place in the presence of a great crowd, and the Briton won.

Each succeeding phase of the celebrations eclipsed its predecessor. As the evening shadows blotted out the first day innumerable coloured lights began to twinkle throughout the city. Miles of Chinese lanterns replaced the miles of bunting. Every large building was converted into an enchanted palace. The British and American coats of arms blazed forth in electricity at given points along the streets; and stray fire balloons lit up crowds of humanity, thick as flies, viewing the illuminations from the highest points of the tallest buildings in the world. Occasionally rockets burst in the clouds, shedding fresh colours on the gorgeous scene.

But it was for the next day and night, the King's birthday, that the Americans reserved the highest honour; and the co-operation of the British fleet was sought to make the occasion memorable. The combined fleets were clothed with all the holiday garb they could carry during the day; flags were interchanged, salutes fired, and friendly greetings signalled. The smallest craft that plied on the Hudson River carried a British flag. At night the entire five miles of battleships were suddenly lit up from stem to stern by electricity. The picture wiped out memories of the best ever seen in New York. Its grandeur dazzled the eyes. The city illuminations paled before this. Exclamations of approval came from the dense crowds on shore, as the massed bands of the two fleets, at a given signal, burst forth in the British National Anthem. It was the crowning act of goodwill. The crowds cheered in a frenzy of excitement, and as the last notes died out countless American citizens took up the refrain again.

In the midst of these jubilations Prince Louis of Battenberg mounted to the roof of the "New York Times" office, the highest building in the city. And there, gazing on the whole scene of unparalleled magnificence, sent the following Marconigram to the British Government: "The days are too short to absorb the magnificent hospitality of the American people."

It now remains to be told what the American sailors themselves did to entertain their English cousins. They, of their own free will, established a self-denial fund six months before the British came. Into this fund each American tar placed something weekly out of his pay. In six months they saved over £800. They secured Coney Island free of charge, and made ready for a merry time. The British sailors were taken there shoulders high, and restricted riotous living was indulged in while the money lasted—two days. All sorts of games and sports were indulged in, and each day was a "love-feast" day. Suffice it to say that 400 barrels of American and English beer were consumed in the two days. Before the proceedings terminated the two admirals, "Fighting Bob" and Prince Louis of Battenberg, were the guests of the men. This dinner led to a pretty interchange of compliments between the men and their commanders. The men paid their chiefs the compliment of placing before them champagne in which to drink the toasts. At that table alone was there champagne. The Admirals refused to uncork the bottles, and drank the toasts in English and American beer.

During the festivities the sailors of the two fleets became fast friends. They were quite ready at the finish to fight or die for one another. They roamed the streets in pairs.

The whole thing ended in an amusing escapade, which was viewed with a lenient official eye. During the night the tars changed clothes. When they came into the city next day it was impossible to tell which was which. British and Americans were mixed, and only the men themselves could solve the riddle. They were eventually sorted out, and drafted back to their respective ships; and a few days later the Britons left the port amid the thunderous salutes of the whole American line, carrying back with them to England the pleasantest memories of their lives.

THE LIVER.

(By "Hepa.")

The liver is one of the most sensitive and most easily deranged organs of the human body. It is easily affected by changes of temperature, sudden chills, alcoholic intemperance, overfeeding, or tropical heat.

The following are symptoms which indicate that the liver is not properly doing its work. Many of these symptoms will be recognised as pertaining to a condition generally known as biliousness—a sour stomach, coated, swollen tongue, fatty covering on the eyeballs, bitter, sour, or oily taste in the mouth, frontal headache, ready susceptibility to chills, constant ache midway down the spine, great depression of the spirits without known cause, tenderness and puffiness under right lung, disposition to diarrhoea, flushed face, drowsiness, especially after meals, burning ears, coldness of hands and feet, sick headache, irritable skin, pimples and eruptions, disposition to be awake the latter half of the night, and terrible dreams, constipated bowels, dizziness, dyspeptic condition, irritability of disposition, blurring of the vision, as if specks were floating before the eyes, shooting pain in left breast, and dull pain under right shoulder, no appetite sometimes and ravenous at others, tickling sensation in the throat, causing a cough after an acid eructation from the stomach.

Persons who recognise in the foregoing list symptoms from which they may be suffering should at once determine to take a course of Warner's Safe Cure, a medicine which is a specific cure for liver derangements. The remarkable curative effect of Warner's Safe Cure in liver and kidney disorders has been demonstrated for more than 30 years, and there is no necessity for anyone to endure suffering when relief is so readily obtainable.

In addition to the regular 5s and 2s 6d bottles of Warner's Safe Cure, a concentrated form of the medicine is now issued at 2s 6d per bottle. Warner's Safe Cure (Concentrated) is not compounded with alcohol, and contains the same number of doses as the 5s bottle of Warner's Safe Cure.—Advt.

ENGLISH AGENCY.—The Undersigned, established in London upwards of 40 years, confine themselves exclusively to a General Commission Business, are well acquainted with Australian requirements, and possess special facilities for purchasing goods to the best advantage in the English and Continental Markets.

Indents should be accompanied by cash remittances or bank letters of credit to ensure full trade discounts. Account sales of produce under consignment rendered promptly, and net proceeds remitted or invested to order.

The shipping department has been largely developed of late years, and where indents are sent direct to manufacturers the shipment and insurance of the goods are effected upon the most favourable terms.

LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY HENRY W. LUCY.)

Ministerial Rumours—The King and the German Emperor's Letter—New Field Guns—The President of the Royal Academy—Vivisection.

WESTMINSTER, March 20.

On Sunday last "Reynolds' Journal" provided its readers with breakfast relish by circumstantial announcement of a reconstruction of the Ministry. Estimable in other respects, this long-established paper is not generally regarded as an authority on political affairs, much less as a purveyor of Cabinet secrets. The announcement fell somewhat flat, but on Wednesday it was "conveyed," as the wise call it, to the columns of the "Daily Telegraph," being presented as news at first hand.

Obviously no reconstruction of the Ministry would be contemplated in existing circumstances. There is too much reason to fear that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman will not be able to return to the Parliamentary arena or to resume active participation in political controversy. Certainly whilst he is to the fore, the constitution of the Ministry will be unaltered. Mr. Asquith's reversion to the post of Prime Minister, whenever it shall be vacated, is uncontested. Whether, following an example set by Mr. Gladstone, he will also retain office as Chancellor of the Exchequer, is a question that remains to be settled when the alternative presents itself. The probabilities are that he will content himself with the absorbing work of leadership of the House; that Mr. Lloyd-George will succeed him at the Treasury; and that Mr. Winston Churchill will go to the Board of Trade, with a seat in the Cabinet. These are only probabilities, since at the moment nothing has been definitely settled in the direction of Ministerial changes. But, considered as probabilities, they are exceedingly strong. The rest of the "Daily Telegraph" story is merely rehash of a hash.

It is a striking illustration of the divinity that doth hedge about a king that Lord Tweedmouth, in his statement in the House of Lords with respect to the letter addressed to him by the German Emperor, withheld a circumstance that would greatly have strengthened his present position. He mentioned that on receipt of the missive he had shown it to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, but he did not add that he had also submitted it to his Majesty, who saw nothing sinister in the incident, or any reason why the First Lord of the Admiralty, having in his private capacity received a personal communication from a foreign Sovereign, should not reply in the ordinary course of post. This self-sacrificing reticence is in accordance with the wholesome constitutional rule that forbids the introduction of the name of the Sovereign into Parliamentary debate or political controversy.

Thirty-two years ago a breach of the rule brought Robert Lowe into some difficulty. During the controversy that ranged round the Royal Titles Bill introduced and carried by Disraeli, Lowe, speaking at Retford, declared that two Prime Ministers, predecessors of Disraeli, had been asked to bring in a bill making the Queen Empress of India, and had declined. The matter being brought under the notice of the House, Disraeli, by odd mischance, erred on the very charge upon which Lowe was arraigned. He was proceeding to cite the testimony of Queen Victoria as to the truth or otherwise of Lowe's statement, when he was interrupted by loud cries of "Order!" The Speaker, interposing, reminded the Premier that the Standing Orders prohibited the introduction of the Sovereign's name in debate. "Dizzy," whilst submitting to the ruling of the chair, deftly carried his point. He merely desired, he said, to say that the Queen had authorised him to state that with no Minister at any time had such circumstances happened as were alleged by Lowe.

Star Chamber Court, site of a building which once played an important part in English history, has this week, like Linden, "seen another sight." Amongst the many reforms in connection with the army introduced since he took charge of it, Mr. Haldane is pardonably proud of the conversion of the 15-pounder field gun. This was the arm the late Government largely supplied to the troops engaged in the South African war. It fired as much as five rounds a minute, it and its hapless gunners being blown off the field, or out of trenches, by the newer guns of the Boers, shipped to the Transvaal in pianoforte cases under the nose of unsuspecting British Customs-house officers at Capetown and Durban. A hopeless legacy connected with a discredited Administration and a disastrous war, these guns have long been "scrapped," as if they were effete battleships or cruisers. Some ingenious mind at Woolwich discovered possibilities of converting them into quick-firers. By Mr. Haldane's directions a couple of guns were brought up from Woolwich and parked in Star Chamber Court. One was the old 15-pounder of the Boer war; the other the converted gun, a smart, handy field-piece capable of firing eleven rounds a minute at a range of from 1000 to 1500 yards.

As compared with the old gun, it is more than twice as effective. But it is itself outclassed by later armaments built without embarrassing conditions inseparable from old models. The new 18-pounder field gun, the latest result of civilisation, will fire 21 rounds per minute, carrying a heavier shell to a further range. This is supplied to the regular army, the converted 15-pounders being allotted to the use of the territorial forces. This is the crux of Lord Roberts' speech in debate on the condition of the army, which created a profound sensation. He points out that the foreign invader when he comes will not bring with him 15-pounder field guns, even though converted. These in the hands of the territorial army will be confronted by artillery of the very latest development, and there will be over again in more vital circumstances the old story of the British field guns and the Boer pom-poms. During the stay of the two 15-pounders in Star Chamber Court they were surrounded by groups of members regarding them with interest more or less intelligent. "No use at all," said a city tea merchant, prominent in debate behind the Front Opposition Bench. "The territorial forces should have the 18-pounders at once." "So they shall," said a smiling Minister. "If you will get the taxpayer to find the money."

Everyone will be sorry to hear that Sir Edward Poynter's long trouble with his eyesight has reached a stage that precludes expectation of further work from his brush. According to report current in Academy circles, it is likely to have a striking effect upon the forthcoming Royal Academy dinner. The president, in accordance with practice followed by Sir Frederick Leighton and other predecessors in his office, has been accustomed to write out his speeches, and more or less openly read from the manuscript. As Sir Edward Poynter is not able to read even a printed page, it will be impossible for him to perform the ordered function. He might, of course, depute the work to a colleague. But that is a procedure that would considerably detract from the success of the gathering. The alternative is to hold the banquet as usual, and leave out the speeches. It is understood that the proposal having been submitted to the Prince of Wales, who will be the guest of the evening, has met with warm approval. His Royal Highness has a rooted dislike for after-dinner oratory, and would gladly accept release from the duty.

When the Royal Commission dealing with experiments on animals was appointed, a meeting was held of delegates of scientific medical societies to consider the matter. The consequence was the formation of a committee charged with the duty of collating and presenting to the Royal Commission evidence as to the value and necessity of vivisection work. This duty accomplished, the committee was dissolved. But before separating it was decided to form a society charged with the mission of making generally known the facts about experiments on animals, in the hope that a fuller appreciation by the public of their service to mankind would counteract organised opposition. The scheme meeting with warm encouragement among eminent men of science, the Research Defence Society has been formed under the presidency of Lord Cromer. Amongst vice-presidents are Lord Avebury, Sir William Anson, the Dean of Canterbury, Lord Robert Cecil, Sir James Crichton-Browne, Mr. Walter Long, the Bishop of Oxford, Lord Strathcona, Sir Frederick Treves, and Mr. Sydney Holland, whose work as chairman of the London Hospital has brought him into close touch with the question at issue. The society proposes to give information to all inquirers, to publish articles, to supply speakers for debates, and to assist all who desire to examine the arguments in favour of vivisection.

THE GREAT CRUISE.

TO VISIT AUSTRALIA.

VALUE OF THE DEMONSTRATION.

NEW YORK, March 22.

The fleet, in four divisions of four battleships abreast, steamed to its anchorage in Maddalena Bay, Lower California, two days ahead of schedule time, and "Ready," as reported by Admiral Evans to the President, "at a moment's notice to begin shooting at the targets, to go out to sea and fight a battle, or to keep on with the cruise." There had been no mishap during the voyage, even of a trivial kind, and the machinery was in much smoother working order than at the start, owing, no doubt, to the continual presence of line officers in the engine-rooms, and their perfect familiarity with the actual details of operation—even such humble matters as firing, oiling, and cleaning. Before setting out the minutest incidental possibilities had been provided for; and every man knew that a blunder would always be remembered against him. Potatoes ran out at Callao, but of the million pounds of fresh meat taken on board, one-fifth reached Maddalena uneaten. The day following arrival practice firing began, and will last three weeks, the Atlantic gunners, as is reported, to be coached by the men of the Pacific squadron (who have just completed their regular annual practice) as to local conditions of atmosphere and sea. The crack Pacific cruiser, the Maryland, in the recent final test made a record of 78.89 hits out of a possible 100 with all classes of guns, and the Atlantic gunners can hardly hope to do better.

The indirect gains from this successful experiment have been greater than was even hoped for, and have led to an almost-compelled extension of the original plan. South America is glowing with Pan-American enthusiasm; and the special services in southern cathedrals for the benefit of the Catholic American Jackies (of whom there are at least 1500 in the fleet) have opened out a new line of contact. At Rio, nearly 1100 attended mass in a body, and the Archbishop not only gave them and the fleet his special blessing, but also sent an open letter to Admiral Evans commending all the men, regardless of faith, for their orderly and self-respecting conduct while on shore leave. After that, naturally, at the other stopping places the men had to live up to their record, and seem to have left only pleasant memories behind them. The Japanese ambassador, whose unprovoked brusqueness nine months ago towards the President was perhaps the real beginning point of the idea of concentrating the fleet and showing what it could do, has gone home, and is replaced by an old friend of America, pre-eminently persona grata, and the coolie emigration question is in a fair way of amicable settlement. Even in Congress there is hardly to be heard an irritant word against either Japan or Great Britain; and the appropriations committee have cut down the estimates for fortifications from 30 to 8 millions, avowedly because Japan might look upon the larger plans as a sign of distrust. And as a final mark of confidence the fleet, instead of staying in the Pacific until next year, or even longer, is not only to visit Hawaii and Samoa, but has accepted the kindly invitation of our Australian cousins, and in September next will steam past George's Head to the stations assigned for them in Sydney Harbour. Melbourne will also be visited, and then comes a run to Manila, whence, in whole or in part, the fleet may possibly go to Japan. And, if deemed wise—and if, meanwhile, enough more ships have been mustered at San Francisco to equal any other single fleet in the Pacific, or nearly that—the entire armada may go home by way of Suez. That would indeed be a circumnavigation of the globe—in all, a 42,000 mile cruise.

THE OBJECT OF THE CRUISE.

The main object of the cruise has from the beginning been to give notice to the world that at any cost peace and order must be maintained in that ocean which, as most Americans believe, will be the theatre of greatest activity during the next coming centuries. The lands bordering on its shores all have unique products; and commerce thrives more by an exchange of unlike things than by a rivalry in making like-things cheapest. When American raw cotton and iron, and Japanese bambooware and porcelains, and teas are traded off, one for the other, each man gets rid of what he could not use up entirely himself for a something which for himself he could not produce at all. Hardwoods, coal, spices, fragrant oils, and a thousand other specialties offer themselves one for the other, and a vessel might easily make a round of the Pacific, and load and unload part of her cargo at half a dozen several ports, getting back home still with a full cargo, but with not a pound left of that she started with. To develop such stores of mutual wealth, there must be political security, a stern repression of all forms of predatory enterprise, and a recognition among all the Pacific States that "an injury to one is the concern of all." Whenever it is safe to do so, this country has pledged itself to give the Philippines self-government, and as was the case with Cuba, every effort will be made to hasten that day of independence. As earnest of a sense of duty, too, two-thirds of the indemnity which China agreed to pay the United States has been voluntarily remitted—11,000,000dol. being accepted as full payment of 29,000,000—simply because in American eyes the rest of the money was mere blackmail. For all American countries, absolute arbitration—enforced peace—is within plain sight; it actually now exists by an agreement just concluded between Mexico, the five Central American States, and Washington, as to all North America up to the Canadian frontier; and very soon—perhaps next year—a like compact may take in all or nearly all South American States as well. And it is hardly conceivable that the lands on the other three sides of the Pacific could long resist the attraction of the advantages offered by a similar agreement. These things sound Utopian, perhaps, and possibly may at first achieve only a partial success, but when one looks back at what the Americans are now and what they were only 10 years ago, the contrast is seen to be plainly a promise of an infinitely happier future. The good time coming has almost come.

DEWEY'S VIEWS.

But the President and Admiral Dewey, and most even of the "plain people" know that the price of all this is to raise the navy to whatever strength is found to be necessary. Dewey, in a carefully prepared "official" interview, has just given his views as follows:—

The limits that have been set for the United States Navy do not contemplate preparation to meet two nations, but only a single one; this, however, includes any one. The most casual study of the policy thus required will reveal the necessity for having two battle fleets, one in the Atlantic and one in the Pacific, each adequate to cope with any situation that may quickly arise in its own region. This does not mean half a fleet in the Atlantic and half a fleet in the Pacific, the halves liable to destruction one at a time by any enemy far inferior to the combined fleet—the prime cause of Russia's recent defeat. It does not mean a fleet of proper size in the Atlantic and no fleet at all in the Pacific; nor a proper fleet in the Pacific and none in the Atlantic.

Despite the inspiring example we are having to-day of our ability to move 16 battleships from one to the other ocean with a certainty and precision that marks an era in naval achievement, if war breaks out with our fleet in the wrong ocean an enemy could have uninterrupted sway for a period of months while the fleet was being transferred, during which time the damage wrought might be irreparable. We must have an adequate fleet, with all that that means, in each of the widely-separated regions where an attack is a possibility.

Congress had cut down the naval estimates for the year to two instead of four great battleships. Possibly also—one might say probably—a first instalment of a Shipping Subsidy Bill may also be passed. During the last year seven of the 15 American mail steamers in the Pacific were withdrawn; and it is now therefore a ludicrous fact that for every surviving mail steamer there is a possible convoy of two first-class battleships. The quarrel between shipowners and Congress about mail steamers really hinges on the question of speed. Congress insists that in order to earn the full subsidy a ship shall average 20 knots an hour, but on some Pacific routes such speed is unprofitable, and the lower subsidies—2dol for 16 knots, 1dol for 14 knots, and 66 cents for 12 knots—instead of 4dol for 20 knots, fail to be attractive. But it is now proposed that on routes longer than 4000 miles—that is, to Brazil, Argentina, Australia, and China—16 knots shall earn the 4dol full rate; and this will come to a vote before adjournment in May or June.

PICTURES OF TRAVEL.

IV.

(BY W. MOGFORD HAMLET.)

Don Dorrigo Carbonera makes a fine sonorous mouthful of a name, which, if not exactly suggestive of "Castles in Spain," may nevertheless be here used in respect of the brave toilers and workers up on the Dorrigo; for whatever their intended careers may have been, they now at least appear to be, one and all, veritable timber-cutters and charcoal-burners, every man wielding his axe and firestick to some purpose.

Nowhere else will you see such a desolating display of blackened and half carbonised timber, such gaunt hollow stumps, the mere dead shells of the old-time forest trees, their sombre ebony logs lying about all over the newly fenced paddocks in obstructive confusion, all telling of the settlers' dogged determination to clear the land at all costs.

The Dorrigo is the newest of lands, the Dorrigo is the oldest of lands, for now, after the lapse of many millennia, it beckons the white man to come up here and settle on the land; to come and find a dwelling place for wife and weans; to come and sow; to come and produce; aye, and to reap, and in due time to partake of the kindly fruits of the earth. Its motto and watchword might very properly be: "I rise, I emerge." Man is on the land, and look! what a goodly heritage is here awaiting him. Well-watered deep red rich soil, with the whole countryside filled with such a vast array of tall trees that one could hardly have conceived standing room for any more. The Dorrigo is a new land just being opened up, literally indeed, now being opened up; for until recently it was a sportsman's paradise, wild with game, covered and enclosed with dense forest vegetation, including some of the finest and noblest specimens of giant cedar trees, and the timber-getters, while searching after cedar, were really the pioneers and discoverers of this very fine district.

The signs of newness and business-like enterprise are everywhere apparent, new roads, new houses, tents, humpies, and all sorts of temporary shelter. Here you will see trees that were only felled yesterday, with their clean white chips still littering the soil, alongside of makeshift stores and unfinished hotels; banks that seem to have been established but a few weeks ago, all of clean weatherboard, just fresh from the carpenters' plane and chisel, with not yet so much as a coat of paint on their virgin walls, all plainly indicating that the Dorrigo is a great working reality with a future before it.

Where axe and muscle, toil and pluck,
Must win the day and bring good luck.

One can foresee the picture of the Dorrigo of by-and-bye. There will be the same lovely Australian blue sky with a foreground of bright vernal tints, due to the fresh growing crops, changing to the warmer hue as harvest approaches, comely orchards laden with fruit, and the white rose-entwined farmhouses, the landscape intersected with its bright red roads whose mud will then, as now, still cling to boots and buggy wheels, while here and there, let us hope, some of the forest trees may be still left standing like sparse sentinels of the past, whereon the kookooburra may perch and laugh at the changed and civilised land.

Meanwhile, the men of Dorrigo are bent on butter and cream, the only paper they want is in the form of banknotes. Perhaps I am too hasty in saying this is their only want. I remember hearing them say they want a road completed from Wild Cattle Creek to Coff's Harbour, and an electric telegraph connecting up the Dorrigo with the main system, surely a reasonable request for this young community, and one hopes that the Commonwealth will grant it if only for the common wealth.

Before leaving for the Bellinger I walked out a few miles to a farm away in the bush to see some young men who had started farming for themselves, a pair of stalwart sons of Sydney, who had but recently settled on the land. The time selected for my visit was not that of the orthodox town caller, but most decidedly in the forefront of the forenoon, namely, at the classical hour of six o'clock in the morning. Like Rosalind in the Forest of Arden, I found that my young friends had carved the trees, not with love sonnets, but with more or less convincing directions as to the locus in quo of their farm. Such woodcraft led me, after sundry stumblings and shinscratchings over immense logs, to their delightful selection of 200 acres on the hilltop, where I found their welcome slab hut or log house, with cowsheds, and cattle just about to be milked. Horses, cattle, crops, ploughs, and cream separator, together with a plentiful rich crop of grass and felled timber, all bespoke of real work and determination. Methought that a fine acorn of delights and many laborious days are their certain portion for some time to come, the simple life being well exemplified by the cheery manner they carry their cream on horseback to the neighbouring butter factory, hugging it like a huge tin baby, as their surefooted steed nimbly steps over the fallen logs on the way to market. A hearty ploughman's breakfast was despatched, and, bidding them good-bye, I walked into Dorrigo township and started off down the mountain towards the Bellinger.

Down from the Dorrigo plateau the traveller descends some 2000ft by a winding zig-zag road cut out from the sides of the mountain spurs. At every turn and contour of the route new and beautiful pictures present themselves, each one seeming more marvellous than the first, the whole 20-mile descent affording a panorama of loveliness such as few countries can surpass. On the right rises 50ft or more of frowning dioritic rock, topped with luxuriant shrubs and saplings, climbing plants growing up their moist sides, with here and there a little fountain or runnel of clear water issuing from a fern-clad cranny, streaming across the road to find its way down to the valley beneath. To the left is the deep abyss of the valley itself, and as you stand gazing downward you can look over the tops of tall trees. There they are, tree upon tree, with their rounded and fully shaped tops left untouched by the timber-cutter, all in their glory. Tier upon tier of massive timber as far as the eye can see, until the green foliage is lost in the purple and indigo tints of the far distance, all backed up by the bluest of blue mountains beyond. To the left, when descending, are the most fearful glens and gullies falling right away abruptly 500ft or more from the road level. So terrible is the drop that one stands aghast at what might happen in the event of a landslip, or the too near approach of a passing vehicle. I saw the spot where a waggon and team of horses fell over the precipice, and their blanched bones still tell of the disaster that befell them. 'Twas well that my journey was in the full blaze of daylight, for I would not have ventured down at night.

In the midst of the preponderating green of the forest I came in sight of several flame trees, which were in gorgeous full bloom, and towered above in striking contrast to their background of green. It is a splendid sight to see the true flame tree or Sterculia acerifolia in bloom, a tree which must not be confounded, as it often is, with the coral tree of Illawarra.

Very steep is the descent all the way down until you meet the clear rippling waters of the Bellinger, and the widening valley and slopes of rich pasturage, the river bringing floods and fertility down to the verdant alluvial flats now studded with farms and paddocks, from the upper reaches right away down to the sea coast. My arrival at the hotel at Bellingen, where I received more invitations than I could possibly accept, made a pleasant ending to a long summer's day. About 5 next morning I was away on the road to Bowraville, or Bowra, as it is called by the local residents. On the road I met with a novel and flattering experience, for as I drew near to a farm I noticed a man hard at work ploughing a fine broad paddock, apparently quite single-handed and alone. I halted and watched him making his straight and lengthening furrow with admiration. At the turning of the horses and plough the farmer stopped and asked a question or two of me, and to my surprise proposed that I should come and work for him. He said he would give me 9s a day if I cared to come and help him on the farm. Declining the offer as politely as I could, he shook his head and went on ploughing, while I know well what was passing in his mind. "Ah, well, like the rest of 'em. Don't want to work."

The next day at daylight I let myself out of the hotel at Bowra, and after a few hours' walk crossed the Nambucca, and came upon a deserted inn at Congarini, where I met a Mr. H., comfortably camped, occupying the kitchen and best bedroom. This gentleman invited me to breakfast, so after a swim in the river I joined him, and after rest and refreshment went on my way rejoicing, singing the Credo from Gounod's "Messe Solennelle."

Macksville and Mount Yarrahappini I pass undescribed, and arrive on that Sunday evening at a place called Unkya, hastening to a place of shelter just in time to escape a violent thunderstorm and its accompanying downpour of heavy rain. Unkya is an aboriginal name, and it is a test of your geographical knowledge to know how to pronounce it correctly. The sound is like erringi, the "g" being hard. While the thunderstorm raged without I found myself thrown upon a happy Australian home, the house being used also as a store and post-office combined. After making myself presentable, I took tea with the pater, mater, and grown up daughters with as much welcome freedom as though I had known them for months rather than minutes. A hearty convivial tea, with home-made bread, good butter, scones, cream, and new-laid eggs, made a pleasant prelude to a quiet Sunday evening, with its improvised church service, the occasional flashes of summer lightning continuing all night.

Barraganyatti, Clybucca, the great Macleay River, Kempsey, with its fine bridge, the Maria River, Telegraph Point, and the Hastings River are pictures that must pass by for want of space; but what a picture is quaint old Port Macquarie—brimful of historical associations. A charming picture is this forlorn old township, with its green hills, red soil, coastguard or signal station, ancient church, and grim old prison, empty and crumbling into decay. To my way of thinking, the old Port, as the name is abbreviated, is an ideal sanatorium, and perfect as a quiet holiday resort. One could spend many days and weeks here among its ruins. The legends and doings of the Innes family, the old-time military officers, the church with its many marble tablets and memorials. In the church may be seen a fine old pipe organ, one of 12 such instruments imported and presented by an Australian bishop, who thus stimulated and fostered the desire for true musical church service. I remember seeing one of these organs at Stroud, I think. However, the little organ here is by Walker, of London, and contains open and stopped diapasons, dulciana, flute, principal, and fifteenth, all on one manual, and is the type of village church organ for plain unpretentious church song, far and away above the ordinary squeaky instruments in vogue, and which can never be regarded as anything more than enlarged concertinas. At Port Macquarie I met Dr. Doudney, whom I knew in England when I was but a boy of 10, and strangely familiar it was to resume an acquaintance after the lapse of some 40 odd years.

A peep at Lake Innes, and then on towards Kew. The only incidents to be noted were that I saw a couple of men cutting down entire trees in order to get stag and elk horn ferns, and ship them off to Sydney, to be sold in the streets, and thus replenish the bushhouses in the suburbs. I also saw a fine black snake by the roadside, and it is not a little remarkable that this was the only snake I saw during the whole journey from Brisbane to Port Jackson. Near Kew I noticed the road and fingerpost pointing to Kendall and the Comboyne, said by travellers to be a second Dorrigo. Kendall is, of course, named after the poet, and much of his work was done in the neighbourhood. After Kew come Queen's Lake, Camden Haven, Coopernook, and the rich pasture lands of the Manning. Jones' Island, Ghinnie, Cundletown, and Taree must be passed over with but the bare mention of their extraordinary fertility, the whole district being simply idyllic, and is of itself a pastoral symphony of beauty.

THE WORLD'S PRESS.

The Marquis of Queensberry is one of the full-blooded opponents of the motor car. He says he has been waiting patiently for legislation to result from the report made by the Royal Commission on Motor Traffic. He has a list of twenty friends maimed by motors, and another list of twenty acquaintances who have killed their fellow-creatures by driving over them. "Should fatal injury result to any member of my family, I will take the law into my own hands," declared Lord Queensberry.

Botanists seem now agreed that the original shamrock associated with St. Patrick was not the three-leaved clover generally worn to-day, but the wood sorrel which was held in mystic veneration by the Druids, and, as Ruskin points out, has always been a favourite emblem in Christian art, both for sculptors and painters. The white, purple-stained flowers are believed by Welsh peasants to be the "fairy bells" whose merry peals ring the elves to their moonlight revelry. The wood sorrel strongly supports an "eight-hour day" for flowers, and opens her delicate petals only between 9 in the morning and 5 in the afternoon.

One of the new Paris police dogs, a mastiff named Lion, has arrested two railway thieves. He pulled one down from the van of a train which he was robbing, and caught the other one hiding beneath the train. The men broke away from the police who took them in charge, but Lion brought them back.

Two small boys threw a handful of Chinese snuff into the air in the elephant house at the New York Zoo, and soon all the visitors and keepers were sneezing violently. Next the trick elephant made a grimace and gave vent to a "catchoo" that shook the roof. The little elephants followed with sneezes worthy their size, while the rhinoceros exploded with a noise like a thunderstorm.

Canada has a national park. It is called the Algonquin National Park, is more than 40 miles square, and lies between the Georgian Bay and the Ottawa River, about 120 miles west of Ottawa. More than one-tenth of it consists of numerous small rivers and lakes, particularly intended for beavers and wildfowl. The moose and deer, that are fast becoming extinct elsewhere, have here found a safe home.

Lord Salvesen, in delivering judgment in a case in the Court of Session recently, called attention to the remarkable case of a bricklayer, whose income amounted to 27s a week. On that income he brought up six children, three of his sons qualifying for the learned professions. Notwithstanding the expense of bringing up his family, he had accumulated a few years before his death nearly £400 of movable estate, besides owning the cottage in which he lived. The life of this man, said the Judge, presented a picture of untiring thrift and remarkable industry, because the evidence disclosed that he had no income beyond his weekly wage. His active life extended until he was over 80 years of age.

There is only one Judge in the British Empire who may be said to carry his life in his hands when he goes on circuit. This is Judge Murray, of British New Guinea, or the territory of Papua, a brother of Professor Gilbert Murray, of the University of Glasgow, whose scholarly English versions of the old Greek plays have been so admired by the patrons of the Court Theatre.

Of all the suggestions which have been made as to how best to celebrate Count Tolstoi's 80th birthday next August, the one which meets with the most approval is the school plan. "If this is carried out the Tolstoi estate Jassnaja Poljana, will be purchased, and will be converted into a great educational institution. The plan also includes the removal to Jassnaja Poljana from Dolgow of the little house where the sage was born. The offer of Andrew Carnegie, the American 'milliardiar,' to secure from the various publishers the copyrights of Tolstoi's works so that they may become the property of the world, also meets with much approval. This will cost about 1,000,000 roubles."

Alexander R. Campbell, senior clerk in the New York branch of the Standard Bank of South Africa, has handed in his resignation, giving as his reason that he was in receipt of too large a salary. Two medical men are inquiring into the state of his mind.

German police in Alsace-Lorraine apparently regard English and French in the light of seditious language. A Strasburg merchant has been subjected to a long interrogatory for having an English inscription placed on his shop front, and the removal of the writing has been insisted on.

The inmate of a charity home at Lisbon saved up the odd coppers which were given him, and bought a lottery ticket, with which he won a prize of £5000. He gave a sumptuous banquet to the 165 fellow-inmates of the home, and presented each one with £1. Now he intends to visit Rome and London, although he can neither read nor write, and will take with him one of his old companions in rags as a secretary.

Methods of up-to-date journalism have not yet penetrated as far as Turkey. This is how "The Stamboul" announced the assassination of the late King and Crown Prince of Portugal:—"The King and the Crown Prince of Portugal, after their return from Villavicosa, met with an accident, and were killed." And on the following day the journal announced:—"Prince Manuel was to-day proclaimed King of Portugal in place of his father, who died last night."

The death has occurred at Westcliff-on-Sea of the Rev. Benjamin Waugh in his 69th year. He advocated the formation of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in 1884, and was a director of the society from 1889 to 1905, when he resigned, and became a consulting director.

The Linnean Society intend to celebrate the jubilee of the presentation by Charles Darwin and Alfred Russel Wallace of their joint essay on the "Origin of Species" on July 1, 1858. It is intended that a special meeting of the society shall be held on July 1, followed by an evening reception, and that copies of a special medal should be awarded. It is also proposed to record the proceedings of the commemoration in a special volume.

TYREE RABBIT DESTROYERS.

All the Rabbits on 600 Acres Killed in three months With One Machine.

High Hill, Rye Park, Yass,
April 23, 1908.

TYREE, LTD., 314 George-street, Sydney.

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your inquiry as to my opinion of the Tyree Rabbit Destroyer, I must state that on my property I have used the ordinary fumigators, poison cart, and traps, tar paper, etc., and found none of them successful.

ON JANUARY 16 I GOT YOUR MACHINE, AND AM PLEASED TO SAY THAT THE RESULT HAS BEEN MARVELLOUS. I FIND NO DIFFICULTY IN KILLING THE LAST RABBIT IN ANY BURROW OR WARREN. My method is to block the openings of the burrow with sticks and dirt to prevent those outside working in, fumigating the burrow according to directions, and I find that it kills everything in the burrow. There is no necessity to do anything further.

I AM QUITE CERTAIN THAT WITH YOUR MACHINE, ANY INTELLIGENT MAN CAN CLEAR A PADDOCK WITH VERY LITTLE LABOUR, AND ACCOMPLISH RESULTS THAT ARE IMPOSSIBLE BY ANY OTHER METHOD.

Yours faithfully, (Sgd.) SAMUEL EDWARDS.

Department of Lands and Survey, Vermin Destruction,
Melbourne, 10th April, 1908.

TYREE AUTOMATIC RABBIT DESTROYER,
345 Flinders-lane, Melbourne.

Sir,—I have pleasure, re the recent trial at Lilydale, in forwarding copy of report received from Mr. Mackie re your fumigator.

I also desire to state I am quite satisfied, from personal observation, that your machine is a good one, and will be found of very great value in the destruction of rabbits.

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your most Obedient Servant,
(Sgd.) F. E. ALLAN,
Chief Inspector, Vermin Destruction Act.

Mr. F. E. ALLAN. Berwick, 1st April, 1908.

Sir,—With reference to the trial of the TYREE FUMIGATING MACHINE at Lilydale on March 31st, I beg to state that the test was very successful. After a few minutes' fumigation a burrow was dug out, AND ALL THE RABBITS WERE FOUND DEAD. I consider it a very good machine.

(Sgd.) G. MACKIE,
Inspector, V.D. Act.

Messrs. TYREE, Ltd. Bathurst, December 20th, 1907.

Dear Sirs,—Kindly send us immediately, if possible, one of your RABBIT FUMIGATORS, same as sent to our Mr. R. R. Tremain, Dripstone, also same quantity of carbon and carbide you sent him last.

(Sgd.) TREMAIN BROS.

Warrandyte, 8th April, 1908.

TYREE COMPANY, 345 Flinders-lane, Melbourne.

Dear Sirs,—I am very pleased with the results of the test with your RABBIT DESTROYERS at the recent trial, and will be glad if you will send me one of the light machines as soon as you can.

(Sgd.) F. HUMPHREY.

Drurnathol, 28th March, 1908.

Messrs. NEUSTADT BROS., Lockhart.

Dear Sirs,—In reply to your letter, in which you asked me to tell you my candid opinion of the TYREE AUTOMATIC RABBIT DESTROYER, I would say that, in my opinion, IT IS THE BEST RABBIT DESTROYER THAT I HAVE SEEN. Your Mr. D. Cameron conducted a demonstration on my property, and it was in every way a success, and I can confidently recommend it to any settler.

(Sgd.) R. J. DRUMMOND.

"Glenoak," via Wagga, 7th April, 1908.

Messrs. NEUSTADT BROS., Lockhart.

Dear Sirs,—Re trial of TYREE RABBIT DESTROYER, the machine is by FAR THE BEST AND MOST ECONOMICALTO WORK ON THE MARKET.

(Sgd.) H. F. OGILVIE.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

HOMES OF THE BUSH.

The building of homes in the bush and the hospitality of the pioneers are features of the history-making days of early Australia. The memory of these is cherished by many an old colonist. The work of bursting up the big estates was heard first as a murmur. Now the actual work has commenced. The Government have taken it in hand, and are dividing the large stations into smaller holdings, just as a housewife cuts up scones. The desire for land, even a long time back, is shown by the fact that some of these stations were taken up in the early part of last century, and they have remained with the same families ever since. The holders braved the terrors of the bush, endured the desolation, struggled on through droughts and other adversities, fought numerous pests, and won. From generation to generation these properties passed. They were improved and added to, and their products became famous. Now these valuable holdings are drifting apart like a fog-cloud before the morning sun. Visions of land taxes and resumption by the Government are doing their work. The old squatters—the wool and cattle kings—are having the ground taken from under their feet. They die hard. They had no fear of a wilderness in a strange and unknown land; but are now ready to yield up the ghost to provide for the new order of things. There is some sadness in the picture—especially for the squatter. The courage and enterprise that brought men and women to Australia nearly a century ago—before the days of railways and steamers, and when the bush contained unknown dangers—was the sort of energy needed. Many who would feel brave under fire would shrink from the task. The smaller settlers kept forcing the edge of civilisation further back, but the squatters kept carving their way outwards. This is how settlement progressed in the days when the fate of the colonising of the new land hung in the balance.

A superior class of people was needed for this heroic work. Is it surprising that most of the pioneer pastoralists were possessed of the necessary grit? Nature provided the test. Those not armed with stout hearts and full determination did not start from the home land. They could not have survived here in those days. Australia owes much to those who established homes in her wilds, thus forming outposts from which the surrounding country could be prospected and settled. These men were given scope for their powers and their desires. There was no crowding then. Individual traits developed, aided by freedom and glorious natural conditions. When face to face with nature the best and noblest desires were implanted. These developed and influenced the new community. Love of liberty grew after its sweets had been tasted. What wonder is it that the results have been different from those produced by an almost entirely opposite set of conditions?

Many of the obstacles have disappeared, and difficulties have diminished. What was heroic work is now commonplace. What will be the effect of the change? Shall we lose a class of enterprising people—even the process by which they were made enterprising? If tough times produce men and women of greater grit than do easy times the answer is not obscure.

The "smaller man" is now wanted for land settlement. The country will hold more of his class, and room must be found. The subdivision of the large estates is intended to make room for the smaller holder, and to discard the class which during last century provided bases and outposts from which the wilds were converted into profitable holdings. The squatter does not welcome the resumption of his land by the Government. If he thinks the Government will resume his territory he hastens to find a purchaser elsewhere. That is why so many subdivisions are now in the market. Private people give better prices.

In view of the large number of seekers for land coming to this State, it is astonishing what a large percentage of local people are the purchasers at the subdivision sales. Those who are adding to their holdings, or the young men starting for themselves, form the large majority of purchasers. They know the value of the land better than strangers, and they have the knowledge of the local conditions of climate, crops, and markets. Armed with this they have confidence and give higher prices.

The hospitality of the old pastoral homesteads is proverbial. The travellers, visitors, jackeroos, sundowners, and swagmen have shared it. In their memories and in the pages of history it will live. The fondness for Australian life is as much due to the entertainment provided at the bush homes as to the clear skies, open, free life, and the spell of the bush itself. Our national character and our sentiments have been influenced in this way.

As the homes of England have exerted an influence on the Empire and its greatness, so have the homesteads in Australia had much to do with the advancement of the new land. Will this pure and invigorating influence be continued to the same extent when the stations have been disbanded? Will not this packing of people on the land to some extent curtail that freedom which has been material in forming the life of the young nation? It is true that the homesteads themselves will remain, but new occupants will have their wings clipped as compared with the freedom of the pioneers. The princely method of hospitality cannot be expected.

In addition to the sentimental phase, there is the practical. Will the small holder be as persevering in raising high-class stock, wool, and other produce as the owner of the larger estate? Perhaps the improved methods and the advance of science will assist.

There is some comfort in the knowledge that closer settlement will not entirely absorb the homesteads for many years. Many of these interesting and profitable areas are too far removed from railways and waterways, from which closer settlement cannot extend far. These will preserve for a long time to come those picturesque features of Australian life which have gradually become a part of our patriotism and our sentiment.

ITEMS.

The Acclimatisation Society in Queensland has got a record of very useful work to its credit, and none of the other States have any institution which compares with it. Its work is mainly scientific, and does not clash with the State farms, and for some years past it has been practically self-supporting. For the annual subscription of one guinea a year the member has the privilege of obtaining the plants he needs, besides seeing the help he gives to a concern working for the common good. A couple of years ago the society shifted to a new site at Laurieton, where there was more room than the Bowen Park grounds afforded. Its chief research has been in regard to tropical and sub-tropical crops. Sugar canes and pineapples raised from seed have done remarkably well, although the process of production is very slow. The latest success recorded is the pineapple, which is a cross between the Ripley Queen and the smooth, combining the flavour of the former and the size of the latter. A characteristic is the uniform size of the fruit, the pines raised so far running very consistently to 4lb. This is an important consideration where the fruit is grown for export to New South Wales and Victoria.

Our Leadville correspondent writes that for the pastoralists and farmers throughout that district the outlook for the winter is better than for many years past. There is splendid grass everywhere, and, providing an occasional fall of rain is received, there is ample water for the stock. The district has been invaded during the past month or so with stock from the Molong and Dubbo districts, which are travelling in search of grass, which, in one or two instances only, the owners have succeeded in obtaining here, the remaining lots having had to go on towards Gunnedah and Coonabarabran, although the owners were offering landholders as much as £25 per thousand for sheep per month.

THE WOOL TRADE.

A DULL TIME.

There has practically been no change in the wool situation. The holidays have not tended to render a dull period less gloomy. Buyers are generally standing off, and the actual business transacted is on a very limited scale. The parcels that have changed hands have chiefly been bought on speculative account, at no improvement upon recent rates. Buyers are naturally waiting upon the London May series, and are not disposed, in the present outlook, to transact business of any importance. Prior to that event it is arranged to hold auction sales in Sydney on the first week in May. A meeting is to be held next week to decide the dates and fix the roster. The selection will probably include several lines of Queensland wool. Some of the brands in store are:—Greasy: RDB over Biddenham. Scoured: EGB over Bexley, GRB over Clyo, GM over Kyneton, R. Bros. over Crossmore, C in dia. over Creek Farm, and P over Nogo. / dvices of the shipment of the first instalment of OXD (Nebo) have also been received. There promises to be one or two fair sized catalogues, but generally they are expected to be light; some owners preferring to hold on rather than accept present rulings. First offered wools, showing good length of staple, and light in condition, promise to secure fair competition, but the outlook for short stapled, wasty wools is less promising. The only relief in pastoral circles at the moment is the benefit derived from the recent rains in parts of the State where rain was most needed—namely, the south, south-west, and west. This has been an Easter egg that flockmasters have received with the most intense satisfaction.

PHANTOMS.

Bad as the depression has been in local circles for the past six months, as the result of the trade conditions abroad, other centres are finding it still worse. Anything optimistic has been derided in some quarters as if it were one of the worst heresies. Yet the present world-wide depression in wool values has been brought about more by abject fear than stocks in hand or wool in sight. Trade has diminished, but the vast mass of the wool-using peoples of the world are not penniless or without resource. "Bottom has not yet been touched," say the pessimists and those who would see every pound of wool sold at the earliest moment, whether it pays or not, and almost whether a buyer can be found or not. "Trade depression" is more or less mental depression. The one reacts on the other, and a large enough body of optimists are called for at the present time to shake off the existent lethargy. There is no overwhelming supply of merino wool to paralyse the industry. This is admitted on all sides, yet no bold men come forward and say, "Let us get to work on healthy lines, we've touched bottom; we should fill up the holes and work upon a more reasonable basis." Evidently the Bradford "Observer" thinks it is time that something like that should be done, for in an article on trade depression on March 10 last it said with regard to raw wool that the present situation was incomprehensible. Regarding the subject it said:—"Nor is the situation in regard to the raw material one which justifies that craven panic which seems to have possessed the markets lately. The unwillingness of the grower on the other side to accept the steadily falling rates offered at the later sales in Australia and New Zealand will no doubt mean heavier catalogues in London this year, but it has not added one bale to the available total of wool production. The imports of the last two months are really nearly 10 per cent. below what they were for the same period last year, but they are materially higher than they were two years ago. Imports of wool, January-February, 1908, 191,204,000lb; 1907, 209,641,000lb; 1906, 166,278,000lb. The figures for Australia actually show a slight increase on 1907, but South Africa is a long way behind, and there is a drop also in New Zealand and the River Plate. When we remember that less than six months ago the "cupboard was bare," that the actual needs of consumers could only be met by hurried imports from Buenos Ayres, it does seem as if men had lost their reasoning faculties when they stand in fear of being overwhelmed by stocks of wool which are but the phantoms of a disordered imagination."

WOOLGROWERS' TRUST.

According to a cable message the woolgrowers in the western States of America are bent on reforming the position, so far as they are concerned, by the formation of a huge woolgrowers' association. It may not be nearly so gigantic as is foreshadowed. The growers of Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, and other western States purpose forming a trust with a capital of a cool 20 millions sterling. That may be altogether too huge. Still, the woolgrowers have in view the formation of an association for the purpose of determining what rates shall be asked, and if possible obtained, by the wool-users in the eastern States.

EXTENDING THE SELLING SEASON.

Messrs. Wenz and Co., one of the most esteemed buying houses in Sydney, refer to the extension of the selling season in no uncertain voice. They say that:—"For nearly 10 years strenuous but fruitless efforts have been made by buyers with a view to obtain a more rational and more extended division of the colonial sales, and the necessity of an efficient measure has been accentuated by the continued increase of the offerings in the Australasian markets."

The quantities offered reached:—

Year	1880-81	1887-88	1892-93	1899-1900	1905-06	1906-07
Bales	290,000	530,000	880,000	1,040,000	1,415,000	1,570,000

The last figure equals about 75 per cent. of the total Australasian production. Circumstances have finally convinced the selling brokers that their accumulating system, which may have proved feasible in former years, has now gradually become unmanageable. A first step has consequently been taken in that direction by the interruption of the sales after Christmas for fully five weeks instead of two. This measure, even enlarged, cannot fail to be acknowledged as answering everyone's purpose, sellers as well as buyers. The second period, i.e., that after the holidays, will thus grow in interest, and will no longer be considered a tail-end of the season. The absorption of a clip intended to supply consumers during 12 months would proceed in a more rational manner, and the task of buyers, thus considerably facilitated in every respect, would then resume its normal character owing to its being less exposed to severe shocks, which are the unavoidable consequence of a defective system."

INTERSTATE BUSINESS.

In interstate centres there is little, if any, business doing. A few parcels are quitted in Melbourne for special purposes at a shade above public rates, but generally buyers show no disposition to increase their offers, and owners not to accept present rulings. The offerings and sales in interstate centres to date of last auctions are as follow:—

	Bales. Catalogued.	Bales. Sold.
Sydney	623,125	560,065
Adelaide	129,049	119,868
Victoria	444,013	394,604
Brisbane	89,683	76,037

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

During the past week 1061 bales have been received by rail, and 837 bales by boat, as compared with 840 bales by rail and 1507 bales by boat for the corresponding period last year. The totals show a sea-board shortage of bales for the season to date, as follows:—

	Bales.
By rail.
At Darling Harbour railway station, from July 1, 1907, to April 24, 1908	631,983
Corresponding period last season	647,304
Decrease	15,321
By sea.
From July 1, 1907, to April 24, 1908	130,049
Corresponding period last season	141,378
Decrease	11,329
Total seaboard decrease	26,650

BRADFORD TOPS.

According to our cable message of yesterday's date, there was slightly more inquiry, but little actual business was being transacted. Quotations for merinos show a fall of /1 and crossbreds /0½ per lb, from /23 and /22 respectively, for super and common 60's to /22 and /21; while 46's and 40's fell from /11 and /9 to /10½ and /8½ respectively. At the corresponding period last year there was an undercurrent of quiet strength to keep both wool and tops from stagnating. There was no quotable change, but both merinos and crossbred tops were a shade dearer. Super 60's, common 60's (merinos), and especially 46's and 40's (crossbreds) stood at a very high range compared with to-day's quotations. Our comparative table is as follows:—

	April 24, 1908.	April 17, 1908.	April 26, 1907.	April 27, 1906.	April 28, 1905.
Super 60's	22	23	27½	27¾	24½
Common 60's	21	22	26½	27	23¼
Forty-sixes	10½	11	17¾	19½	15
Forties	8½	9	17	18½	13

CONTINENTAL TOPS.

With regard to Continental tops on March 14 last, Wenz and Co. say: "Besides hosiery descriptions, which have been somewhat more inquired after, only a small turnover has taken place during the past fortnight, everybody being anxious to await the London verdict. Generally speaking, prices for both fine and coarse qualities are irregular and mostly in buyers' favour, as a natural consequence of pressing offerings in face of a dull market. Our five chief conditioning houses registered last month 5,014,000 kilos of tops, against 5,116,000 kilos in February, 1907. The total for the first two months, 1908 (9,482,000), shows a decrease of 1,277,000 kilos as compared with the same period, 1907 (10,859,000). In noils, while fine sorts are still moving pretty freely, faulty and odd lots can only be sold with further concessions. The combing mills are normally occupied in Botany merinos, but insufficiently in River Plate merinos and in crossbreds."

WOOL SHIPMENTS.

Since last week's review seven vessels have cleared the Sydney Customs with an aggregate of 8125 bales for the United Kingdom and foreign ports, as compared with six vessels for the corresponding week last year, with 21,174 bales. The total to date—subject to slight alteration per amended manifest, and excluding transhipments—is 686,561 bales, leaving a shortage compared to last year of 82,991 bales. The vessels with quantities are as follows:—

	Bales.
Roon, April 18, for the Continent	800
Star of Scotland, April 19, for London	1,736
Dumbea, April 20, for Marseilles	214
Tropic, April 21, for London	4,409
Yawata Maru, April 22, for Japan	87
Mongolia, April 22, for London	829
Tainan, April 23, for Japan	50
Total since last review	8,125
Total, Sydney and Newcastle, from July 1, 1907, to date	686,561
Corresponding period last year	769,552

CLOSER SETTLEMENT.

ITS EFFECT ON STOCK-BREEDING.

(BY W. M. FLEMING.)

The rapid advance of closer settlement is having a marked effect on stock and the prices obtainable for the different breeds. Conditions are changing, and the breeds of stock must change with them. In what are known as "inside" districts, that is, districts with railway communication and more or less regular rainfall—districts where closer settlement is making such marked headway—longwools and crossbreds are more profitable than merinos. The merino is essentially the sheep of large areas for many reasons. It is a good traveller, and able to cover long distances in search of food and water. In the western districts it is quite a common thing for merino sheep to go to water only once in every two days. Unlike the longwool, it does not get too fat to look after itself. The primary value of the merino is wool, not meat, hence it calls for little handling and attention. So that for the wide, free spaces far from railway communication this breed must always be paramount. Its only rival is the Angora goat. In the fertile coastal districts, and over all those areas where the rainfall is good enough to allow of profitable agriculture, as differentiated from pure grazing, the merino must of necessity give way to the longwool and crossbred, for the simple reason that given suitable conditions and proper care the latter pays the better. The merino is the grazier's sheep, the longwool the farmer's. For which reason, though the numbers of the merino may not actually grow less in this State, those of the longwool and crossbreed are sure to increase. Wool is giving place to mutton.

In cattle, as though by the operation of the laws of compensation, quite a different aspect arises. Beef is giving way to butter. At the Royal Show sales the prices of stud beef cattle have suffered a very severe fall in the last few years. Not only that, but competition for high-class beefers is strictly limited to the few, and those few mostly from outside the boundaries of our own State. Prices for dairy stock have not yet risen correspondingly, but that is owing to quite a number of reasons; one of the most potent being that whereas moneyed men always have been, and still are, the buyers of stud beef cattle, competition for dairy sorts lies more amongst what are generally known as small men. The other great reason why stud dairy stock have not reached anything approaching prices equivalent to their true value is that dairymen as a whole have still a lot to learn before they understand their business as well as do the beef-breeders. They have still to learn that when building up a herd it always pays to breed from the best, and that an extra pound or two in the price of a stud beast is a matter of no consideration at all; that is, when the extra pound or two is available. But where you see two or three bidding for a beefer there will be eight or nine after the dairy sort. Competition is wider, more general; and this, also, is the effect of closer settlement.

Horses are also affected. Closer settlement means better means of internal communication, shorter distances, better roads. The result is that trotters and hackneys are displacing thoroughbreds. Every horseman is well aware that nothing stays a distance like a thoroughbred; but to-day long journeys are almost a thing of the past. It is also easier to drive than to ride. The saddle is giving place to the sulky, therefore the thoroughbred gives way to the trotter. We have but short distances to go, and wish to go them quickly and with dash. For this nothing equals the trotter. The vogue of the trotter—as well, it might be added, as his price—has risen rapidly of late. It bids fair to go on at a compound rate. As for heavy horses, the more farm work the more draught horses are required.

To sum up, it would seem that closer settlement means, if not less merinos, at least more longwools and crossbreds; fewer beef cattle and more dairy sorts, fewer blood horses and more trotters and draughts. Breeders of stock who wish to make a success of their business cannot afford to overlook these things. We may regret the old days, we may see the names of great breeders in the past sink into insignificance with a touch of sorrow, but the fact remains, conditions are changing and methods must also change.

WINE EXHIBITS AT THE SHOW

Both the number and quality of wine exhibits at the recent Royal Show indicate clearly that the future of the viticultural industry in New South Wales is assured. There were upwards of 300 samples of Australian wines, and the standard was generally regarded as the highest yet attained. Messrs. Lindeman, who were exceptionally successful with their Cawarra wines, speak most hopefully of the outlook. Messrs. Lindeman secured two first prizes, two champion prizes, and gold medals, and special champion for the four best wines exhibited in the kiosk,—viz., port, claret, hock, and sherry, which were not picked samples but wines taken from the cellars at Queen Victoria Markets—an absolute accurate judgment on the wines which are being retailed to the public. The interest shown in the various wine classes this year is an indication that the Australian public are beginning to realise the value of their product, and to recognise that the wines which are grown in New South Wales are equal to those of the older countries of the world. Altogether the prospects of the wine industry are exceedingly promising, and Messrs. Lindeman speak very hopefully of the future of the industry.

WINE ASSOCIATION ON MR. WADE.

"CALLOUS AND HOSTILE."

The annual report of the above body states that the indifference which was apparent in past years amongst growers and others connected with the wine industry is now on the wane, and the council has hopes that greater unanimity will prevail in future, amongst the various branches of the liquor trade. Steps have been taken to increase the membership. Owing to representations made by the council the tariff was considerably modified, and many of the requisites wanted by those in the industry loaded with a much lighter duty than was originally anticipated. The Excise Act has been so amended that all brandies must acquire an age of two years in wood before being placed on the market. This, with the extra concessions in excise duties, will open a large local market for Australian brandies. The council has been in communication with Mr. Deakin and the Minister for Customs with a view of inducing them to obtain from the N.Z. Government similar preferential concessions on wine and brandy as South African wines are enjoying at present in the Dominion. The returns for this year's vintage are not yet complete enough to estimate the production of wine for the period, but it is evident that there will be a considerable shortage owing to adverse climatic conditions and phylloxera. In view of the rapid spread of this disease, and the early destruction of many vineyards, it is highly desirable to approach the Department of Agriculture and urge them to exert the most strenuous efforts to supply phylloxera-resistant stocks sufficient for all requirements at the earliest possible moment.

The first poll in the direction of local option was taken last September. A special court for the reduction of licenses has been sitting ever since. A number of wine licenses have been so far marked for extinction, and the process will continue until every electorate (those where maintenance was carried excepted) has been dealt with. It is impossible to forecast how many more licenses will be wiped out. The council, realising the gravity of the position, had a petition drawn and presented in due course to the Premier, and regrets having to report that Mr. Wade's attitude towards the deputation was most callous and hostile to the interests of the industry, and that there is no prospect whatever of obtaining any redress from the present Government.

The election for office-bearers resulted as follows:—President, Dr. Fiaschi; vice-presidents, Messrs. E. P. Capper, C. P. Holmes, Geo. Frere, Thos. Hardy, V. R. Gosche; council, Messrs. F. Lock, W. P. Fallon, W. Trail, J. R. Smith, W. Barrett, F. Westphal, Dr. P. Fiaschi, C. C. Tucker, Geo. Gehrig; hon. treasurer, Mr. J. A. O'Shea; hon. secretary, Mr. A. Barlow; hon. auditor, Mr. C. D'Arcy.

THE TRUCK FAMINE.

TUMBERUMBA.—Stock are daily passing through from the mountains, having done well there during the summer months. On Thursday 20,000 were started back to Cootamundra. On account of the scarcity of trucks at the Tumut station their owners have had to arrange to have them driven all the way, and to be fed with lucerne brought along from Cootamundra to different stopping-places. The Brookong sheep were fed with wheat on the homeward journey. About 47,000 sheep which went through here in the spring, bound for the mountains, are being sent away, via Adaminaby.

ALBURY.—At a meeting of the Pastures Protection Board on Friday, Mr. Shuter mentioned the necessity of referring to the Government on the subject of trucks. He had seen a statement that farmers had to keep £200 or £300 worth of machinery idle for 10 months in the year, owing to the shortage of trucks.

Mr. Balfour stated that it was probable a number of actions would be taken against the Commissioners by holders who had suffered loss because of failure to fulfil truck contracts.

Mr. Shuter moved, "That the Minister for Railways be written to pointing out the inconvenience and loss stockowners in this district have been put to through the shortage of trucks." Mr. Balfour seconded the motion, which was carried.

DEMAND FOR LAND.

TENTERFIELD.—Seventeen homestead areas lately resumed from the commons were balloted for on Thursday. There was a large number of applications, showing that the demand for land in this district is still keen. Four settlement lease blocks at Bolivia were also balloted for, the results being:—Block 129, William Dodd, Clifton; block 130, J. Herbert, Emmaville; block 141, J. Wood, Wingen. Mr. M'Rae drew the fourth block, but as the applicant was absent, the case was adjourned.

CONFERENCE OF SHIRE DELEGATES.

TAMWORTH.—Councillor J. J. Lord, president of Cockburn Council, who was arranging a conference of shire delegates at Sydney next month, has so far received notifications that 63 shires will be represented. The agenda paper is now being prepared, and contains important resolutions.

LAND FOR SETTLEMENT.

NARRABRI.—The owner of Tarriaro station (Mr. William Buchanan) announced his intention of subdividing and putting up for public auction 10,000 acres of that property on July 13 next. This portion has extensive river frontage, and is about nine miles from Narrabri. It is generally excellent agricultural land, rich in all cereal production. The announcement has given great satisfaction locally.

DAIRYING.

TUMBERUMBA.—The returns from the local butter factory for the six months ended March 31, 1908, show that 41,874lb of cream was received, for which suppliers were paid £864 10s. These figures are considered very satisfactory, dairying being in its infancy in Tumberumba.

EGG-LAYING.

"HERALD" AND "MAIL" THIRD COMPETITION.

The "Sydney Morning Herald" and "Sydney Mail" egg-laying test, under the supervision of Messrs. Stewart Bros., Berowra, which commenced on the first of the present month, comprises 40 pens of six hens each, from six to nine months of age.

The fowls are located in the runs and houses vacated by those competing at the "Herald" second annual competition.

Many of the fowls on arrival had an attack of the blood disease locally known as warts, which, although rarely fatal, is a preventive to laying. A number of them have now recovered, the effects of which can be seen in the week's production, which totalled 343, against 294 in the previous week. Better results will now be of weekly occurrence. Appended are the results of the 44 pens which have made a commencement:—

A STONE-BREAKER'S DEATH.

AN OPEN VERDICT.

An inquest concerning the death of George Jessop, aged 44 years, who died at the Reception House, Darlinghurst, on the 4th instant, was conducted by Mr. M. L. Brown, relieving City Coroner, yesterday morning. Deceased, who was a stone-breaker, had been camped near the Belmore railway extension for some time.

Constable Channell, of Belmore, stated that he went to Mrs. Fenwick's house in Canary-road, where he found Jessop on the verandah, drinking a cup of tea. Witness questioned him on several matters, but deceased was unable to give a coherent reply. Witness took him to the police station, and afterwards to the Reception House for the insane, where he eventually died.

Witness visited Jessop's camp, and found that there were three steep cuttings on the road, and Jessop's tent was situated at the foot of one of these. There were, however, no blood-stains on the stones, or any other traces to indicate that deceased had fallen at this spot.

William Bevan, a stone-breaker, who was camped next to deceased, stated that he saw him arrive home early on the morning of March 30. He noticed that Jessop had several cuts about the face, and asked him if he had had an accident, but deceased only mumbled, and did not seem to understand what witness said.

The medical evidence showed that death was due to fracture of the skull, and the Coroner returned an open verdict.

HEARNE'S BRONCHITIS CURE, THE FAMOUS REMEDY FOR COUGHS, COLDS ON THE CHEST, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

"The cough was just terrific, but your Bronchitis Cure acted splendidly."—Yours very sincerely, F. C. GREEN, State School, Rosebud, via Dromana, Victoria.

"I am glad to tell you that I have been quite free from Bronchitis for the last two years, the result of taking your Bronchitis Cure." W. UTTON, Railway-street, Durban, Natal, South Africa.

"I used your Bronchitis Cure, and am pleased to say that it is, without doubt, absolutely the best medicine on the market for coughs and colds." A. E. ANDERSON, Telegraph Office, Fremantle, West Australia.

"For nine years my wife suffered from Asthma and Bronchitis. I tried various treatments for her, but none succeeded until I got Hearne's Bronchitis and Asthma Cure. She found benefit from the first bottle, and three bottles completely cured her. This was nine months ago. She is quite well now, and has never had an attack since." A. ORR, Clonbinane, Sunday Creek, Broadford, Victoria.

"I was a bronchial subject for nearly 40 years, but have found Hearne's Bronchitis Cure a perfect remedy." H. EDHOUSE, J.P., Stawell Brewery, Stawell, Victoria.

"As my purchases show, your remedies are increasing in sale. From time to time I hear people speaking about the good results obtained from them. Wishing you a very much enlarged sale and great prosperity." JOHN KING, Chemist, Ballarat.

"I can thoroughly testify to the wonderful efficacy of your Bronchitis Cure in a consumptive cough, it having relieved me when other prescriptions had no effect whatever." T. LEWIS, Kimbolton, via Wellington, N.Z.

Beware of Imitations! The great success of HEARNE'S Bronchitis Cure has induced a number of unprincipled persons to make imitations, each calling his medicine "Bronchitis Cure," with the object of deceiving the simple-minded, and so getting a sale for an imitation which has none of the beneficial effects that HEARNE'S Bronchitis Cure has. Consequently it has become necessary to draw your attention to this fact, and to request you, in your own interests, to be particular to ask for HEARNE'S, and to see that you get it.

Hearne's Bronchitis Cure, small size, 2s 6d; large size, 4s 6d. Sold by chemists and medicine vendors, and by the proprietors, W. G. HEARNE, Chemist, Geelong, Victoria. Forwarded to any address when not obtainable locally.

NOTICE.—Hearne's Bronchitis Cure No. 1A does not contain any poison within the meaning of the Act. It is equally beneficial for the youngest child and the most aged person.

SOCIAL.

This Easter season has passed off most successfully, and fine weather, which conduces so much to the enjoyment of all, prevailed. On Easter Monday, as already stated, everyone seemed given up to holiday-making, and the Royal Show and the A.J.C. races at Randwick both had record attendances, whilst the whirl of festivities included many dinner and theatre parties, polo matches at Kensington, and two large private balls, besides picnics, motor drives, and minor entertainments. The brilliant ball given by their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Northcote at Government House on Tuesday evening, and the large and successful jubilee ball in aid of St. Vincent's Hospital, have already been fully described in our columns, and last night the members of the Union Club gave a beautiful ball at the Town Hall, and entertained about 1000 guests, amongst the distinguished visitors being their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Northcote, his Excellency the Governor and Miss Rawson, and his Excellency the Admiral and Lady Poore.

Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Northcote will give a large garden party at Government House on Wednesday next.

His Excellency the Admiral and Lady Poore intend giving a series of small "at homes" at Admiralty House within the next few weeks. They feel that by so doing they will become better acquainted with the Sydney people who have called upon them than by giving one or two large entertainments where a shake of the hand as welcome would be all they could then do. About 100 guests will be invited upon each occasion, the list of invitations being taken as much as possible from the names as they have been written in the visiting book at Admiralty House. The first of these small garden parties has been arranged to take place next Saturday, May 2.

The annual exhibition of the Society of Arts and Crafts is to be officially opened by her Excellency Lady Northcote at the Royal Art Society's rooms next Tuesday afternoon.

Recently Captain Leslie Wilson, A.D.C. to his Excellency the Governor, received the sad news of the death of his father, Colonel Wilson, in England. His absence from all social gatherings during the past week was the subject of many inquiries, and his numerous friends and acquaintances will regret to hear this this family bereavement prevented him from attending the festivities, where his genial manner to all was much missed.

The first ball of the season was given by a number of matrons in the Paddington Town Hall on Easter Monday, and proved most enjoyable. The hostesses were Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mrs. David Anderson, Mrs. Brady, Mrs. Sydney Burdekin, Mrs. Lang Campbell, Mrs. W. Chisholm, Mrs. H. C. Dangar, Mrs. J. O. Fairfax, Mrs. Ewan Frazer, Mrs. Russell French, Mrs. Garland, Mrs. T. F. Knox, Mrs. Lingen, Mrs. C. W. Little, Mrs. Mackellar, Mrs. MacCormick, Mrs. Merivale, Mrs. Macarthur Onslow, Mrs. Harry Osborne, Mrs. Hope Osborne, Lady Stephen, Mrs. Cecil B. Stephen, Mrs. E. P. Simpson, and Mrs. Fitz Wentworth, who received the guests just inside the ballroom, standing on either side of the entrance. Each lady carried a bouquet of pink roses, pale pink cactus dahlias, and chrysanthemums. These flowers were also used for the decorations, which were not on an elaborate scale. The entrance to the hall was ornamented with tall palms, and on either side of the staircase were Empire sticks, each surmounted with a cluster of flowers. The ballroom had a dado of white art muslin and a white trellis work, through which trails of greenery and a few flowers here and there were arranged, and light festoons of asparagus ferns were suspended across the room. The supper tables were decorated with raised arches of flowers and autumn leaves. Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Northcote, attended by Captain Stephens, A.D.C., Captain Fyers, A.D.C., and Mr. Share, R.N., and accompanied by Admiral and Mrs. Bridges, the Misses Bridges, and Miss Ruby Madden, and his Excellency the Governor and Miss Rawson, attended by Mr. North, R.N., and Mr. Miller, R.N., were present, and soon after their arrival a formal set of Lancers was danced, his Excellency the Governor-General having as his partner Miss Rawson. Her Excellency danced with Sir Henry Stephen, Colonel Macarthur Onslow with Mrs. Harry Osborne, Admiral Bridges with Mrs. Ewan Frazer, Captain Napier with Mrs. David Anderson, Dr. MacCormick with Mrs. T. F. Knox, Mr. A. F. Robinson with Mrs. A. Allen, and Mr. Merivale with Mrs. J. O. Fairfax. Her Excellency Lady Northcote wore a beautiful dress of cream lace, embroidered with tiny gold sequins, over which black Chantilly lace in coat fashion was arranged with charming effect, the front panels opening to show the cream lace beneath, and some handsome pearls and diamonds completed her Excellency's toilette. Miss Rawson was in white chiffon powdered with tiny silver sequins, the edge of the skirt bordered with a band of white satin embroidered with silver thread and spangles. Lady Trafalgar wore a handsome black dress, relieved by a single large white chrysanthemum on the corsage and a silver spangled hair ornament. Mrs. Bridges chose a dress of pale green Oriental satin and diamond ornaments, Miss Bridges being in pale heliotrope, and her sister in white. There were a large number of debutantes, all of whom looked particularly well in their fresh and dainty white dresses and their pretty posies of lilies of the valley. Some very beautiful dresses were worn, white being much affected, the majority being trimmed with silver or gold embroidery, which is a distinctive feature of this season's dress, as are the gold and silver head-dresses worn by almost everyone, and which add greatly to the finish of the toilette. Mrs. Napier was in sapphire blue sequined net, with an effective trimming of Oriental blue embroidery on the bodice. Mrs. Worrall wore a beautiful dress of fine cream spotted net over chiffon and silk, the skirt having a deep flounce of mother-o'-pearl sequins, the bodice being ornamented with the same. Lady M'Eacharn's dress was of cream satin with gold embroidery and diamond ornaments, and she was accompanied by Sir Malcolm M'Eacharn and the Misses M'Eacharn. Amongst the numerous guests present were also Sir James and Lady Mills, Sir James and Lady Fairfax and Miss Fairfax, Captain Napier, R.N., Captain Prowse, R.N., Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Knox and Miss Janet Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lamb and Miss Dorothea Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Allen, Miss Beatrice Madden, Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Knox, Mr. and Mrs. E. Grace, Dr. and Mrs. Shepperd, Mr. and Mrs. Bayly Macarthur, Dr. Worrall, Dr. and Mrs. Jamieson, Mr. and Mrs. Rothe, Miss C. Gordon, the Misses Dibbs, the Misses Dangar, Mrs. D. Macintyre, Mr. and Mrs. Merewether, and Mr. and Mrs. Plate, Mr. and Miss Von Arnheim, Mrs. Alfred Lamb and Miss Frieda Lamb (debutante), Dr. J. Morton, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Morton, Mrs. and Miss Mackinnon, Mr. Wyatt Rawson, Dr. Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Angus, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allen, Miss May Airey, the Misses Gould and the Misses Greta and Lorna Robinson (debutants), Miss Armytage, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Browne.

The pantomime of "Humpty Dumpty" at Her Majesty's Theatre has been drawing immense audiences every night, and is proving a greater success than was anticipated by the most sanguine of proprietors and managers. It is most gorgeously staged, and the "Wheel of Life" at the end of the first act and the beautiful ballets have formed a general topic of conversation. The coral ballet and the "Congress of Nations," the fairy stories and rhymes for children, are particularly pretty and effective. In the "Congress of Nations," England, France, and Russia were charmingly carried out, and would make excellent fancy dresses for a ball at any time. The "Wheel of Life" is very beautiful, being illuminated with many coloured lights, the girls seated on the trapezes being in light and filmy draperies, and poised on the centre of the see-saws were tiny children dressed as cupids, whilst filling in all odd spaces are ordinary swings on which girls are seated. Small electric lights outlined everything, and the background of mirrors gives the idea of an endless vista of lights and swings. A recent visitor to Sydney who has had much experience in the theatrical world expressed himself astounded at the cleverness and adaptability of the Australian children, who he said surpass all other children he has studied in various parts of the world. The ballet of tiny little ones in bathing dresses, with their little bare legs and feet, and their spades and buckets, is most captivating. To-night many large theatre parties are being given to witness the performance, amongst the hosts and hostesses being Dr. and Mrs. MacCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Baily Macarthur, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Brunton, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Allen, the last-mentioned taking a party of over 100.

On Thursday afternoon there was a large and fashionable gathering at Kensington Racecourse to watch the interstate polo match. Much interest was taken in the various games, which resulted in a victory for Sydney. The numerous visitors included their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Northcote, who drove out in their motor car, and were received by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, at the request of the polo club committee; also his Excellency the Governor and Miss Rawson, the Misses Bridges, Captain Stephens, Captain Fyers, Mr. Share, R.N., and Mr. North, R.N. Lady Northcote wore a handsome dress of oyster-white face cloth, with strappings of the same material, over which was worn a long ivory-white coat, with an Irish crochet collar and facings, the toilette being completed by a white hat and motor veil, and a long white feather boa. The attendance also included Lady and Miss Fairfax, Dr. and Mrs. Ewan Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dangar, Mrs. Wesche, Mrs. Baily Macarthur, Captain Fenwick, Mrs. Harry Osborne and Miss Beatrice Madden, Mrs. H. Levy, Mrs. Rabett, Mrs. and Miss M'Phillamy, Mrs. T. F. Knox and Miss E. Knox, Mrs. and Miss Burdekin, Mr., and Mrs. T. Watson, Mrs. Payne, Mrs. C. M. Merry, Mrs. A. Dowling, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Paterson, Mr. and Mrs. Kater, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Keys, Miss Ethel Clibborn, Miss Armytage, the Misses Power and Miss Daisy Willis, Miss Dorothea Lamb, Miss Lue Dowling, the Misses Dangar, Mr. and Miss Collins, the Misses Cape, Mr. J. de V. Lamb, Mr. Manson, Mr. Pearce, Mr. Barrington Dickson, Mrs. and the Misse MacDonald, Mr. Mack, Mr. H. Darley, Mr. and Miss Campbell and Mr. Bruce Campbell. Tea was served during the afternoon, at the back of the stand, but the accommodation for the comfort of the visitors could well be improved with little trouble or expense, and would add greatly to the popularity of the polo matches.

A most enjoyable ball was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Knox, at their residence, Rona, Bellevue Hill, on Thursday evening, when they entertained about 150 guests, who were received by the host and hostesses in the small drawing-room, beautifully decorated with flowers and pot plants. Dancing took place in a large marquee ballroom, specially erected for the occasion on the tennis lawn. It was decorated with thick ropes of greenery, and palms, and looked most effective. The grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns, and were most picturesque. Supper was served in the drawing-room, and in the dining-room, the tables being beautifully decorated with large silver bowls full of chrysanthemums. The entertainment was given in honour of the debut of Mr. and Mrs. Knox's youngest daughter, Miss Janet Knox, and the programmes were inscribed with the debutante's name or initials, a pretty idea, and formed a little souvenir of the dance, which was most thoroughly enjoyed by every one.

Amongst the numerous passengers by R.M.S. Mongolia is Miss Nora Dangar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Dangar, who leaves Sydney to-morrow, and will join the steamer in Melbourne, en route to India, where she is going on a visit to her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Dangar.

The Winter Garden at the Australia Hotel presented a very animated and bright scene all through the week, and was thronged with a gaily-dressed number of visitors every afternoon, forming a favourite rendezvous after the races on Monday and Wednesday, where many tea parties were given. There are so many visitors staying at the hotel who wished to entertain their friends that on Tuesday (the usual "guest" afternoon) the lounge was reserved for their use only. In the evening many dinner parties were given, and the large dining-room looked particularly bright and gay with the beautiful dresses and flashing diamonds and other jewels worn by the ladies.

On Friday afternoon, 10th inst, at the Crookwell School of Arts Hall, an "At Home" was given as a farewell to Mrs. J. Tozer, who is shortly going to take up her residence at Mudgee. The tastefully-decorated building was full to overflowing, and the numbers of pretty dresses worn by the ladies made a gay scene. The guest of the evening was received by Mesdames Clifton and Levy and the members of the ladies' committee. On her arrival, Mrs. Tozer was presented by little Miss Levy with a beautiful bouquet of crimson cactus dahlias, asparagus, and maiden hair ferns. Mrs. Tozer wore a handsome dress of ivory cloth, with touches of gold tissue, and white fox furs, her black-and-white hat being trimmed with ostrich feathers. After tea had been served, short speeches were made by the Rev. Mr. Coote, B.A., the Rev. Father Clarke, and Messrs. Prell, Graham, and Schute. Before the conclusion of the ceremony a presentation was made by Mrs. Prell, on behalf of the ladies, of a purse of sovereigns. Musical items were rendered by the Misses Frost, Levy, and M'Connell (Goulburn). Mr. and Mrs. Tozer left for the Mudgee branch of the Bank of New South Wales on Wednesday last.

An "At Home" has been arranged to take place at the Women's Patriotic Club on Monday afternoon, when Mrs. J. B. Christian, Mrs. J. Macarthur Onslow, and the members of the club committee will act as hostesses. The entertainment has been arranged especially to meet country and interstate visitors.

The marriage of Mr. Robert Sterling Murray-Prior, son of the late Mr. Thomas Murray-Prior and of Mrs. Murray-Prior, of Hunter's Hill, with Miss Estella Herring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Herring, of Beaconsdale, Gladesville, was celebrated at Christ Church, Gladesville, on Wednesday, April 22, by the Rev. Nelson Howard. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a semi-empire dress of cream chiffon taffeta, trimmed with Mechlin lace, silver chiffon roses, and trails of orange blossoms. The yoke and elbow sleeves were stitched with crystal beads. On the plain skirt was a trail of silver chiffon roses and spangled leaves. The embroidered tulle veil was worn over a wreath of orange blossoms. She was attended by three bridesmaids—Miss Ruth Murray-Prior (sister of the bridegroom), Miss Elsie Wiseman (cousin of the bride), and Miss Dorothy Gall (niece of the bride). The two elder bridesmaids were in pale blue ninon de soie and blue silk hats, trimmed with white plumes. They carried bouquets of mauve cactus dahlias and autumn leaves. Little Dorothy Gall wore a white muslin frock and a close lace bonnet, with large rosettes on each side. The bridegroom's gifts to them were pearl and gold brooches. Mr. H. F. Markell was best man, and Mr. C. G. Addison groomsman. A reception was subsequently held at Beaconsdale by Mr. and Mrs. Herring, who received the guests in the drawing-room. Refreshments were served in a large marquee on the lawn. Amongst the guests were Mrs. Barton, Mrs. and Miss Murray-Prior, Mrs. John Paterson, Mrs. T. Murray-Prior, Judge and Mrs. Docker, Mr. and Mrs. David Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Kater, Mrs. and Miss David, Mr. Mrs. and Miss Betts, Mrs. H. M. Shelley, Mr. and Mrs. Darvall, Miss Bundock, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deane, Miss Badham, Miss Ethel Stephens, Rev. and Mrs. Nelson Howard, Mrs. Le Gay Brereton, Mr. V. Le Gay Brereton, Mr. and Mrs. Makinson, Mrs. Frank Barton, and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Windeyer. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Murray-Prior left for the South Coast, the bride wearing a dark green coat and skirt, and hat of deep mauve straw trimmed with shaded red roses.

Mr. Thomas Samuel Holt, eldest son of the late Frederick Samuel Ellis Holt, of Sutherland House, Sydney, was married to Miss Mary Allison Pain, eldest daughter of the Right Rev. A. W. Pain, D.D., Bishop of Gippsland, Bishopscourt, Sale, Victoria, and of Mrs. Pain, at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, Sale, Victoria, last Wednesday, April 22. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, assisted by the Rev. H. F. Scott, rector, and the Rev. R. Martin. The bride's wedding dress was of white crepe de chine, over glace, trimmed with rose point lace, and yoke of rucked chiffon, and a wreath of real orange blossoms. A jewelled watch bracelet was a present from the bridegroom, and she carried a white shower bouquet. Her brother, Rev. Allan F. Pain, gave his sister away. She was attended by five bridesmaids—the Misses Ethelwynne T. Pain and Elsie G. Pain (sisters of the bride), Miss Birdie Holt (sister of the bridegroom), Miss Rosalie Watkins (cousin of the bride), and Miss Margery Pain (niece of the bride). Their dresses were of pale blue chiffon voile, and hats to match, and they carried autumn-tinted bouquets. The bridegroom's gifts to them were gold band bangles, and their shower bouquets. Mr. Owen Holt was best man, and Mr. Kenneth Pain and Mr. George Fry the groomsmen. After the ceremony a reception was held by the Bishop and Mrs. Pain at Bishopscourt, Sale, the guests being limited to relations and a few intimate friends. The bride is well-known in Sydney, where her father so long had charge of St. John's, Darlinghurst.

A wedding was celebrated at the Stanmore Methodist Church on Saturday, March 28, when the Rev. H. E. Bellhouse, son of the late Rev. R. E. Bellhouse, was married to Miss Florence Chapman Pickering, youngest daughter of the late Mr. Pickering. The marriage was solemnised by the Rev. E. J. Rodd, assisted by the Rev. J. G. M. Taylor and the Rev. A. Holliday, B.A., LL.D. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. F. Pickering, was attended by three bridesmaids—Miss Grace Pickering (sister), Miss Constance Bellhouse, B.A., and Miss Edna Bellhouse (sisters of the bridegroom). The Rev. W. Robson acted as best man, and the Rev. C. Lusby and Mr. Arthur Pickering as groomsmen. After the ceremony the guests, numbering 150, were entertained by the bride's mother at the Stanmore schoolhall, adjoining the church. A special interest was added to the occasion in that the bridegroom was married in the same church as his late father, on the same date, and is continuing the same work.

A violet wedding took place at Wagga on April 18, when Mr. Alfred Herbert Raleigh, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Raleigh, Landara, Bendigo, was married to Miss Lollaine Sheppard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sheppard, Cora Lynn, Wagga. The ceremony at St. John's Church, Wagga, was performed by the Rev. G. A. Carver, the service being full choral. The decorations were the work of the choir and many friends. The bride's wedding dress was of white satin, trimmed with silk lace and silver tissue, worn with a wreath and veil, the latter fastened with a diamond brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, who also presented her with her shower bouquet. The bridesmaids were Miss Forbes Sullivan, Miss Violet Copland, Gwladys Raleigh (niece of bridegroom), and Marion Sanborn (cousin of bride). The first two wore deep violet marquisette, trimmed with lace, and the other two were in pale violet crepe de chine, trimmed with velvet and lace, with coronet of violets, fastening their tulle veils. They carried silver-bound prayer books and posies of violets, the gifts of the bride, and wore gold heart brooches with initials A. and L. in pearls. Mr. W. A. Clark (Sydney) was best man. A large wedding tea was subsequently held at the Masonic Hall. The bride's travelling dress was a navy blue coat and skirt, and hat to match.

A wedding was solemnised at the Kogarah Congregational Church, by the Rev. David Morgan, on Tuesday, 14th April, when Miss Ethel Louisa Hubbard, eldest daughter of Mr. A. Hubbard, of Kogarah, was married to Mr. Frederick Nielsen, son of Mr. Nielsen, of Aalborg, Denmark. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion. The bride was dressed in cream silk, trimmed with cream applique, fancy net, and drop fringe, and wore a veil over a coronet of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet and a sapphire and diamond bracelet were gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Millie Hubbard, chief bridesmaid, wore cream voile, trimmed with tucked net, latticed satin ribbon, and applique, and hat to match. Miss Lily Nielsen was in cream cloth, and a hat to match. Both bridesmaids carried shower bouquets, and wore diamond and sapphire brooches, gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. C. Nielsen acted as best man, and Mr. Percy Hubbard as groomsman. The bridal party and guests subsequently adjourned to Brett's Hall, where a reception and the wedding breakfast took place.

A wedding was solemnized at St. John's, Bishopthorpe, Glebe Point, by the Rev. S. S. Tovey, B.A., on Wednesday, April 8, when Mr. J. Harold Bebb, of Kogarah, eldest son of Mr. Joel Bebb, Glebe, was married to Miss Pearl B. Brown, of Carlton-terrace, Hereford-street, Glebe Point. The service was full choral. The bride was dressed in white silk, with applique trimmings and satin ribbon, and wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet, and her amethyst heart and chain were gifts from the bridegroom. The bridesmaids, Miss Ruby Brown (sister of the bride) and Miss Lily Clark (niece of the bride) both wore pale blue, and carried shower bouquets, which, with gold "Mizpah" brooches, were the gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Mabel Bebb (sister of the bridegroom) wore cream silk, her shower bouquet and gold lace pin being gifts from the bridegroom. Mr. Harry Bebb acted as best man, and Mr. Clarence Brown as groomsman. After the ceremony the guests, numbering over 100, adjourned to the Record Reign Hall, St. John's-road, Glebe, where a reception was held.

All Saints' Church, Singleton, was the scene of a wedding on Wednesday, April 22, which created considerable local interest. Miss Elizabeth Ruby Bennett, second daughter of Mr. Frank A. Bennett, of Cranston, Singleton, was the bride, and Mr. Percy Faulkner, second son of Mr. D. Faulkner, of Clifdale, Singleton, the bridegroom. Canon La Barte officiated, and was assisted by the Rev. D. Rees. The bride being a member of the choir, the service was choral. The church was artistically decorated by girl friends with white and red chrysanthemums. There were three arches specially erected for the occasion, and from the centre hung a large floral wedding bell, and from the two smaller arches floral horseshoes were suspended. The bride wore a dress of ivory chiffon taffeta, the bodice trimmed with lace, and an embroidered veil and wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a beautiful shower bouquet, which, with a ruby ring, were the gifts of the bridegroom. The Misses C. Cochrane and Elsie Faulkner acted as bridesmaids. Mr. F. A. V. White, of Gowrie, and the Rev. W. A. M. Reay Campbell, rector of Lambton, were the groomsmen. The bridesmaids were dressed alike in white Persian lawn, trimmed with Malines lace and silk bretelles. Their hats were of white felt, with coque's feathers. They carried bouquets of red cactus dahlias and autumn leaves, which, with gold cable bangles, were gifts of the bridegroom. The bride was presented by Canon La Barte with the prayer-book from which the service was read. After the ceremony a reception was held at Cranston, where Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bennett entertained the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom.

A wedding took place at the Methodist Church, Pyrmont, on April 15, when Miss Lucy Lomas, second daughter of Mrs. J. L. Lomas, was married to Mr. J. A. Boyle, eldest son of Mr. J. Boyle, of Pyrmont, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. Penman. The bride was dressed in cream voile, trimmed with lace, and wore a wreath and veil. The bridesmaids were Miss F. Boyle, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss L. Lomas, sister of the bride. Miss Boyle was dressed in cream silk, and a white hat, with long white feather. Miss Lomas wore a dress of cream voile and an electric blue hat. The bridegroom's gifts to them were gold lucky pin and chains. A reception was afterwards held at Weston's Hall, Pitt-street, where about 80 guests were entertained at the wedding breakfast, and later the happy couple left by the mail train for the mountains.

ENGAGEMENT.

An engagement has been announced between Lieutenant Dudley North, R.N., of H.M.S. Powerful, son of the late Colonel Roger North, B.A., and Mrs. North, of Birley, Camberley, Surrey, to Eglantine S. E. Campbell, daughter of the late Hon. W. R. Campbell, M.L.C., formerly of Trigamon station, New South Wales, and on her mother's side granddaughter of Hon. Sir Edward Deas-Thomson, C.B., K.C.M.G., and great-granddaughter of General Sir Richard Bourke, K.C.B., formerly Governor of New South Wales, and of Thornfields, County Limerick, Ireland.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY.

A meeting of ladies, presided over by Mrs. Jas. Gregg, Mayoress of Burwood, was held at the local Town Hall on Thursday to complete preparations for the approaching Hospital Saturday collections at Burwood, Enfield, and Concord. Mr. Walter W. Dorman, organiser, attended to explain the reasons for the separation of the Borough of Strathfield, which will in future be under the management of a new local committee; and it was agreed, upon the suggestion of Mr. Dorman, to cede the Strathfield railway station as a collecting centre to the new local committee, although the building is in the Borough of Enfield. The resignation of Miss A. M. Drake as hon. secretary, owing to her absence from the State, was received, and accepted with regret, and Mrs. W. Butler was elected in her stead. Mrs. Jas. Gregg was elected president and Mrs. A. R. Riley vice-president of the Burwood committee.

Mr. E. Strahan, council clerk at Randwick, has undertaken, in conjunction with Mr. J. Snape, Mayor, and Mr. D. Storey, M.L.A., to arrange for a proper canvass of the districts of Randwick, Coogee, and Kensington, and will be glad to hear from ladies resident in these districts who are willing to collect there on Hospital Saturday.

Miss Green, hon. secretary, Mr. John A. Dean, or Mr. W. F. Latimer, M.L.A., of Woollahra, will also be glad to hear from some more ladies at Woollahra who are willing to collect at that centre on Hospital Saturday.

The executive committee at head office, 176 Queen Victoria Markets, has still three city sections unallotted, and will be pleased to hear from ladies able to take charge, with the necessary number of lady assistants.

A WONDERFUL RECOVERY.

I AM HEARTILY THANKFUL TO CLEMENTS TONIC.

THE PROOF.

(By a Special Reporter.)

At No. 83 Nelson-street, Annandale, lives Mr. Herbert Smith, who was recently paid a visit by a special. Mr. Smith answered the pressman's query by saying:—

"Yes; I am the man you are looking for, and any of my customers could tell you what an alteration there is in me since I took Clements Tonic a while back. Previous to that I had been under a doctor, and had taken dozens of bottles of medicine, but I might as well have thrown it all away. People coming into my shop used to remark how ill I looked, and if I see anybody now appearing to be sick I always tell them about Clements Tonic, and what it did for me. And then there's no doubt it made a new man of me, for before I took it I was fit for nothing. I could hardly turn a hand to anything without getting so giddy that I was likely to stumble, and I always felt so drowsy that I wanted to sleep during business hours."

"Couldn't you get enough sleep at night?" asked the interviewer.

"That was the strange part of it. No; when I had the chance to sleep I couldn't, and I used to get up in the morning feeling half-dead, with a taste in my mouth like gall, and usually with a headache that would remain all day. Without a doubt I was a very wretched mortal in those days, and I am heartily thankful to Clements Tonic for banishing my afflictions like it did, for when I had taken several bottles of that remedy I could sleep as well as ever I could, and never had any dreams to disturb me as in former days. My palate became sweet and wholesome, and my head no longer ached. Instead of saying how ill I looked, customers commenced to remark upon my healthy appearance, and there was a mighty difference I tell you. I used to wake up suddenly from my sleep before using Clements Tonic, finding myself bathed in perspiration; but not so a fortnight or so later. And how my appetite changed, too."

"Had it been very poor?"

"Oh, terribly. I could hardly eat enough to keep a man alive, and the little I had disagreed with me dreadfully, for no sooner had I swallowed a mouthful or two than a sensation came to the stomach as if it were filled with wind—the pain sometimes being very acute—and my chest began to feel as heavy as lead. My tongue had a coating of yellowish stuff on it, and my eyes were apparently too cumbersome for their sockets, the sight being very bad also. Yes; taken altogether, I had a most unenviable experience, the pains between my shoulders being so severe that I thought I had caught a cold, and about my loins the agony was equally great. I used to get palpitation very badly; one doctor said it was through smoking. Whether it was or not I don't know, but it certainly stopped troubling me after I had taken Clements Tonic a while; so did the pains around my back and shoulders, which was a great blessing, because I could then do some work without feeling any inconvenience. Taken all round, the recovery I made through the medium of Clements Tonic was something wonderful, because it was so complete."

Subscribed and declared at Annandale this ninth day of November, one thousand nine hundred and four, before me, FAMOUS CENTENARIANS.

Length of years is commoner than of old—centenarians are on the increase. This is partly due to greater enlightenment in matters of hygiene, but not a little to those famous centenarians, Cockle's Antibilious Pills, which have been regularly prescribed by the medical profession since the year 1801. Truly a glorious record! They are simply unrivalled as a remedy for all disorders of the liver, stomach, and bowels.

THE CHURCHES.

The extension of the Anglican Church is borne out by the fact that during the past three months the foundation stones of four new churches have been laid, and that of a fifth—Kemp's Creek—will be laid next Wednesday.

The tiling placed in the chancel of St. John's, Parramatta, and the approaches to it, to commemorate the services of Archdeacon Gunther during the past 40 years, are to be dedicated by the Bishop of Bathurst next Wednesday. The effect on the east end of the church is striking, and much admired.

Rev. T. Anson Cato has been licensed as curate of St. Jude's, Randwick; Rev. G. L. W. Rooke as assistant minister at St. Peter's, Cook's River; Rev. A. C. Jackman as curate in the parish of Castle Hill, Rous Hill, and Dural; Rev. W. Knox as assistant minister at St. Simon and St. Jude's, Bowral, during the absence of Rev. E. Hargrave, who has been granted three months' leave on account of ill-health.

The next meeting of the Church Society, on May 4, will be an important one, as the grants to parishes and institutions are to be considered.

Faculties have been issued authorising the erection of a mural tablet to the memory of the late Miss A. E. Green, in the church of St. Michael, Sydney; and the erection of a retable in St. Jude's, Bowral.

On Sunday Cardinal Moran goes to Wyong to dedicate the new church of St. Cecilia, at 2.30 p.m. He will preside at the quarterly conference of the clergy at St. Mary's Chapter Hall on Wednesday next.

His Eminence goes to Young on May 10, where the citizens propose to give him a public reception. He has also accepted an invitation to Brisbane to lay the foundation stone of the new Mater Misericordiae Hospital on Sunday, May 24. It is proposed here to make the beginning of a very large institution.

The Rev. E. W. O'Reilly, of Merriwa (who recently celebrated his sacerdotal silver jubilee) is leaving, with Father Roche, of Muswellbrook, on a well-earned holiday in the old country. Father H. Ward, of Hamilton, has been appointed to the charge of Merriwa during Father O'Reilly's absence.

The Right Rev. Monsignor Ahern, V.G., who has been laid up at Bangalow for several weeks, has considerably improved in health.

A telegram from Rome, under date March 17, announces the death of Cardinal Cosalt-del Drago from nephritis. He was born in 1838, and received his hat in 1899. He was formerly Patriarch of Constantinople.

A despatch from London, April 16, states that the Chinese Imperial Rescript of 1899 giving Roman Catholic Bishops the rank of Viceroy or Governor, and priests the rank of Prefect, has been rescinded.

On Tuesday evening, at the Y.W.C.A. Hall, Castlereagh-street, a farewell meeting will be tendered to Dr. Northcote Deck, of Ashfield, and others, who are leaving to take up mission work in the Solomon Islands, under the South Sea Evangelical Mission.

Extensive alterations are being carried out at the Methodist Book Depot, 381 George-street. These, thanks to the continued success of the business, will involve and justify an outlay of £1500, and when finished, the depot will compare most favourably with anything of the kind in the city.

Historically the bookshop dates from 1858. Mr. John Corbett held the position of manager for 40 years, and Mr. R. J. Carnell, who succeeded him, and is now in charge, has been connected with the business for 25 years.

A new and up-to-date window will be put in the front. The second floor will be occupied by a new departure, the agency of one of the best church organ manufacturing firms in America. A Waygood electric lift will be installed. The property now carries only a trifling liability.

On Sunday the 12th instant, the Rev. E. W. Briscombe (who has sustained a very severe loss in the steamer Bega) met his congregation at the William-st Methodist Church. On Wednesday evening a meeting of the William-street Methodist Church was held in the school hall to welcome the Rev. E. W. Briscombe to the circuit. Alderman S. E. Lees presided.

"No one conversant with the facts will deny that, as an aggressive agent, the evangelistic mission is proved a failure," remarks the "Presbyterian Messenger" in a rather startling article. It then goes on to ask what is done in the way of open-air work, and concludes by declaring that as the non-church-goer will not come in, the Church must go to him.

A cablegram from England, and published in the daily press, states that the decrease in the membership of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Great Britain is this year the largest for 50 years past, the returns for 1908 showing a decrease of 4392 on those of 1907. This (comments the "Methodist") again raises the question as to how far our published statistics represent the actual position of the Church. In many ways they are misleading, and, therefore, injurious. It is not generally known outside Methodism itself that only those who met in class, or otherwise, have their names enrolled on the roll of members, are returned as members of the Church, and these form but a very small portion of those who form the Methodist Church. Perhaps the Church in England has never been more energetic and progressive than during recent years. And yet a decrease in membership is reported.

The first conference of State secretaries of the British and Foreign Bible Society in Australasia has been held in Sydney during the past week, and was convened by Mr. C. E. Bowen, the organising secretary for New South Wales. The representatives were:—Rev. J. D. Gason and Mr. F. G. Barley (Victoria), Rev. J. H. Sexton (South Australia), Rev. G. M. Clark (Queensland), Rev. Willoughby Flower, M.A., and Mr. C. E. Bowen (New South Wales), and Rev. F. H. Spencer, the parent society's agent for New Zealand. The conference chose as its chairman Mr. F. G. Barley, and Mr. C. E. Bowen was appointed secretary. Among the recommendations adopted (to be referred to the local auxiliaries) were:—The localisation of the "Bible in the World" (the society's organ); the preparation and dissemination of special literature dealing with the society's work, and the holding of bi-annual conferences. It was resolved to invite the Rev. J. H. Ritson, the parent society's secretary, to visit Australasia.

On Thursday evening Mr. Barley, of Victoria, gave an interesting lecture on Bible work in China, illustrated by lantern views, at the Ashfield Presbyterian Church. Mr. Hooper presided, and there was a large attendance. Last year the local branch contributed over £70 to the funds of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

In connection with the Y.M.C.A. movement generally, the International Committee is planing for the next quarter century to move the great city centres, not only of North America, but of the world, with a vigorous work-campaign, placing strong emphasis on evangelism, and developments will be watched with interest.

In connection with the opening of the new building and the annual Y.M.C.A. festival, the clergy throughout the State are asked to observe Sunday, June 14, as young men's Sunday.

The junior department of the Y.M.C.A. is making excellent progress, and at the banquet last Wednesday some good speeches were made by the lads, many of whom are under 17, yet display an up-to-date knowledge of events. The annual sports take place to-day at the Cricket Ground.

The Rev. A. H. Tolhurst was inducted to the Presbyterian charge of Bega by the Presbytery of Monaro on the 22nd instant.

A new Presbyterian church at Wellington which is being erected at a cost of £2000 will be opened by the Right Rev. the Moderator of the State Assembly on May 24.

The State Assembly of the Presbyterian Church will begin its sittings in St. Stephen's Church, Sydney, on May 5. The Right Rev. the Moderator (P. Norman) will preach, and the Moderator elect (Rev. J. Macaulay, M.A.), of Waverley, will deliver his opening address.

The Venerable Dr. Druce is at present resting at Moss Vale. He returns to Sydney in time for the sittings of the general assembly.

The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian College Council was held on 23rd instant, at the church offices. The principal reported that the college was now full.

The new organ, presented to St. Joseph's Church, Balmain West, by Mr. M. Raleigh, a parishioner, was opened on Sunday by the Very Rev. Father J. P. Moynagh, before the Missa cantata at 11 o'clock. There was a large congregation.

The first services were held in the newly-erected church hall of St. Giles, Lane Cove, on Good Friday and Easter Monday, there being large congregations at all services. The building, which is situated in Greendale-street, Greenwich, on land generously given by Mr. William Wilson, will be dedicated by the Ven.-Archdeacon Gunther on Wednesday evening, the 20th May. The church hall, which is of brick, on stone, was designed by Mr. P. Blackman, and has accommodation for 175. There is also a large and well-appointed basement, which will accommodate about 60, and will be used for a day school, clubroom, etc.

To-morrow, the last Sunday in April, will be a temperance Sunday in many churches throughout the State. At least, sermons on the liquor question will be preached. The New South Wales Alliance has made its annual appeal to the clergy of all denominations, asking that the day should be recognised, and each year has shown a distinct advance in the number of churches helping in the movement.

Adjutant Mytton, officer in charge of the Salvation Army at Waverley, has broken down in health and has been relieved of his duties for some months. A successor has not yet been fixed.

Captain Betts, of Newtown, has received instructions to relinquish her command, and will hold farewell services on Sunday. She has been appointed to Victoria, and will be replaced by Staff-Captain Wallace, recently in charge of the Wimmera division, Victoria.

It is proposed to establish a settlement in South London, probably in the neighbourhood of Wandsworth or Battersea, in order that the adherents of the New Theology may "show their ideas and ideals at work in contact with the actual individual and social problems of modern life." To raise the necessary funds the Revs. R. J. Campbell and E. W. Lewis have issued an appeal, in which they say: "We have the men, but we haven't the money. . . . For some reason or other, which we do not quite understand, people who are well settled in life and comfortable and rich are not attracted to our movement, and some have ceased to walk with us."

To meet the urgent needs of the missionary agencies in China the Religious Tract Society is raising a fund of £10,000, to be spent within the next ten years on a definite effort to influence for Christ, by means of literature, the young in schools and colleges, the educated class in general, and the Chinese masses. The society, as far back as 1815, sent £420 to Dr. Morrison and Dr. Milne, and within ten years had sent £1204 for the distribution of evangelical literature of a popular kind. On Dr. Morrison's death, it sent a further £1000, and £2670 after the China war. As the work grew books of a Christian educational character were distributed. For the last twenty years the society has distributed books at the great triennial examinations, and its literature has thus gone over almost all of the eighteen provinces. It contributed £1076 towards the production of the Shanghai Commentary on the Bible, a work in many volumes of from a thousand to two thousand pages each. The missionaries are now earnestly demanding an increase of books of a devotional and educational order. This was made prominent at the Shanghai Conference last year, in view of the flooding of China with agnostic and anti-Christian books from Japan and elsewhere. Through the Central China Tract Society alone the Religious Tract Society has issued since 1887 no less than 27,563,962 booklets and large works. The special fund of £10,000 was to be publicly launched at a Mansion House meeting, to be presided over by the Lord Mayor. £4218 had already been received in response to the preliminary private appeal to the society's friends.

N.S.W. BAPTIST UNION.

WELLINGTON, Friday.

The half-yearly meeting of the New South Wales Baptist Union was opened in the Wellington Church on Wednesday. There were about 40 delegates from different churches in the State. Before the conference commenced the delegates were warmly welcomed by the Rev. F. J. Dunkley.

The president (Mr. Priestley) expressed his pleasure at the hearty welcome extended to himself and the other delegates. He had no idea there was such a splendid church in Wellington, and wished a good many other country places had something that would compare with it.

The delegates were entertained at a dinner.

The half-yearly conference was continued last night, when the president (Mr. H. Priestley) delivered an address on acceptable service.

The Rev. V. H. Jenkins was appointed minute secretary.

Mr. G. Parry Jones, of Waverley, a recent arrival from Wales, was admitted as a minister in full standing.

Reports were received from most of the churches in the union, and also of the Gospel Car work.

A letter was received from the secretary of the World's Baptist Union, enclosing copies of the constitution, as adopted at the recent World's Baptist Congress in London, and it was decided to affiliate with the union.

THE BEGA WRECK.

At the Balmain Council on Tuesday night, Alderman Young moved the following resolution:—"That this council places on record its appreciation of the conduct of one of its citizens, Captain Stephen Bishop, of the steamship Bega, of which he was master, when he fully maintained the high reputation of British seamen in time of peril, by seeing all the passengers and crew taken safely from the sinking steamer, while he himself was the last to leave, and that a letter to this effect, with the seal of the council attached thereto, be forwarded to Captain Bishop, signed by the Mayor and council clerk." Alderman Milne took the point that the motion was outside the scope of the council; but the Mayor ruled against him. Alderman Minty objected, not because he was out of sympathy with the motive which had prompted the motion being brought forward, but on the ground that the wreck of the Bega was still sub judice. The motion was agreed to.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—On Monday morning following the foundering of the Bega the notice board in the facade of the G.P.O., Sydney contained an announcement to the following effect:—"Vessel off the coast during the night burning red and blue lights." If this did not refer to the Bega another vessel was also in distress; if it did, her distress signals were duly observed. In either case, it would be extremely interesting to know what action was taken by the authorities to render assistance.

I am, etc., H. V. HAYNES.

THE LATE MR. JOSIAS MOFFATT.

DETAILS OF HIS WILL.

Probate of the will of the late Josias Moffatt, grazier, of Armidale, has been granted. Testator, who died in January last, appointed his widow, Bridget Moffatt, and his sons William Thomas, John Martin, and George Moffatt, executrix and executors, respectively, of his will, and trustees of the estate. He bequeathed to his widow for life his residence at Brown and Taylor streets, Armidale; also certain lands and his household furniture and effects for the use of herself and unmarried daughters, and also £4 per week to her and £2 per week each to his daughters Mary and Minnie until their marriage, after which they are to receive £500 out of the estate. The same amount (£500) is left to his married daughters, Elizabeth Mitchell and Johanna Glass, and £2500 to his son Richard. Provision had already been made for other members of the family, whose names did not appear in the will. Subject to these legacies, which are chargeable upon Yarrowyck, testator bequeathed the residue of the estate, together with live stock, etc., to his sons John Martin and George, and his grandson Josias Sleeman Moffatt, in equal shares. Testator's farm at Saumarez Ponds, known as Trevillie, together with certain other lands, he leaves to his son George; his property at Rusden-street, Armidale, to his widow, and his property in Beardy-street, Armidale, to his son Richard. The net value of the estate for purposes of probate was sworn at £27,137 14s 4d.

FOUND DROWNED.

The Acting City Coroner held an inquest on Thursday into the circumstances surrounding the death of William Curran, 38, a wharf labourer, lately residing in Judge-street, Woolloomooloo, whose body was found floating in the water near the foot of the Waverley Cemetery on the 12th inst.

The widow of the deceased gave evidence to the effect that she had last seen her husband on the morning of the 8th inst. He was very depressed, on account of being concerned in a police court case, and had informed her that he preferred death to gaol. When he left her he said he was going to see a solicitor about the case.

A verdict of "found drowned" was returned.

FIRE IN THE CITY.

A fire broke out at 1.3 p.m. yesterday in the premises occupied by Richard F. Colley, merchant and manufacturer, of College-lane, city. The flames started on the ground floor, where a quantity of beeswax and tallow was stored, but the prompt arrival of the Headquarters, Darlinghurst, and Paddington brigades prevented the fire from spreading. It was extinguished by the inmates and the Metropolitan Fire Brigade with buckets of water. The contents of the building were insured in the Colonial Mutual Insurance Company for £100. The building is owned by Miss Munroe, Trafalgar-street, Stanmore.

COMMON-SENSE TO CURE RHEUMATISM.

RUBBING WON'T CLEAR IT OUT OF THE BLOOD.

But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which act on the Blood, will; Crippled New South Wales men and women cured by their use.

The trouble with men and women who have Rheumatism is that they waste much time in trying to rub the complaint away. If they rub hard enough they make a certain amount of friction that causes warmth in the affected part, but in a short time the aches and twinges are as bad as ever. It's in the blood—that's why. Rubbing won't remove the acid that causes the pain. But Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will, because they are a blood medicine acting on the blood. That's why the aches and pains, and the stiff, swollen joints of Rheumatism disappear when they are used. That's why sensible people take them to cure Rheumatism.

Here is Proof in New South Wales that they Cure Rheumatism.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM.

"I am a carrier and am very much exposed to the weather," said Mr. H. Dryden, St. Elmo, Hill-street, Leichhardt, Sydney. "About 12 months ago I got soaking wet. I remained in this state without changing my clothes the whole day, and so when I tried to get up next morning, I found that I could not rise. My wife had to help me out of bed. A fearful pain took me between the shoulder blades, and when I drew my breath it was just as if a knife was cutting me in two. The pain reached to the small of my back. My wife brought the doctor to me, and he said that I was suffering from Muscular Rheumatism.

"He prescribed for me, but I got no benefit from it. Some of the members of my family had received great benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so I decided to try them. After several doses I was greatly relieved of the pain, and wanted to get out of bed. The doctor could scarcely credit it when he knew that I was back at work, and that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured me. I went on taking them until I had finished a course, and you can take my word for it that I have never had anything the matter with me since. To-day my health is A1."

LAID UP FOR 18 MONTHS.

"After getting wet I got Rheumatic Fever and then Rheumatism set in," said Mrs. Emma Coles, 20 Brown-street, Newtown, Sydney. "It struck me in every part of my body. I felt it first in the back, then in my hands, knees, and feet. On one occasion I was in bed for eighteen months, on another for seven. My limbs were bandaged with flannel to try and relieve the pain, which was always worse at night—in fact, I screamed most part of the night with it. During this time I took every patent medicine that other people recommended, or that I knew myself. And before taking these medicines I had a doctor. He told me my body was full of uric acid, and prescribed for me for a long time. Amongst other medicines, through his directions, I took over 200 bottles of iron. The doctors' bill alone was £45.

"But, needless to say, that nothing I took did me any good. Mr. Foot, chemist, of Orange, knowing that I had tried almost everything else, said, 'Why didn't I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?' I resolved to, and after taking a course I could manage to crawl about. I was greatly relieved of the pain, and could leave off the bandages, I kept on till I had got through another six boxes, when I became a perfectly-cured woman, without a pain or an ache. To-day my health is excellent. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any person suffering with Rheumatism."

THEY'RE A BLOOD-BUILDER.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the finest Blood-builders in the world. They are absorbed gently into the system, filling the veins with pure, rich, red blood, that carries healing health and strength to every part of the body.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have Cured Indigestion, Headaches, Nervousness, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Backache, Continual Weakness, and all other Blood Troubles.

Sold by all Chemists and the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Australasia, Ltd., Sydney. Price, 2/9 a box; six boxes, 15/3, post free.

LABOUR CONGRESS.

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES ACT.

DIVIDED OPINIONS.

The open sessions of the Labour Congress were resumed at the Trades Hall yesterday morning. In the absence of the president (Mr. P. B. Marshall), the chair was taken by Mr. Nulty (vice-president) of Broken Hill.

It was formally resolved that the result of the previous day's debate in committee concerning the attitude of congress towards the Industrial Disputes Act be communicated to the press.

The debate hinged on a motion by Mr. F. Briant, that congress endorse a resolution passed by the Sydney Labour Council in terms as follows:—"That all unions in the State be advised to ignore the Industrial Disputes Bill; that no steps be taken by unions to form wages boards; and that the method of the strike be relied upon as the only means of receiving fair and reasonable conditions, which Parliament has denied them." Mr. Briant made an impassioned appeal to congress to support the attitude taken up by the Sydney Labour Council, and contended that unless this were done trades-unionism throughout the State would be crippled.

Mr. A. Spence (Bread Carters' Union) moved as an amendment:—"That the congress affirms the necessity of an amendment of the Industrial Disputes Act in the direction of securing fuller recognition of the principles and rights of unionism, but (1) in view of the great difference of opinion that exists as to what the new Act contains, and (2) in view of the fact that the executive of the Sydney Labour Council drew up the circular submitted to its delegates before either the Legislative Assembly or the Legislative Council had finally dealt with the measure, this congress recommends that all unions affiliated to the council should meet, discuss, and find out the true contents of the Act before being compelled to uphold the council's decision."

After protracted debate, the amendment was carried on division by 40 votes to 37.

OVERTIME.

Mr. Spence (Bread-carters' Union) moved,—"That, in the opinion of this congress, the working of overtime is opposed to the true spirit of unionism, as it tends to increase the number of unemployed in our midst." He took up the position that the working of overtime was a violation of the eight-hour principle, and had the effect of increasing the number of unemployed. Moreover, as congress had decided to preach the doctrine of a 44-hours' week, they must, to be consistent, set their face against the working of overtime.

Mr. Blundell (Newcastle Wharf-labourers' Union) said that in those trades where the work was regular it might be practicable to do away with overtime, but, so far as members of the Wharf-labourers' Union were concerned, the working of overtime was inevitable.

Mr. MacBeth (Loco. Engine-drivers) said he loked upon overtime as a distinct evil, but at the same time he recognised the fact that in some callings it was inevitable. He suggested that the working of overtime would be held in check if paid for as time and a half or double time.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. Tracey (Operative Bakers' Association) moved,—"That congress advocate the abolition of all overtime in all trades and associations where practicable."

The motion was agreed to.

NIGHT WORK.

Mr. Tracey (Operative Bakers' Association) moved,—"That, where practicable, the abolition of night work in all trades and associations be advocated."

The motion was agreed to.

UNIFORM PAY FOR OVERTIME.

Mr. Whyte (Iron-moulders, Barrier branch) moved,—"That an endeavour be made to bring about a uniform rate of pay for all overtime worked in New South Wales."

The motion was agreed to.

ENSURING WAGE PAYMENTS.

Mr. P. J. Condon (Miners' Association, Wrightville) moved,—"That this congress favours passing into law a measure that will compel all registered companies to make provision for the payment of wages to their employees a first claim, irrespective of any other monetary obligations, however incurred." Mr. Condon said he had in his mind a registered company which closed down, prior to last Christmas, owing about £2000 in wages. About £200 had been spent in trying to recover the overdue pay, but without success.

The motion was agreed to.

THE WYALONG STRIKE.

The president announced, amid cheers, that the strike at Wyalong had been settled, and that trades unionism had won all along the line. It was decided to send a message of congratulation to the Wyalong miners.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. Thyer (Sydney Labour Council) occupied the chair at the afternoon session.

WOMEN'S WORK.

Mr. Crombie (Amalgamated Tailors) moved,—"That where females are employed, and do equal work with males, they shall receive equal rates of pay." He said that in the tailoring trade there was more sweating than in any other, and the main cause of this was the fact that there was a very large supply of female labour at one-third the cost of male labour. If the work done was of equal quality, the pay should be at the same rate.

The motion received support on the ground that it would operate as a check upon the tendency of employers to displace men by employing women at reduced rates of pay. The increasing extent to which female labour is being used was regarded as fraught with danger to the industrial classes as a whole.

The motion was agreed to.

CO-OPERATIVE DISTRIBUTION.

Mr. P. J. Condon (Miners' Association, Wrightville) moved,—"That in view of the industrial benefits derived from co-operative societies in the distribution of food supplies, the various unions in this State shall contribute a sum of money proportionate to their numerical strength, to be deposited in trust with the secretary of the Trades and Labour Council, Sydney, for the purpose of engaging a competent delegate to visit the various centres within the State expounding the advantages of co-operation, and for the purpose of obtaining and distributing literature and other matter pertaining to co-operation."

Mr. Pillans (Lithgow), speaking in support of the resolution, said that at Lithgow they had succeeded, in the face of much discouragement and organised opposition, in establishing a co-operative distributing society on a sound basis. They had an annual turnover of £30,000, and on this turnover they made a profit of from £3000 to £4000 a year. They employed 32 persons in working the business, and paid them the union rate of wages, and worked them the union hours. They had done this by their own individual efforts, and what they had done should be an encouragement to others to work on the same lines. It was not only as regards distribution that co-operation was a success. There were also great possibilities in co-operative production. He felt that if the motion were carried, it would assist even those societies that had become well established, and he certainly thought that the possibilities of co-operative distribution were far greater in the city than in country districts.

Mr. Nulty (Broken Hill) expressed the opinion that the resolution went too far. They had no right to ask the unions to vote any portion of their funds in the way proposed, and, moreover, he questioned whether all trade unions were free, even if they wished to, to apply funds in the way proposed. He approved of the co-operative principle, and moved as an amendment,—"That in view of the industrial benefits derived from co-operative societies in the distribution of food supplies, the various unions in the State be asked to seriously consider the matter, with a view to putting it into effective operation."

The amendment was accepted by Mr. Condon, and in its amended form the motion was agreed to.

AGREEMENTS WITH EMPLOYERS.

Mr. Hampton (Boilermakers) moved,—"That kindred trades should be amalgamated in such a way that none should be permitted to make a working agreement with employers without consulting kindred trades throughout the amalgamation."

The motion was agreed to.

EVENING SESSION.

FEDERATION OF LABOUR.

THE OBJECTIVE OF SOCIALISM.

Mr. Stuart-Robertson, M.L.A., presided.

Mr. Blundell (Newcastle Labour Council) moved, "Whereas it has been demonstrated that our present system of craft unionism is hopelessly impotent to prevent the exactions of concentrated capital; and, whereas, the position of the wage workers is year by year becoming more insecure; and, whereas, it is absolutely necessary that the workers should be organised industrially in order to cope successfully with the combination of capitalists, be it therefore resolved that this meeting adopts the preamble and constitution of the Industrial Workers of the World as the basis of organisation." Mr. Blundell argued that the time had come when the workers should put forth their strength by completing their organisation in both the political and industrial spheres. He knew of no better basis for this [illegible] organisation than the preamble to the constitution of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Mr. Clarke (Newcastle Labour Council) said that trades-unionism in its present form had outlived its usefulness. It was now time for them to join their forces and perfect their organisations with a view to a great forward movement.

Mr. Nulty (Broken Hill) objected to the preamble of the Industrial Workers of the World, for several reasons. It knocked out the progress made politically in Australia; it cut the ground from under their political labour parties, it had its origin in a country, that, so far as industrial politics were concerned, was 50 years behind Australia; and it was undoubtedly the objective of the socialist party. Nothing would please the opponents of the labour movement in Australia more than to read that the Labour party had been turned aside from its true objective by so impracticable a scheme as their socialist friends were seeking to commit them to. He moved an amendment, providing for "The federation of the whole of the labour organisations of Australasia, with the view of ensuring industrial peace through united action."

Mr. Spence (Australian Workers' Union) altogether dissented from the view that had been expressed that their political labour movement had been a failure. On the contrary, it had proved a very great success against tremendous odds. The time was not far distant when the workers would secure control of the law-making machinery. That was the objective they should keep steadily in view. It was a legitimate objective, and it would, when realised, give them what they wanted. But the platform of the Industrial Workers of the World proposed the methods of the universal strike. Trades-unionists in Australia were in the main practical men. They had faced issues as they arose from time to time, and he wanted to see this policy continued. But there was a small minority working against the true interests of trades-unionists, possibly with the most honest motives, and it behoved them to be on their guard against being turned aside from the attainable by the visionary. The ideal of the Industrial Workers of the World did not fit in with Australian ideas or with the temper of the Australian people.

The debate was carried on till shortly after 10 o'clock, and was then adjourned till 10 o'clock this morning.

CHARGE OF CONSPIRACY.

Cornelius O'Donoghue, aged 23, salesman, and Albert Hardy, 27, clerk, were charged at the Central Police Court yesterday morning, before Mr. Clarke, D.S.M., with conspiring together to cheat and defraud W. W. Campbell and Co., Limited, of large quantities of furniture, of the value of £400, between January 1 and March 25.

Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. J. B. Frawley for the defence.

William Edward Swan, chief clerk at Darling Harbour station, said that the consignment notes produced were in the handwriting of accused Hardy.

Arthur Leary, senior-constable, said that at 8 a.m. on the 3rd he called at the residence of O'Donoghue, at Maracot-street, Marrickville, with Constables Surridge, Pauling, and Souter, and said they were police inquiring about some furniture stolen from Campbell's. Accused said he was not surprised, as he was expecting it, and he asked him not to bring anybody in who was not guilty. They need not go out of the warehouse to look for the guilty ones. There were some young fellows doing small things, but they did not know it was "crook." Witness said there were different lots of furniture from the warehouse consigned from Darling Harbour to various stations in the country during the last three months, particulars of which were not in the firm's order book. Consignments of furniture were sent to Liverpool, Merrylands, Penrith, St. Marys, Blacktown, Thirroul, Heathcote, and Sutherland. The accused replied, "I admit all that. They were all crook consignments." The constable took the accused to No. 1 Police Station, where O'Donoghue said that Campbell only paid him 35s per week, he couldn't live on that, and he got into debt, so he took the furniture to get square. He had sold furniture to two men, but they did not know it was "crook." Witness continuing, said that later on he saw the other accused at the station, and he admitted sending furniture. He knew the game was "up," and admitted everything, and said there was only O'Donoghue and himself in it. The conspiracy operations had only been carried on since January last.

Other evidence was given, and the further hearing of the case was adjourned till Wednesday.

A WOMAN'S FRIEND IN NEED.

Woman's delicate constitution necessitates gentle remedies when there is any tendency to a constipated condition. The robust woman, the delicate woman, the growing girl, the young mother, and the elderly matron, are alike benefited to the utmost by California Syrup of Figs, which promptly and pleasantly remedies all their ills which do not arise from serious organic trouble. It is also a delight to children on account of its delicious flavour. Of all chemists, 1s 3d and 1s 11d.—Advt.

MASTER PLUMBERS' CONVENTION.

A REQUEST TO PARLIAMENT.

PERTH, Thursday.

The seventh convention of the Master Plumbers of Australasia opened at the Town Hall on Wednesday morning. The representatives present were:—N.S.W., Messrs. H. Simpson (secretary), S. W. Hart, J. M. Lapsley, and A. W. Robey; Victoria, Messrs. G. S. Huell, C. C. Lyons, and J. Boswell; Queensland, Messrs. H. Dunn, T. Whelan; S.A., J. G. Brooks; W.A., C. R. Brady, D. Whitehead, and H. Armstrong. The vice-president, Mr. Armstrong, presided. On the motion of Mr. Robey (N.S.W.) it was resolved that the Commonwealth Government be approached, and asked to remove or reduce the duty of 35 per cent. on plumbers' wooden tools. The convention adjourned till Thursday.

The plumbers' conference was resumed to-day. Mr. Robey (N.S.W.) moved,—"That the conference approve of the adoption of a system of registration, suitable for the Commonwealth, to be formulated by a committee, to be forwarded to and dealt with by the State associations, which shall make arrangements for its general adoption." The motion was carried. A motion submitted at the previous meeting in favour of supplying operatives with a form of discharge was further discussed, and rejected.

CESSNOCK COLLIERIES.

CESSNOCK, Friday.

The local collieries continue to work full time, and there is every indication of continued prosperity. The driving of the tunnels on the Bellbird estate is progressing satisfactorily. The tunnels are now in about 140ft.

Clearing work is still in progress at Wood's Yards, where sinking is about to start.

The Abermain Coal Company are having 100 new waggons built. Half the number are expected at the colliery this week. This will facilitate the export, as work is occasionally lost through shortness of waggons.

TONICS NO GOOD.

CRAVED WHOLESOME, DIGESTIBLE FOOD.

In nervous dyspepsia, when every cell in the body is being starved, tonics are quite useless, because they supply nothing that the body cells can build up into muscle, grey matter, or tissue. The only effectual cure is a partially predigested food, which will put just enough work, and only just enough, on the digestive organs to coax them slowly, but surely, to resume their proper function. A Wiltshire schoolmaster realised this fact very keenly, and he gladly tells how he found this ideal food in the partially predigested Grape-Nuts.

"Some three years ago," he writes, "owing to close study at night and heavy scholastic duties in the daytime, I got very thin and sickly. I suffered, in fact, from nervous dyspepsia, which gave rise to sleeplessness. I went to the doctor, and he gave me a tonic. But I soon found that something more than a tonic was necessary. I needed wholesome food that my weak stomach could digest; for it was just the nourishment and strength to be had from the food that I wanted.

"A friend of mine told me that Grape Nuts was just the food I needed—so nourishing, so eminently digestible. I bought a packet at once, and could tell from the ease with which I digested the first dish that I had now found the food I had been in search of. After the other and tasteless foods I had been trying in vain to take I found the crisp, sweet Grape-Nuts simply delicious. In a week I was greatly improved in health, and I persevered with the food, never dropping it for a single day.

"It is now nearly three years ago since I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts, and I eat them to-day with the same keen relish. I am physically and mentally better than I have been for years. I have gained much in weight, and sleep well, and I get through my work with ease and comfort. I know nothing I recommend so often to my friends as I do my favourite dish of Grape-Nuts."

There's a reason. See the "Road to Wellville" in each packet.

Grape-Nuts food should always be served dry, fresh, and crisp, just as it comes from the factory ovens, and now this is ensured because the makers cover all packets with a special paper which excludes the moisture. Accept no other kind. The makers take back the old kind from the grocers.—Advt.

A heavy rainfall and the rapid melting of the snow on the hills recently caused heavy floods in the North of England. Hundreds of acres around Carlisle were under water, and the main road between England and Scotland was flooded to the depth of 12ft.

IN MEMORIAM.

ARDILLE.—In sad but loving remembrance of my darling and only sister, Phyllis Rosmond, who passed away suddenly, April 25, 1907, aged 17 years and 10 months.

Oh yes, it was hard at the last separation
To part with my Phyllis, so loving and true.
My heart and my home feel a wide, wide desolation
Since bidding my Phyllis a last sad adieu.
Though above with her Saviour, where grief is unknown,
In sorrow and tears are her loved ones at home.

Inserted by her sorrowing sister and brother-in-law, Amy and Arthur Jones, and little niece Edna. Deeply regretted.

BERG.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Bridget, who departed this life at Balmain, April 25, 1907, aged 63 years. Dead, but not forgotten. Inserted by her loving husband, J. Berg.

COCKETT.—In loving remembrance of my dear wife and our beloved mother, Rebecca Cockett, who passed suddenly away at Epping, April 26, 1907.

Not a pause, but a step, and a birth.
Sadly we miss her, but yet in our sorrow
Hopes for the future can banish the pain;
Faith points the way to a bright to-morrow,
And whispers to us, we'll meet her again.

Inserted by her loving husband and children.

COEN.—In sad memory of the late Michael Coen, J.P., who died at Yass April 26, 1896. R.I.P.

CUNNINGHAM.—In loving memory of my darling girl, Tessie Cunningham, who departed this life April 25, 1907.

How I miss my darling girl,
No one on earth can guess;
My own, my sweetest purest pearl,
My dear, my darling Tess.
Friends may think we have forgotten you,
When at times they see us smile;
But they little know what a breaking heart
That smile hides all the while.

Inserted by her loving mother.

CUNNINGHAM.—In loving memory of our dear sister, Tessie, who departed this life April 25, 1907.

We are parted now a year, dear,
By the gulf 'tween life and death;
But your memory, Tess, we have no fear,
Will keep green while we have breath.

Inserted by her loving sisters and brother, May, Ruby, and Clive Cunningham.

CUNNINGHAM.—In loving memory of my dearest friend and companion, Tessie, who died April 25, 1907, aged 21 years and 10 months. Inserted by Annie.

YOUR PRESENT FOR A LADY,
"NO. 4711."

A highly appropriate and suitable gift for a lady is perfumery, especially if it be sent in cut-glass and choice wrappings. But a perfumery gift must be of high quality or it may be lightly regarded. Many so-called perfumes of the cheaper kind are really malodorous to refined persons. On the quality of your gift its reception must largely depend. Without any extravagance of language we can affirm that "No. 4711" perfumery is absolutely delightful in its dainty fragrance—such a gift as no lady could receive with indifference or scorn.

To learn what is thought of "No. 4711" in your own city of Sydney see Washington Soul's window in Pitt-street, visit the Civil Service Stores, or the Palace Emporium of Anthony Hordern and Sons—in fact, any chemist's shop or store. All vote "No. 4711" Eau de Cologne and "No. 4711" Rose Glycerine Soap absolutely first. They are good. Try them.

KINGS STILL COUNT.

To the outside world there is something not a little amusing in the suggestion of a German State Councillor that twenty-two monarchies within the Empire should be abolished, to the end that the taxpayer may be saved fifty million pounds a year. In an abstract sort of way nearly everybody knows that the German Empire is a compound of many States; but that these States together should account for no fewer than twenty-two full-blooded monarchies is a fact so far from being generally realised as to have all the charm of a new and almost startling disclosure. For one thing, it accounts for Germany's astonishing richness in noblemen, a richness which has long confounded other countries less generously endowed than the Fatherland in this respect. It is significant, however, that the abolition of this swelter of monarchies is urged solely as a matter of business expediency. The principle of monarchy is not called into question at all. There is no proposal for the abolition of the great Teutonic overlord, the Emperor William; and perhaps it is because he fills the role so effectually that there is room for the suggestion that no kingly work is left for which it is worth paying the price of a first-class navy. Worthy of more than passing remark is it that while Germany possesses a party, already large and rapidly growing, which has a more or less definite brand of socialism for its aim, there appears to be no party, calling for serious notice, which has a republican form of government as its objective. There may be an itching to limit the Emperor's powers to the extent, say, that the British King's powers are limited; but among no class is there any idea of trying to get along without any Emperor at all.

The vitality of the monarchical idea, not in Germany especially, but throughout the entire old world, is one of the most impressive facts of present-day history. Had the philosophy which gave us republican France, and also republican America, fulfilled its wild first promise the institution of monarchy would to-day, in Europe at least, be but an interesting reminiscence. But instead of Kings having gone the way of witches the twentieth century sees them more firmly established in the political scheme of things than perhaps ever before. Republicanism finds especial difficulty in usurping the place of monarchy in countries of age and tradition. Putting aside little Switzerland, to which special circumstances apply, we find France as the only country in Europe in which the republican principle has achieved an apparent triumph. But so uneasily do cold republican forms fit upon the ardent French temperament, that but for the impossibility of restoring in its symbolic completeness that which has been destroyed, France to-day would probably not be sustaining her present exceptional role among European Powers. In Italy and in Spain republican sentiment has received, at best, but fugitive expression; and while in the Portuguese capital a few months ago the most dramatic regicide in modern history was instigated by a political faction nominally republican in its character, the feeble hold of republican sentiment in that country is shown by the cordial acquiescence of the great body of the nation in the very promising kingship of the young Manuel II. Democratically-minded Norway, on parting from Sweden only recently, had the opportunity of deliberately choosing as between president or king, and chose a king. It might be said that the institution of monarchy is threatened in Russia; but the fight in Russia is not a fight for republicanism—republicanism is positively unthinkable in Russia—but a blind protest against "things as they are." At the angle from which we more happily-situated people are prone to see things, the reluctance of the Czar to grant a Constitution, as subsequently his resistance to the demands of the Duma which was brought into existence under the qualified Constitution he ultimately did grant, may seem both cruel and stupid. But it is not at all improbable that history will vindicate the Czar. Changes in Russia, to be salutary and enduring, must come slowly, very slowly. The Duma wanted to precipitate them. The Czar put on the brake. Before the revolutionary outbreak, the popular conception of him was that of a shrinking, indecisive man—a mere puppet in the hands of able bureaucrats. During that outbreak and since he has shown himself to be a man with, as a distinguished English publicist has recently said, "more nerve, more judgment, more persistency, than he was credited by any foreign observer with possessing"; and even if he has succeeded mainly by accepting firm advice, he has saved his dynasty from destruction, his Empire from anarchy and his subjects from themselves. Even if we go to the Americas we scarcely find republicanism the force which we might expect it to be. In South America republics of a sort obtain, but they are really only alternating dictatorships, and all the time delightfully unstable. In the United States we have perhaps the best exemplification of republicanism in modern times, but even there the system makes us much more aware of its defects than its virtues.

The weakness of the republican principle lies in the fact that it leaves the nation largely at the mercy of factions. The president of the time is, inevitably, but the chief of the dominant faction. And unless he is an unusual man he will order his actions in the manner he thinks most acceptable to the party to whom he owes his tenure of office. He but represents a party of the moment. Neither in his own person nor through his office does he symbolise the unity and historic continuity of a nation as does an hereditary monarch, even though he be, as an individual, painfully indifferent. The strength of a King lies in the fact that he stands detached, the representative of the nation, above and apart from faction, and thus is in a position to correct its excesses. It is an inherent defect of republicanism that a president cannot for long make himself a supreme force in a community without endangering the republican principle. Hence the jealous safeguards which obtain in most republican countries against long occupancy of office by any one man. A monarch, however, can, if he be a big enough man, energise a people, and incite it to great achievements, without challenging the green eye of even the greatest of his subjects. Two most remarkable modern instances of positive quality in kingship are furnished by the work of the Emperor William and the Mikado. Our own King, though denied the exercise of executive power by the Constitution, is nevertheless exerting an influence on policy, especially international policy, which we could scarcely imagine any president exerting, be he never so able. Did we desire a further example of service to a nation which only an established monarch is in a position to render, we need only look to Turkey, where the Sultan after thirty years of resistance, amounting, as has been well said, to the "most wonderful defensive achievement in the records of diplomacy," has once again broken up a European concert. China, again, might easily be in a very parlous way by now, were it not for the powerful personal influence of the Queen Dowager. The defects of monarchial government, of course, are great enough, and its abuses sufficiently serious and frequent; but they are not now to the point. What we are at present noticing is the firm place which kingship, whether absolute or qualified, still holds in the world as a working principle of government; and particularly so in Europe, where the doctrines of republicanism have been persistently and continuously pressed upon popular attention for upwards of a hundred years.

THE CANADIAN TERCENTENARY

It is a singularly fortunate coincidence that the tercentenary of the settlement of Canada should fall to be celebrated at a time when the friendship of England and France, and of England and America, is established on a firm basis. Nothing so concerns the progress of Europe in all that can be effected by Governments as a good understanding leading to co-operation between peoples. In the history of Canada there has been no problem so difficult or so persistent as that covered by the presence in a British community of a large and self-contained province inhabited by people of French descent. The pageant to be held in July at the time of the Prince of Wales' visit will deal almost entirely with a portion of the history of France. Champlain, the hero of the celebrations, was not the first of the adventurous French traders to form a settlement in Canada. Before he came a busy trade in fur had been established, much of it by companies formed and subsidised for the purpose of colonisation. A great deal of exploration had been done in the hope that a new route would be found by some means which would shorten the journey between Europe and the East. Champlain sailed up the St. Lawrence in the summer of 1608 in a barque of fifteen tons, having on board the materials for a factory to be erected at the narrows called Quebec. He left the two other vessels of his flotilla at Tadoussac, where before his time it had been the custom for all captains to remain, on account of their ignorance of the dangers hidden in the course of the river. Quebec was the most westerly point yet reached by Europeans, and there the first settlement of Canada was formed by a few interpreters and factors for trade and the workmen sent out to erect a depot, a two-storied wooden building, surrounded by a moat and secured by cannon.

Champlain came to Quebec as the agent of some merchants of Rouen, who had secured one of the last monopolies granted by the French King. His purpose was trade, and it was entirely successful. But he was by temperament an explorer. He dreamed that his name might become famous in the same way as that of Magellan, who first taught the world that America is a separate continent. It seemed to him quite possible that beyond the rapids of Lachine there might lie a waterway to the Southern Sea, or that he might come upon it suddenly like the explorers at Darien. For seven years Champlain kept this purpose in view. His monopoly was at an end after one year, but in the course of the work of explorer and trader he added not only to the wealth of his company, but to the geographical knowledge then extant. His example was followed by his countrymen. With the exception of the three years from 1629 to 1632 the French flag floated above the ramparts of Quebec until 1759, when Wolfe won a battle as honourable to the conquered as to the conqueror. The course of their hundred and fifty years is as strong a proof of the great qualities of the French race as any period in their history. The French Canadians produced statesmen, warriors, and explorers of a high order, who showed that ability to comprehend and sympathise with their subject peoples which has been given to Frenchmen and denied to men of another race. Their descendants, surrounded by men of another race and subject to another Government have preserved their individuality in a remarkable degree. They remain a representative of France as it was, untouched by the shock of the revolution and by the fierce discussions which preceded it. The history of Quebec is reflected in the half-military, half ecclesiastic, wholly aristocratic character of the greater part of the town. The tradition of the people is shown in the rhymes handed on by one generation to another, with their references to the power of the King of France, and by their versions of the story of Marlborough going to the wars with an Indian chief in the part of the ogre. Students tell us that the work of French Canadian poets has a national spirit far more marked than that of other Canadian writers. It is certainly better appreciated by those to whom it is addressed.

Such a result is one that would be expected from the circumstances of the French Canadian people, their political separation from their own race, and their existence as a minority in the State. The single occasion on which the spirit of hostility between the two races was expressed in open revolt was the rebellion which was followed by the passing of the British North America Act. Lord Durham and his two assistants, Wakefield and Buller, then took the same course as was taken by the Liberal Government when they gave a constitution to South Africa, and obeyed the same spirit. They refused to accede to the demands of the successful loyalists for revenge, they bore a load of abuse and accusations of all kinds, and the result of their work is one of the achievements of the British as a colonising people on which they can look with unqualified pride. However ardently they have retained their individuality, the French Canadians have always been an opposing force whenever a tendency has become manifest towards the secession of Canada to the United States. Under the Premiership of Sir John Macdonald they went on increasing, until their place in the community was given its proper symbol on the accession to power of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. To-day the Dominion has other and more obvious problems than that of the union of races. It is only lately that the greatness of her wealth in the western provinces and in British Columbia has been realised. The farmers of the United States, as appears from one of our yesterday's cables, appreciate the richness of the wheat-growing area of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, and their merchants turn to the forests of Canada now that their own mountains have been stripped almost to the snow limit. Even if there is nothing equal to the Comstock lode in British Columbia, it is now thought that there are mines in the Klondike as rich as those of California ever were, and as yet almost entirely undeveloped. To assist in the working of these sources of wealth there are coalfields at either end of the continent, in Vancouver and in Nova Scotia, which are practically inexhaustible, and which seem to assure to Canada the ultimate supremacy of the American continent. The questions which agitate the inheritors of these great possessions are, therefore, not so much political as economic. The farmers and manufacturers need more men of the right stamp to serve them, more railways, and broader and deeper canals to the St. Lawrence, and the present Ministry has shown its sense of these necessities. Nevertheless, the racial problem remains. Whatever work is undertaken by Canada as a member of a united Empire can only be carried out successfully if the French and English races are united in policy and sympathy as they are in interest, and if the whole people appreciate their obligations. The chief significance of the pageant next July and of the Prince's visit will be found in its symbolism of the unity of us all—

Who stretch one hand to Huron's bearded pines,
And one on Kashmir's snowy shoulder lay,
And round the streaming er whose raiment shines
The iris of the Australasian spray.

To-day's Herald.—Mr. Lucy's letter this week has special interest, because in anticipation it touches the probabilities of a reconstructed British Cabinet with a sure hand, and throws some interesting light upon the German Emperor's letter to Lord Tweedmouth. The King was one of those to whom the letter was shown, and the "Times" revelation seems to have been given another blow. Mr. Lucy has also something interesting to tell about the converted guns with which it is proposed to arm the volunteer artillery. Our New York correspondent gives some timely information about the great cruise of the American squadron, and it is evident that the people of the United States are watching developments with absorbed attention. Mr. Norman Selfe, one of the members of the commission recently appointed to discuss the needs of the metropolis, contributes an exceedingly interesting article upon Sydney, entitled "An Unrivalled Site." He shows, among other things, that New York is being remodelled at a cost of many millions, and that on a similar basis Sydney should spend £10,000,000. In view of the meeting of the Premiers' Conference the series of articles on "Federal Finance" will be worth reading, and the third is published to-day. Our chess column also deserves attention with its news about the "Herald" tourney, as does the column devoted to poultry, which deals with old breeds and breeders. Mr. Hamlet continues his "Pictures of Travel," and takes us as far as the Dorrigo, where he was offered 9s per day to stop and help with farm work. The usual space is devoted to literature and music and drama, and the paper as a whole this Saturday is unusually bright and readable.

The Premiers' Conference.—A great deal of inconvenience is likely to be occasioned to the State Premiers if the request of the Prime Minister that the discussion of questions affecting the Commonwealth be deferred till the end of the approaching conference is complied with. Several of the Premiers are limited as to the time, and it is probable that Mr. Deakin will be asked to make an effort to attend the conference with Sir William Lyne as early as possible, in order that full consideration may be given to any proposal submitted in relation to financial questions. It is believed that the Commonwealth Treasurer's scheme for distributing the Customs revenue has not yet been prepared, and that the delay sought is as much on that account as because of the tariff discussion. Mr. Wade, who has gone on a trip to Tasmania, will reach Melbourne on Monday, and the conference is to be opened on Tuesday morning. The State Treasurer (Mr. Waddell) and Mr. Ashton (Honorary Minister) leave by Sunday night's express for Melbourne, and Mr. Vernon, Auditor-General, and Mr. Boyce, Comptroller of Accounts, will go over to advise the Treasurer on financial questions.

Industrial Disputes Act.—The measure recently passed by Parliament to replace the Industrial Arbitration Act will come into force on a date to be proclaimed. The machinery is now being prepared to permit of the Act being proclaimed in operation as from July 1. The present Act expires on June 30, and with it the Arbitration Court will cease to exist. Owing to the number of disputes filed for hearing, it is necessary that the new Act should not be brought into operation till absolutely necessary, in order that as much progress as possible may be made with the cases pending. It was stated some weeks ago that Mr. Justice Heydon will be the President of the Court under the Industrial Disputes Act, and that Mr. G. C. Addison, registrar under the Arbitration Act, would be industrial registrar under the new order of things. Mr. Ashton (who is acting for the Premier) stated yesterday that both Mr. Justice Heydon and Mr. Addison had been formally offered and had accepted the positions referred to.

As Others See Us.—A correspondent writes from London to Dr. Arthur, the president of the Immigration League of Australasia:—"Australians as a whole do not seem to realise that immigration is the one great question of importance to themselves. The last few years has brought Australia into the chess board of international politics. At present, you are the 'pawns' protected by England's 'knights.' But right down in the feelings of many folk over here is the opinion that unless the 'pawns' advance, it may pay to lose them. I heard that threatening speech of Sir W. Robson last month, when he went out of his way to say that 'Australia could not preserve its immunity from foreign attack a twelvemonth if it were not for the Navy, towards the cost of which England has substantially the whole of the burden.' Australia must fill up or go under. Yet folk your way do not see their urgent need. Even the big politicians seldom do. They come over here, are feasted and feted, and only skim over the surface of British sentiments, and they do not realise that Britishers as a whole are of opinion that Australia should fill up more quickly." Another gentleman writes:—"I fear that unless funds are provided by Australia for granting assisted passages, not much can be done to induce a desirable class of immigrant to go out there. It seems that reliable farm labourers are badly wanted in Australia, and that rural industries are handicapped by the scarcity of labour. There appears to be no scarcity of agricultural labourers here, and wages rule at from 14s to 16s a week, out of which the worker has to keep himself and family. And whereas the farmer here gets cheaper labour, he also gets a higher price for his produce. This leads me to think that the advantages of emigration to Australia would be greater to the farm labourer than to his employer."

The High Court.—The High Court of Australia began its sittings in Sydney on the 30th of last month, and finished them yesterday. In the period which has intervened it has heard five cases, the most important of which was the special case stated to test the validity of the union label. Four judgments have been delivered, one a reserved one in a case heard last sittings, and the rest on matters which have been argued during the present term. The Court will sit in Brisbane on Tuesday, and will probably resume the Sydney sittings on May 5. According to the roster for the year, the Melbourne sittings are timed to begin on May 19, but in view of the press of business in Sydney the Judges have decided to extend the time until May 26. When the Court returns to Sydney the hearing of argument on the steel rails case will be resumed.

Unionism and the Industrial Disputes Act.—By a narrow majority of three votes—40 to 37—the labour congress now in session at the Trades Hall took up a non-committal attitude with respect to the Industrial Disputes Act. The Sydney Labour Council, without waiting until Parliament had finished shaping the new Act, passed a resolution recommending trade unions to ignore it, and subsequently took steps with the object of inducing the labour congress to back up this attitude. A difficult position was created. The delegates from the labour council, anxious to save their faces, fought hard for the adoption of their recommendation. The critics of the Labour party in Parliament, and they are neither few in number nor reasonable in their criticism, and, it may be not disinclined to change places with the Parliamentarians, ranged themselves on the side of the labour council. This combination of forces was strengthened by the votes of those who regard loyalty to the council, whether right or wrong, as a point of honour, and by the votes of those who honestly believed that trades-unionists were the only people whose rights should be conserved under the new Industrial Act. The appeal was to prejudice rather than to reason, and the task of the moderates, who realised the danger to unionism, through a false position being taken up, was, therefore, a difficult one. The situation was saved by the adoption by 40 votes to 37 of an amendment, by which congress recommended "That all unions affiliated to the Sydney Labour Council should meet, discuss, and find out the true contents of the Act before being compelled to uphold the council's decision."

Sydney Tram Cars in Melbourne.—When the St. Kilda tram-shed and a quantity of rolling stock were destroyed some months ago, the New South Wales tramway authorities went to the assistance of the Melbourne tramway system in a very prompt and substantial way. Several electric cars were despatched to Melbourne by rail, in order that the service to St. Kilda might be resumed as soon as possible. To make certain that the stock was in good working order, cars in actual use on the Sydney lines were selected. Mr. Bradford, whose management of the St. Kilda tram system is now the subject of inquiry, has stated that some of the shortcomings of the line, about which complaints were made, arose from the fact that the cars supplied from Sydney were defective and unworkable. The tramway authorities deny this allegation, and reasonably point to the fact that the same cars were worked in Sydney with satisfactory results.

Wharf Strike Settlement.—The conference between representatives of the unions and the shipping companies as to the grievances alleged to be suffered by certain of the union men since the settlement of the strike was continued yesterday in the North Coast Company's boardroom. An amicable settlement was arrived at on all points, and no further trouble is expected.

Men of Straw.—In most cases where it is the duty of a jury to determine on which side the balance of testimony rests, the burden is arduous enough, and it is sometimes rendered more onerous by counsel's addresses, which are naturally based on premises impossible to reconcile. Yesterday a learned gentleman, in a civil action, spoke in laudatory terms of the principal witnesses called on behalf of his client, the defendant. He described them as wholly disinterested persons who had no motive in giving false evidence, and whose respectability and demeanour must have favourably impressed the jury. Then came the turn of the advocate for the plaintiff, and his forensic eloquence opened in this way: "In former times at the Courts at Westminster, the men used to go about with straws in their boots, and for a pecuniary consideration were always ready to swear according to instructions. That was the origin of the term 'men of straw'." Having thus prepared the minds of the four gentlemen in the box for what was coming, he condemned several witnesses called on the other side in good round terms, and pictured one as "shivering and shaking in the box, twisting his hat nervously and changing colour." The jury naturally turned with relief from the lurid rhetorical fireworks of opposing counsel to the summing up of the case by the Judge.

Western Coalfield.—The Mines Department has issued a memoir, "The Geology and Mineral Resources of the Western Coalfield," by Mr. J. E. Carne, F.G.S., Assistant Government Geologist. The work deals in detail with the general geology of that portion of the Blue Mountains, particular attention being devoted to the occurrence and character of the various seams of coal and kerosene shale—the total yield of coal from the western coalfield to the end of 1907 is 9,731,846 tons. The industrial undertakings of the Lithgow district also receive attention—the Commonwealth Portland cement works, the pottery works, the Great Cobar copper smelting, and Hoskins Brothers' iron smelting works. Special attention has been directed to the geology of the massive sandstones of the Hawkesbury series, of which the greater portion of the Blue Mountains is composed, their origin, and the relation to the mesozoic coal measures of the Clarence River; and the artesian water-bearing beds is discussed. A chapter is devoted to the history of the exploration of the Blue Mountains by early Government surveyors and botanists—Sir T. L. Mitchell, Govett, Caley, and Cunningham. The work is illustrated by numerous views, and is accompanied by a portfolio of geological maps and sections showing the structure of the area.

A Word of Friendly Advice.—Not the most fanatical of all the Labour zealots has ever suggested the inclusion of Judge Heydon among those "unsympathetic administrators" of the old Arbitration Act, of whom so much has been heard, and all shades of this political party would do well to consider the word of friendly advice he gave yesterday, in responding to the congratulations on his appointment as President of the new Industrial Court. Remarking that though he did not wish to interfere in anything outside his sphere, he could not help seeing that the industrial classes were hesitating whether they could embark upon the experiment of the new Act. "If they will allow me to say a word to them in the kindest possible feeling," said his Honor, "I will venture to urge them to give the Act a trial, not condemn it without trying it." The fears now felt might prove unfounded, he reminded them, and as the success or failure of the measure depended upon its administration—which was largely in his hands—he could assure them that he would spare no pains to make it a success. "If you condemn it at all," he concluded, "condemn it only after it has been tried and found guilty."

In connection with the races at Randwick to-day it is notified that a frequent service will be run from Circular Quay and central loop (western railway gates), commencing at 11 a.m. The first-class tram will leave Bridge-street at noon.

The first of the 1908 series of Melbourne to Sydney interstate tours, conducted by the New South Wales Government Tourist Bureau, will take place on May 3, and the following week will be devoted to an exploration of the holiday resorts of this State. An opportunity will be given to local residents to join the excursions on the harbour, and in the Hawkesbury River, Illawarra, and Blue Mountain districts. The trips extend from May 4 to 8, and may be booked together or separately.

The Pacific Cable Board report that a temporary interruption took place on the Queensland cable owing to operations of the cable-repairing steamer Iris, near Southport. The officials expected that the ship would complete its work and restore communication yesterday afternoon. In the meantime all traffic has been circulating through New Zealand without delay.

The Water and Sewerage Board is now taking proceedings for the recovery of all outstanding accounts.

PERSONAL.

Archbishop Carr, of Melbourne, accompanied by Bishop Higgins, of Ballarat, will leave Melbourne by the R.M.S. Mongolia on Tuesday. After spending a few days in England the Archbishop will go on to Ireland, and during his visit there, which will occupy about three months, he will be present at the consecration of the new church of St. John, in Kilkenny. This church, which cost £30,000, was built by Thos. Loughlin, of Ballarat. He expects to be absent about 12 months, and Dean Phelan will administer the affairs of the archdiocese during the Archbishop's absence.

Apparently the indisposition of Mr. Bent, Premier of Victoria, is not so trifling as was at first imagined. He returned from his visit to Ballarat a fortnight ago suffering from a heavy cold, and a period of incessant coughing has considerably weakened him. He is now suffering from an affection of the throat. It is not likely that he will be about much before the opening of the Premiers' Conference on Tuesday.

Major-General J. C. Hoad, C.M.G., Inspector-General of the Commonwealth Military Forces, and Colonel R. H. Davies, C.B., Inspector-General of the New Zealand Forces, after spending Thursday night in camp at Liverpool, arrived in Sydney yesterday.

Mr. Warden Harry Graves died at a quarter to 7 yesterday, at his residence, Kilmarnock, Jersey-road, Woollahra. The late Mr. Graves came of a good old family, which has been largely represented in the Army and the Church. He was born in Ireland on August 12, 1834, and was the youngest son of the late Captain John Baker Graves, of the 14th Light Dragoons. He came out to Australia in the fifties, and first acquired his knowledge of pastoral pursuits in Riverina, and soon became very familiar with the requirements of the industry which has been such a great factor in Australian progress. After engaging in the stock and station agency business in Deniliquin and Melbourne, he came to Sydney, where he built up a large business. He was very widely known to all those connected with pastoral pursuits, being as he was one of the veteran stock and station agents of Australia. He leaves a widow, one son, Mr. John Graves, and three daughters. One daughter, Mrs. Moore, predeceased him, two daughters are unmarried, the other daughter being Mrs. R. Simpson.

Mr. H. R. Forbes Mackay, the new city electrical engineer, yesterday practically assumed the duties of his office. He visited the power house on the previous afternoon, and yesterday morning attended at the Town Hall and met the officers of his department. Mr. Rooke, his predecessor, leaves for England on Tuesday.

At the Middle Head encampment of the Australian Garrison Artillery, Lieutenant-Colonel Lester, V.D., A.G.A., presented Corporal Souter, of No. 4 (Wollongong) Company, A.G.A., with a long service medal.

Mr. S. Monaghan, who has been promoted to a position in the Melbourne Post-office, was on Thursday evening entertained at a smoke concert in the School of Arts, Drummoyne, and presented with a traveller's complete outfit.

Dr. O. E. Bruce Withers has been appointed medical superintendent; Dr. R. A. Phipps Waugh, hon. medical officer; and Miss L. Shiell, matron of the Granville Electorate Cottage Hospital, Auburn.

On Thursday evening Mr. T. Rooke, late city electrical engineer, was entertained at dinner at Petty's Hotel by the Electrical Association of New South Wales, prior to his departure for Europe on the 28th instant. The toast of the evening was proposed by the president, Mr. A. W. Kendall, and supported by Mr. J. E. Donoghue. The opportunity was taken by Mr. O. W. Brain to extend a welcome to the newly-appointed city electrical engineer, Mr. H. R. Forbes Mackay, on behalf of the association.

Mr. Donald Hattersley, the well-known Mudgee rifle shot, will sail at an early date for England, it being his intention while there to participate in the Bisley competitions.

We have to record the death of Mr. Frank D. M'Donald, manager of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, Ltd., of Young, where he has been the last few years, prior to which he was manager of the bank at Bombala, Burrowa, Taree, and the Paterson.

On Thursday night, at the Glebe Town Hall, ex-Alderman Dunn, who for 32 years was alderman and mayor of the local council, was entertained by the citizens. The Mayor of Glebe, Alderman Cole, presided over a meeting of about 60 residents, and after eulogising Mr. Dunn's work for the locality presented him with an illuminated address and tea and coffee service and salver. Mr. Dunn's reply included many interesting reminiscences of Glebe, extending over his period of residence there of 55 years. Amongst those present were Alderman P. C. Lucas, a colleague of Mr. Dunn's for about 30 years.

Mr. William Smith, one of the original proprietors of the Baker's Creek gold mine, Hillgrove, died at Armidale yesterday.

Mr. William Alexander Abbott, at one time Deputy Registrar-General of New South Wales, died yesterday at the age of 80 years, at the residence of his son, Mr. F. Abbott, in Balmain.

THE FRONTIER WAR.

MOHMANDS APPROACH PESHAWUR.

TELEGRAPH LINES CUT.

LONDON, April 23.

A strong force of Mohmands is within 20 miles of Peshawur.

The telegraph wires between Shahkaddar and Peshawur have been cut.

Hazrat Sahib, a renowned Afghan Mullah, has reached Shahbaz, and is actively inciting the fanaticism of the tribesmen.

TRIBESMEN JUMP TO CONCLUSIONS.

THE POLICY OF WITHDRAWAL.

April 24.

More bodies of so-called Afghans, numbering several thousands, and belonging to the Ningrahari and Shinwari tribes, have crossed the Kabul River, and joined the Mohmands. The Ameer's authority, which is shadowy in relation to these particular tribesmen, has not been asserted, and the Mullah's influence is growing rapidly.

Reuter's correspondent writes that the general opinion in Northern India is that the policy of withdrawal pursued in the case of the Zakka Khels is largely responsible for the present situation. Some of the frontier tribes imagine that Britain is afraid of offending the Ameer.

The Viceroy, Lord Minto, will return to Simla forthwith.

MOBILISATION OF TROOPS.

The Mohmands are becoming more aggressive, and the mobilisation of troops has been ordered. Two brigades have received instructions to concentrate on the border under Major-General Willcocks, and a third has been ordered to Peshawur as a reserve.

THE LATE PRIME MINISTER.

COLONIAL TRIBUTES.

LONDON, April 24.

Tributes to the memory of the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman by Mr. Deakin and Sir Joseph Ward were published in the "Daily Chronicle" this morning.

In reply to a cabled message from the editor of the London "Daily Chronicle," the Prime Minister sent through the Melbourne correspondent of that journal the following tribute:—"Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman established himself in the affections of his countrymen by the simplicity, frankness, and kindliness of his nature. Wise and humane, he won their esteem in public affairs by constancy to his principles, courage in adversity, and modesty in success. His great abilities ensure him a high place among the eminent British statesmen of the present age. In the Commonwealth he will always be remembered for his sympathy and assistance in 1900, when the Imperial sanction was sought for our Federal Constitution, and in 1907 for his generous welcome of the delegates from the oversea dominions to the late conference."

FRANCO-BRITISH EXHIBITION.

AN AUSTRALIAN GRIEVANCE.

LONDON, April 24.

The authorities connected with the Australian courts at the Franco-British Exhibition are incensed at Mr. Imre Kiralfy, Commissioner-General, allowing the "Daily Mail" to erect a large pavilion almost completely obscuring the Australian building from the main avenues.

The space whereon the pavilion is being erected was originally shown as vacant, and the Agents-General threaten legal proceedings.

NEW VICTORIAN GOVERNOR.

WILL SAIL ON MACEDONIA.

LONDON, April 24.

The Honourable Victor Hood has been appointed private secretary to Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael, who is succeeding Sir Reginald Talbot as Governor of Victoria. Captain Horace Hope, of the Highland Light Infantry, has been appointed military secretary.

Sir Thomas Gibson-Carmichael and his two nieces will sail for Australia on the R.M.S. Macedonia.

His Excellency will be a guest at the Victorian dinner on June 10.

THE ELECTIONS.

THE MANCHESTER SEAT.

A WRIT FOR LIBEL.

LONDON, April 23.

Mr. Winston Churchill has issued a writ against the "Manchester Courier" for publishing a letter accusing him of escaping from Pretoria during the South African war by breaking his parole, and of deliberately lying with regard to the Chinese question.

During the South African war Mr. Churchill acted as correspondent of the "Morning Post." He was taken prisoner on November 15, 1900, but escaped on December 12. In view of the fact that the declaration that Mr. Churchill deliberately lied on the Chinese question is being claimed as part of the libel, it may be recalled that in the House of Commons recently the then Secretary of State for the Colonies admitted that there had been some element of exaggeration during the election period, but the predictions of the Liberals as to the vicious results of the system of Chinese labour on the Rand had, he said, been justified. He predicted that at the end of 1908 there would not be more than 10,000 coolies remaining on the Rand.

MR. CHURCHILL'S DEFEAT PREDICTED.

April 24.

The "Times" special correspondent at Manchester, in giving the results of careful calculations in regard to the contest for the North-west Manchester seat, confidently forecasts the defeat of Mr. Winston Churchill, President of the Board of Trade.

LONDON, April 23.

The Natal Government is providing for the special representation of natives in the Legislative Council.

The Government will also create a Council of Native Affairs, and establish native settlements, with unalienable land grants to individuals.

NORDDEUTSCHER LLOYD.

THE ADDITIONAL SUBSIDY.

LONDON, April 24.

A bill has been submitted to the Federal Council, Berlin, authorising the additional subsidy of 500,000 marks (£25,000) to the North German Lloyd Company. The subsidy is in consideration of a monthly service from Sydney to New Guinea, Singapore, Hongkong, and Japan, calling at Yap, in the Carolines, which is to be maintained until October, 1914.

Advices from Bremen were recently received in Sydney stating that the negotiations which had been going on for a long time between the directors of the Norddeutscher-Lloyd and the German Government respecting the granting of State aid for the maintenance of a regular line of mail steamers between the German protectorate in New Guinea and Australia and Japan had at last come to a conclusion. In the subvention contract with the N.D.L. respecting the establishment of a mail steamship service to Eastern Asia and Australia, concluded in October, 1898, one proviso was that a branch line from Singapore to the German protectorate in New Guinea, via the ports in the Sunda Archipelago, should be maintained. This branch line was accordingly started and kept running until the year 1904; it was then suppressed, and in its place a regular service between the protectorate and Japan and Australia was set up. This Australian-Japan line, with, at first, departures every six weeks and latterly every four weeks, proved of great value not only to German New Guinea but to German trade generally in the Far East, but its financial results were not such as to induce the Norddeutscher-Lloyd to keep the service going. On the other hand, the benefits which had accrued from it to the people of New Guinea created an ardent desire on the part of the inhabitants of the protectorate to see a regular connection with Singapore once more established. Such a line is of extreme importance in the view of the export trade in copra, the principal production of New Guinea; it also facilitates the immigration of labourers, and the importation of animals for breeding purposes from Singapore, into the Sunda Islands. This New Guinea-Singapore line is accordingly to be reinstated, and a greater number of ports than formerly are to be included in its sphere of operations. Thus arises the necessity of granting to the N.D.L. a further annual allowance, put down at 500,000 marks (£25,000), for the upkeep of a monthly service between Sydney, New Guinea, Hongkong, and Japan. This supplementary contract is to run for the term of the main contract with the N.D.L., that is, until the year 1914.

THE SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL.

A NEW FEATURE.

TREATIES AND CONVENTIONS.

THE BALTIC STATUS QUO.

RUSSIA'S SOVEREIGN RIGHTS.

LONDON, April 24.

Russia, Germany, Sweden, and Denmark have signed a convention for the preservation of the status quo in the Baltic.

The convention contains a clause reserving Russia's sovereign rights. This leaves the door open for the possible revival of the Aland Islands question.

At the outset of the negotiations between Germany, Russia, and Sweden, it was freely stated that Germany and Russia aimed at the virtual if not the nominal closing of the Baltic to belligerent warships, and that the first stone was being laid of a new Triplice. This statement called forth the following official statement from St. Petersburg:—"The conclusion at Christiania on November 2, 1907, of the agreement between Russia, Germany, France, Great Britain, and Norway, guaranteeing the territorial integrity of Norway, together with the modification of the Anglo-French treaty of November 21, 1855, guaranteeing the entire territory of the formerly united kingdoms of Sweden and Norway, naturally brought the question of the international position of Sweden into the foreground. From the resulting exchange of views it became clear that the Swedish Government, although to a certain extent disturbed by the exceptional position created for Norway, was nevertheless in no way desirous of receiving, similarly to Norway, a special international guarantee of her territorial integrity from the Great Powers. In consequence of this, it was suggested that Swedish interests should be served by the conclusion of special declarations between Sweden, on the one hand, and Russia and Germany, as States having littorals on the Baltic Sea, on the other, and by the maintenance of the status quo, especially by means of such declarations as exclusively contain mutual recognition of the principle which is laid down by Spain in the Notes exchanged by her in 1907 with France and Great Britain. The parallel negotiations now proceeding deal only with this aspect of the question, and from the beginning there has been no reference whatever to the position of the Baltic Sea in peace or war. France and Great Britain have been informed of the substance of the negotiations." An official statement also came from Berlin denying that there was any intention to convert the Baltic into a mere clausum. "The proposed declaration is designed to apply, not to the basin of the Baltic as a sea, and to its entrances and outlets, but to the territory of the limitrophe States. The whole situation in the Baltic Sea will remain unchanged." It was hinted during the early stages of the negotiations that one of the results of the agreement would be the virtual lapse of the Treaty of Paris as regards Russia's right to fortify the Aland Islands, in the Gulf of Bothnia, referred to in our cable.

A BIG CONSPIRACY.

THE PRESIDENT'S RESOLVE.

LONDON, April 24.

President Cabrera, of Guatemala, upon whose life an attempt was made early in the week, has not been seen publicly more than twice or thrice since January.

He has informed the Powers that he has unearthed an extensive conspiracy, leading up to the recent attempt on his life, and by his order 18 of the ringleaders have been executed, while the death penalty awaits others now in the hands of the military.

President Cabrera declares that he has proof that the majority of the prisoners are implicated in the plot.

He has issued a proclamation wherein he declares that he is confident of the loyalty of the people, and that he intends to preserve order with a strong hand.

NEWMARKET CRAVEN MEETING.

THE KING'S COLT VICTORIOUS.

LONDON, April 23.

At the Newmarket Craven meeting yesterday the principal event resulted as follows:—

First Year of the 49th NEWMARKET BIENNIAL STAKES, of 25 sovs. each, with 500 added; for three-year-olds; colts 9st, fillies and geldings 8st 10lb; winners extra; maidens allowed 7lb; the owner of the second to receive 10 per cent. and the owner of the third 5 per cent. of the whole stake. Sir R. Waldie Griffith's ch c MERGANSER, by Isinglass—Merle	2
Lord Rosebery's b c OLYMPUS, by Cyllene—Mauchline	3

The success of Perrier in the Biennial Stakes has sent him to the head of the quotations for the Derby, his price being 5 to 1, while Primer is quoted at 20 to 1.

The Newmarket Biennial Stakes attracted 26 entrants, his Majesty having two representatives, Perspective and Perrier. The winner was bred by his owner, and is by Persimmon, who credited his Majesty—then Prince of Wales—with the Derby, 1896, from Amphora, by Amphion from Sierra, by Springfield from Sanda, by Wenlock. Perrier made his debut at the back end of last season in the Dewhurst Plate at Newmarket, in which he ran second to Rhodora. The colt is engaged in the principal classic races of the current season, including the Derby and St. Leger.

WRECK OF THE TAVIUNI.

TOTAL LOSS FEARED.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

The Union S.S. Company's Taviuni is ashore a mile south of Westport breakwater. Steamers have been sent to assist her.

It is expected she will be towed off.

Later.

The position of the Taviuni, which went ashore at Westport, is regarded as serious. The seas are breaking over the vessel, and the cabins and saloon are flooded. The steamer listed seaward, making it very difficult to get about the decks.

An attempt was made to launch two of the boats, but both were smashed. The passengers and some of the crew landed at low water.

The vessel is practically high and dry. Her rudder has gone, and her propeller is buried in the sand.

Another steamer left Wellington to-night to assist the Taviuni. The latest reports state that the Taviuni is a hopeless wreck.

The Taviuni, which belongs to the Union S.S. Company of N.Z., is a steel screw steamship, of 1465 tons gross, and was built in 1890 by W. Denny and Bros. at Dumbarton. She is 260ft in length, and is fitted with engines of the quadruple expansion type.

ANOTHER VICTORIAN ACCIDENT.

SMASH TO GOODS TRAIN.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An accident which might easily have been attended with more serious consequences occurred to the down goods train at Pirron Yallock, about 20 miles from Camperdown, on the main line from Melbourne to Port Fairy, this morning.

Three trucks were derailed, and only the engine-driver's promptness prevented further mishap. Shunting operations were being proceeded with, and several trucks were being brought from the side line to join the train, when the leading truck split the points, with the result that it and two others were derailed and somewhat badly damaged. Luckily Driver Grellet noticed the first truck bump, and applied the Westinghouse brake, with its full force, stopping any further damage.

The morning train from Port Fairy to the metropolis was delayed three-quarters of an hour through the incident, until the clearing of the line was effected. Pirron, Yallock, and Colac stations were communicated with by telephone.

THE COMMONWEALTH.

PARLIAMENTARY EXCHANGES.

A TARIFF DEBATE INCIDENT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Two members of the House of Representatives passed some unpleasant remarks in the course of the debate on the hat duties. Mr. Tudor, supporting protective duties, said that trade was so good now that workmen left their own countries to seek employment here after having served their time.

"In Pentridge," added Mr. Hedges, sotto voce.

"Not like the hon. member who served his time in Pentridge," said Mr. Tudor in a heat.

Both members were called to order, and withdrew their words. Mr. Wilks caused a laugh by saying, "It might be a good thing if some of us were put away for a time." And the debate proceeded.

MURRURUNDI INQUIRY.

BOARD APPOINTED.

The Special Board, constituted under clause 64 of the Railway Act, to inquire into the circumstances attending the Murrurundi railway collision on Good Friday morning, was formally appointed at a special meeting of the Executive Council held yesterday. The board consists of Mr. E. H. Wilshire, of the Public Service Board, as chairman; with Mr. R. Dunbar, chief traffic manager of the Queensland railways, and Professor Warren, of the Sydney University, as assessors. Mr. Wilshire was formerly a stipendiary magistrate, and before his appointment to the Public Service Board conducted an inquiry relative to the claims of soldiers who served in South Africa for increased pay. The board will commence its inquiry next week.

CARRIAGES DERAILED.

CONSTERNATION AMONGST PASSENGERS.

JUNEE, Friday.

While the down mail was shunting in the yard this morning two carriages containing passengers were derailed. The passengers showed the utmost consternation, demanding to be let out. The carriages were restored to the rails without difficulty.

The consternation amongst the passengers was caused from fear of a repetition of the Braybrook smash.

NEW STEAMSHIP SERVICE.

BETWEEN MELBOURNE AND EDEN.

THE ROAD TO DALGETY.

CANDELO, Friday.

Mr. Reid, junior, of the Melbourne Shipping Company, arrived at Candelo this morning. His mission is to endeavour to establish a steamship service between Eden and Melbourne. The proposal, it is understood, is to run a steamer between Melbourne and Eden once a week for a start. A large number of representative men, principally producers, met Mr. Reid here, and there is every prospect that the proposal will receive the necessary support, so that the service may be inaugurated. Butter producers generally, it is stated, are looking to Melbourne as a market for their produce, and are anxious to induce the Melbourne Shipping Company's steamers to call at Eden, and provide direct access to Melbourne. By this means a big trade will probably be opened up with Melbourne. Mr. Reid intends visiting Pambula, Eden, Bombala, and other centres in connection with the scheme.

Having a choice of two markets, Melbourne and Sydney, will prove a decided acquisition to the producers in these districts.

LUXURIES IN GAOL.

CHARGE AGAINST A WARDER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

An inquiry concerning complaints against Warder Francis E. Watson was held at Pentridge Gaol yesterday by a board. The charges alleged that the warder had unlawfully held communications with some one or more prisoners, and that he unlawfully introduced tobacco and contraband articles into the gaol.

Thomas Pembroke, Deputy-Governor of Pentridge Goal, said: "On February 13 M'Cumber saw me, and told me that he was wretched and miserable, and wanted to get away from the stables where he was employed, as he was expected to take tobacco and other articles to Ridgway, and if he attempted to do so he would be caught." Witness promised to protect the prisoner, who straightway went into the stables, and produced a swag, a quantity of tea, and sugar, two plugs and several pieces of tobacco, cheese, onions, biscuits, three pieces of paper covered with writing, some bread, and portions of poultry. As he handed witness the swag, M'Cumber mentioned Watson's name. The board reserved its decision.

CHAOTIC POSTAL BUSINESS.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION PROPOSAL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It is apparent from what can be gathered of Ministers' views on the Postal Department that a Board of Commissioners will ultimately be proposed to take over control. The sub-committee of the Cabinet now conducting an investigation will either advise this or recommend that a commission should carry on its work with the object of determining whether it should be done. Either way will clear the path of the Government of the troubles it has been beset with by the demand of Parliament for reform. The tariff is not likely to be finished until towards the end of May; and in the time at their disposal the sub-committee can make a report to the Cabinet before Mr. Webster's motion comes up again for discussion. The Postmaster-General indicated to-day that the matter is being considered, and witnesses are being examined on the subject.

MR. WILKS'S ADJECTIVE.

CLASSICS APPLIED TO THE TARIFF.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Speaking on the subject of hat duties this afternoon in the House of Representatives, Mr. Wilks said he felt he could only apply the word "damnable" to this picking out of the hat industry for special treatment.

The Chairman: Order!

Mr. Wilks: It is the adjective of a word you find in the Scriptures, namely, damnation.

The Chairman: Order!

Mr. Wilks: I think I ought to be allowed to use the word. I would like your ruling as to whether it is to be banned as unparliamentary. (Laughter.)

The Chairman: It is not a question of my ruling. I leave it to hon. members' good sense as to whether it is wise to use the word. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Wilks: I would like to say to those members who say "Hear, hear" that the word figures in our classical works.

Mr. Hall: Are we discussing adjectives or hats? (Laughter.)

Mr. Wilks said that when one felt strongly he could not be expected to use especial [illegible]

FEDERAL FINANCE.

WHERE THE MONEY COMES FROM.

BUOYANCY OF REVENUE.

INCREASED TAXATION.

III.

Commonwealth revenue has increased materially since the establishment of federation, rising from £11,296,985 in 1901-2 to £13,832,891 last financial year. This increase has been somewhat more rapid than the increase in population during the period, the result being that the average receipts of revenue per head have grown from £2 19s 1d to £3 2s 3d, made up as follows:—

	Per Head.
Customs	£1 17 2
Excise	0 9 8
Post Office, etc.	0 15 2
All other receipts	0 0 3
	£3 2 3

These figures, especially those relating to customs and excise, have an important bearing upon the future relationship between the States and Commonwealth. It will be noted that last year these two sources of revenue together contributed £2 6s 10d per head. As the population of the Commonwealth increases doubtless the tariff will be somewhat less productive of revenue taken on a population basis, while the receipts from excise will most likely increase in some degree.

GROWTH OF TAXATION.

It is true that the establishment of federation has brought in its train a great increase in taxation. According to a return recently compiled by Mr. G. H. Knibbs, the Commonwealth Statistician, the combined taxation of the States during the year immediately preceding the union aggregated £10,262,746, or £2 15s 3d per head of the people. These figures may be contrasted with £13,635,711, or £3 6s 2d per head, for the year ended June 30, 1907, the increase being, say, 11s, or 20 per cent. In the latter group of figures are included both Commonwealth and State taxes. But if we go further into detail it is found that the people of New South Wales have much more to complain of on this score than those of the rest of the States. Here the aggregate of taxes has increased during the periods above quoted from £2,617,314 to £3,573,213, or from £1 19s 1d to £3 4s 11d per head. In other words, each man, woman, and child in this State is to-day paying to the taxgatherer State and Federal, £1 5s 10d, or, say, 65 per cent. more than in pre-Federal times. In some of the States there has been a falling-off. For instance, Western Australians have reduced their taxation during the period from £6 4s to £4 13s 3d, and Queenslanders from £4 1s 7d to £3 8s. These movements are chiefly though not wholly due to the disparity between the receipts from the uniform tariff and those of the pre-existing State tariffs. New South Wales, for example, under her old light tariff only collected £1,735,621 at the Customs-house, whereas last year the Federal Treasurer received through the New South Wales branches of the Customs-house no less a sum than £4,954,618. In the case of Queensland, on the other hand, the Federal tariff yielded £232,199 less than the old State tariff, and this despite the fact that the population in the interim has increased. To partially make up this deficiency, which is necessarily reflected in the return to the Queensland State Treasurer under the Braddon clause of the Constitution, the State has been compelled to increase its direct taxation by £166,137. Tasmania is in exactly the same position. The Federal tariff has yielded about 25 per cent. less than the old State tariff, which it replaced, and this so disorganised the local State finances as to involve an increase in the extra-tariff taxation of from £99,408 to £276,450. Western Australia is in much the same position, there being a large relative though not actual falling-off in the Customs receipts now compared with those received under the old regime.

THE POSITION OF THIS STATE.

The marked difference between the position of New South Wales and that occupied by some of the other States should be carefully noted, for it should have an important bearing upon our attitude towards federation. Here the people, formerly among the most lightly taxed of the world, have had to bear an enormous increase in their burden as the price paid for federation, or, rather, for a uniform tariff. Under such circumstances it might have been expected that the State Treasurer would have adopted the converse plan to that adopted by the Treasurers of Queensland and Tasmania. They, finding their exchequer chests becoming empty through the diminished receipts from Customs and excise, were forced to resort to heavier direct taxation, and so in New South Wales it might have been expected seeing that the Treasury was filled to overflowing through the same cause that there would have been a more determined effort made to reduce the burdens of the people in other directions. To some extent this has admittedly been done. The income tax has been reduced, school fees have been abolished, railway freights have been reduced. Still with all these reductions the people of this State continue to contribute much more than they should have need to in view of the fact of their being so heavily hit over the Federal tariff. If the State Treasurer gets more than he requires in one direction he can afford to lighten the burden in some other direction. Doubtless this would have already been done in a more effective way had it not been for the uncertainty as to the continuance of the protection of the Braddon clause. If, however, a permanent and satisfactory solution of the difficulty between the State and Federal finances is once arrived at, then the key note to the future of State finance in this State must be rigid economy.

TESTS TO BE APPLIED.

Whenever solutions of the problems of Federal and State finance are suggested the following tests may be applied:—

(1) Is it effective in completely dissociating Federal and State finance?

(2) Is it one that is likely to prove acceptable to the Federal Parliament while being favourably regarded by the Governments of each State?

(3) Does it secure absolute finality, or is it merely a postponement of the difficulty till some future time?

(4) Is it likely to encourage Federal extravagance, not necessarily at once, but in the future?

(5) Does it impoverish the States as a whole, or does it fall hardly on any one State in particular?

(6) Will it unduly bind the hands of the State Treasurers in the matter of raising future loans, and thus hamper internal development?

(7) Is it of such a nature as effectively to do away with the necessity of the Braddon clause without merely re-creating the difficulty which it in part overcame?

(8) Does it provide for the possibility of a heavy decrease in revenue due to severe and continuous droughts or a prolonged trade depression?

(9) Will it enable the Commonwealth Government to raise readily what money it requires for defence purposes, or

(10) For other great national undertakings?

(11) Does it make possible absolute interstate freetrade, thus doing away with all interstate transfers and hampering Customs restrictions?

(12) Is a constitutional amendment involved or is it possible to carry out the scheme without going through that tedious process?

(13) Is any provision made for the payment by the Commonwealth to the States of the cost of the transferred departments?

(14) Does it provide for a stoppage of that insane competition for money between six State Treasurers desirous of floating loans?

(15) Is it calculated to foster a Federal feeling, or does it encourage a perpetuation of provincial jealousies?

150 PER CENT!

DUTIES ON HATS AGREED TO.

TARIFF DEBATE IN PARLIAMENT.

COMMERCIAL MORALITY QUESTIONED.

A MEMBER'S RASH STATEMENT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The House of Representatives continued their consideration of the Senate's recommendations on the tariff to-day, and agreed to increase the duties on blankets and hats, and refused reductions on carpets, curtains, and gloves. Sir William Lyne's methods of "bullocking" through the tariff are of the kind that are apt to lead to misapprehension, to say the least of them. On Wednesday he was the victim of circumstances—or a misunderstanding. To-day his ill-luck pursued him. He told the House when he refused the Senate's proposal to lower the duty on stearine and paraffine wax, that a statement by a candle-maker in Tasmania that he could not get supplies of wax in Australia had influenced several votes in their lowering the duty. He went on to say that he had obtained a promise from a Victorian paraffine firm to supply the candle manufacturer with any quantity at cost price. Now the candle-maker comes up, and in the Melbourne press strenuously denies Sir William Lyne's statements, and says that the only firm in Australia that makes any paraffine wax at all absolutely refused one night this week to book an order asked for on his behalf by a Tasmanian member of the Federal Parliament in presence of Mr. Watson. The candle-maker offers to forfeit £100 if Sir William Lyne can buy for him 100 or 200 tons of Victorian-made paraffine, and he demands an apology for what was said about him. However, Sir William Lyne had his way with the duty, and the proposed reduction was refused. This is merely an incident in the tariff debate. But it is also somewhat illustrative of the Treasurer's trouble.

THE DEBATE.

Blankets at first 30 per cent., brought down to 25 per cent., by the Representatives in November, and put up again by the Senate, a 5 per cent. preference being allowed to imports from the United Kingdom in each event. The item includes flannels, plain, fancy, or printed, Crimean and Ceylon shirtings containing wool, and rugs n.e.i. Nobody was inclined to talk. A division took place in regard to the duties being raised again to 30 per cent. and 25 per cent., and a majority of five confirmed them—23 to 18.

Carpets were brought down by the Senate from 20 per cent. to 15 per cent., with 5 per cent. preference. With a curt intimation from the Treasurer, Sir William Lyne, that the Government disagreed with the proposed alteration, the Committee divided and rejected it.

A preferential rate of 20 per cent, proposed by the Senate on coir mats, matting, and fenders—5 per cent. below the general duty—was accepted, and also the inclusion of "saddle bag in piece or otherwise," under item 117, at 25 per cent. and 20 per cent.

Gruffly the Treasurer said the Government disagreed with the Senate's proposal to free curtains and blinds. "Why?" asked the Opposition. Sir William Lyne sat sullenly at the table until worried at last into speaking. He said, "These things were made here," and unable to elicit anything further the Committee allowed the motion for the rejection of the proposal to pass. The item will, therefore, go back to the Senate with 25 per cent. and 20 per cent against it.

Fur apparel, at 35 per cent., with 30 per cent. rate for goods from the United Kingdom, was passed, and the Treasurer was then tackled over gloves.

Harvesting, driving, housemaids', and gardening gloves were put on the free list by the Senate. The Treasurer insisted that these articles are made in Victoria, and demanded that 35 per cent. duty—the Committee's original resolution—should prevail, with 10 per cent. reduction of British goods, all other kinds of gloves to pay 15 per cent. and 10 per cent.

"Blankets which are much more used by poor people than gloves were put under a higher duty by the Senate, and they freed gloves," commented Mr. Wilks, "and, besides," he continued, "it's not the housemaid herself who buys these housemaids' gloves, it's the man who employs her."

The Treasurer grew irritable under the persistent harrying for explanations; but had nothing further to give, and the Senate's requests were rejected.

MR. FOSTER'S INDISCRETION.

Wool, felt hats in any stage of manufacture, 16s per dozen, or 35 per cent., whichever brings the highest duty; preferential rate 13s per dozen, or 30 per cent. This item started the debate. The Treasurer, ready for anything going higher than what he had previously obtained, moved the acceptance of the proposals. Mr. Irvine suggested striking out the fixed rates.

"The Senate's intention is to get at the cheaper article the same as the highest, in the interests of one or two manufacturers in Australia," said Mr. Wilks.

Mr. Foster found himself in hot water in quick time when he took a hand in the discussion. He wished he could believe that they did not, but he thought that, as a rule, importers under-valued their goods at the Customs. Mr. Dugald Thomson, a man of weight in the House, rebuked him severely. "The hon. member says that the great majority of traders in Australia and their supporters from other parts of the world are rogues and thieves. An hon. member who makes such statements without bringing forward irrefutable proof that such statements are correct, in my opinion, abuses his position in Parliament." In this strain Mr. Thomson went on for a few minutes—an uncomfortable time for Mr. Foster. But there was more trouble in store. Mr. Foster defended his case by referring to penalties imposed for undervaluing. "What chance have I of proving it without a commission of inquiry?" he cried.

"Then why do you say it?" said Mr. W. H. Irvine, severely.

"I have suspicions," returned Mr. Foster, weakly, "and they are caused by the prosecutions that have gone through the courts."

"Do you condemn them all because of a few?" Mr. Sampson asked.

As an importer, Sir Philip Fysh had something to say to Mr. Foster, and stoutly defended the commercial morality of the trade. He told the Committee that if an importer ventured to approach an English or a German firm with proposals for "faked" invoices their business would be absolutely refused. Mr. Foster, with his back to the wall, asked him if he would support a commission of inquiry. He got small comfort, however. Sir Philip Fysh told him there was one going at the ports every morning.

Mr. Sampson switched the subject of the discussion to hats for a while, but Mr. Foster's side-step out of the limelight was brief. The Minister for Customs, Mr. Chapman, exhorted by Mr. Kelly to uphold the merchant community, broke a long silence. It is many days since Mr. Chapman has been heard. He said: "I don't think the merchants of this country want any man to stand up in this House and say they are honest. Besides their desire to be honest, it pays them to be honest, and the Customs invariably receive every assistance from them. Mistakes are made, and when we consider there is reasonable ground for believing that it is a mistake, a small fine is imposed, but it conveys no reflection on the merchant."

Thereafter Mr. Foster was allowed to have peace.

Some reference was made to the original acceptance of the duties last year, when they were passed in the early hours of the morning—"sneaked through in a most improper manner"—as Mr. Mahon put it. That hon. member also remarked that it seemed to him that somebody at the time had something up his sleeve, knowing of a damaging document he (Mr. Mahon) had in his possession. Mr. Mahon was not present when the duties were put through, and made grievous complaint afterwards that he had been misled as to when the vote was to be taken.

Mr. Irvine's suggestion was not adopted, and the duties were confirmed in this clause, as well as in the following one. Fur felt hats 25s per dozen, or 35 per cent. general rate, and 20s per dozen, or 30 per cent. preferential.

Caps and sewn hats, n.e.i., were separated from a general clause by the Senate, and put in the schedule separately at 7s a dozen, or 35 per cent. general rate, and 6s a dozen, or 30 per cent. preferential. "The Treasurer bows down to the Senate, the Senate is the taxing chamber," said Mr. Wilks, who protested against such high imposition as 7d on a boy's sixpenny cap.

Consideration of the item was not concluded when the House adjourned till next week.

DEER STALKING IN NEW ZEALAND.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

Advices from Canterbury state that several parties of deer stalkers returned from the Lake Hawea district. Baron von Kusser, of Victoria, was the most fortunate sportsman, his bag being made up of an eighteen-pointer and three royals. The eighteen-pointer was 42 inches in length of horn, and the spread was 35½ inches. The circumference of the beam was six inches, and the circumference of the burrs nine inches. The head is said to be the finest that has come out of the Hawea district. Only one other eighteen-pointer [illegible]

PAPUAN OUTBREAK.

CANNIBAL TRIBE ATTACK SETTLERS.

FRIENDLY WAR CANOES GIVE PROTECTION.

A PUNITIVE EXPEDITION.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE IN PAPUA.)

COOKTOWN, Friday.

A disturbance attended by circumstances of a dramatic character has taken place in that portion of the Gulf country which is not yet opened up. Two settlers, named respectively Buchanan and Charpenter, were attacked by a horde of armed cannibals, and contrived to escape only after an exciting chase.

This portion of the Gulf country is practically unknown to the white residents of Papua, but Buchanan and Charpenter, despite the warnings of residents, determined upon settling on one of the fertile valleys along the Kapaina River to grow tropical products. They penetrated many miles into the interior, entering into a region occupied by a tribe of wild cannibals, which has not so far been brought under the influence of the Government. Almost immediately the natives made a hostile demonstration, and though the settlers endeavoured to hold a friendly parley they made an attack. Fortunately the white men were prepared for this, and although their escape from the hail of falling missiles sent after them was little short of miraculous, they succeeded in making their way down the river in their launch, followed by hordes of frenzied Papuans.

Approaching Kaimari, the two settlers turned a bend in the river, to find to their dismay half a dozen war canoes, filled with armed Papuans, coming up stream; but, to their delight, these turned out to be members of the Kaimari tribe, which is under Government control, and most friendly to the white residents. The Kaimaris had been attracted to the spot by the war-cries of the wild tribe, and immediately took Messrs. Buchanan and Charpenter under their protection, landing some of their own warriors, and driving the hostiles back to the bush. The fugitives were then escorted to Maipua, on the Purari River, where there is a settlement.

The Government steamer Merrie England sailed on the 20th instant for Kaimari for the purpose of punishing the hostile tribe. Messrs. Buchanan and Charpenter's launch has been taken by the expedition for the purpose of ascending the river. The Kaimari tribe is to be rewarded for its action.

CHINA'S AWAKENING.

NATIONAL BANK ESTABLISHED.

The Chinese Minister for Agriculture, Labour, and Trade, in a letter dated Pekin, March 10, addressed to the Chinese Merchants' Society of Sydney, states that an edict was issued by the Government on February 28, authorising the establishment of a Chinese National Bank, with a capital of 10,000,000 taels—the equivalent of £1,500,000. The headquarters of the new bank will be at Pekin, but branches are to be opened in all the provinces of China, as well as the principal commercial ports of the world.

No national bank has ever existed in China, but what is known as a "Treasury Bank" has conducted operations for some years. This concern, the capital of which is 4,000,000 taels, will be absorbed by the new venture. The Government of China has supported the new banking institution to the extent of 5,000,000 taels, and the remaining amount of 1,000,000 taels required will be raised by the issue of shares to the public. The Minister for Agriculture, Trade, and Labour has forwarded a detailed prospectus, and appeals to the Chinese residents of the Commonwealth and New Zealand to support the national banking institution, not only by transacting all their business through its agency, but also by subscribing for shares.

EXTENSION OF EDUCATION.

Mr. Tong Chai Chih, the editor of the "Tung Wah Times," was yesterday in receipt of a letter from the Chinese Empire Reform Association in Japan, intimating that there are only 13,000 students in Japan this year, as against 15,000 last year. Since the Tatsu Maru incident the number studying in Japan has been daily decreasing. The Reform Association now proposes to found a University at Shanghai to educate the rising generation on the lines of western civilisation. This University will provide accommodation for 2000 students, and as soon as funds permit it is intended to establish colleges in all the provinces. The educational establishments under Government control are conducted according to old traditions, while on the other hand the Reform Association is keenly alive to the necessity for keeping abreast of the times. There are 200 Chinese students in England, 150 in America, and between 200 and 300 in Belgium. The cost of education on the Continent, however, is prohibitive, and only the sons of the wealthy are sent there.

CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT DEMANDED.

United action is being taken by the 150 branches of the Chinese Reform Association in China, Japan, America, Mexico, Straits Settlements, Australia, Siam, and other places with a view to demanding a form of responsible Government. At the request of the officers of the parent body in Shanghai, a monster petition is now in course of signature by all the Chinese in the Commonwealth and New Zealand, and the matter is being enthusiastically taken up. It is anticipated that the combined petitions will contain several millions of names, and upon completion will be presented by deputation to the Chinese Government.

The petitions will demand—(1) That the Empress Dowager shall restore the power of ruling to the Emperor; (2) that a system of local self-government shall be granted to all the provinces; and (3) that with a view to the defence of the Empire a powerful army and navy shall be formed.

ARCHDEACON ABBOTT.

TOO LATE TO WITHDRAW.

TAMWORTH, Friday.

At the annual meeting of the parishioners of the Church of England to-night the Ven. Archdeacon Abbott was presented with a memorial wishing him to reconsider his decision to resign from the parish. Archdeacon Abbott, in reply, pointed out that the matter of his financial difficulties had not been sprung upon the parishioners, as had been stated. The parishioners had done exactly what they had promised; but when he found it became more and more difficult to work the parish he felt they could do something more. It was too late to reconsider, too late to retract, too late to withdraw; and two of his old friends supported him in this stand. He thanked the parishioners for the petition. In answer to the parishioners, as to whether he could not defer his resignation until the new council met, the Archdeacon said it was not a matter of increase in the stipend. The question was that although the facts were as public as he could make them, nothing was done. It was quite impossible to reconsider the position. It would cripple his efforts now, and would not be good for the Church.

QUEENSLAND POLITICS.

DIVIDED KIDSTONITES.

BRISBANE, Friday.

At a caucus of the Government party to-day Mr. Kidston made a statement in which he outlined the position. As the meeting progressed it was apparent that the party was not of one opinion regarding the future. While a section was in favour of amalgamation with the Oppposition, another section was opposed to it. Others, although not altogether averse to some arrangement, desired to be assured that their democratic principles would not be subverted.

It is stated that the meeting was in some respects much like that at which it was proposed on a former occasion to join with the Philp party. There were some, and especially those who had been Labour members, who were more disposed towards the Opposition than towards any attempt to further carry on with the Labour party. On the other hand, Messrs. Airey and Kerr were not too strongly in favour of any change in the direction of amalgamation, preferring rather to attempt to carry on than otherwise. Mr. Bell, however, has supported the movement.

The Premier gave his party to understand that matters would not be disturbed, but would be allowed to remain as they are until [illegible]

MELBOURNE DISASTER

STARTLING STATEMENT.

BRAKE SAID TO BE MISSING.

MR. TAIT SILENT.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Various rumours of a more or less surprising character are in circulation regarding possible contributing causes of the collision. A statement was made to-day that the brake of one carriage on the Bendigo train was cut out, and that the brake of the Louvre car forming part of the same train only showed "slow" instead of quick action. The informant went into details, and gave the numbers of the vehicles as carriage 258B and Louvre car 587U. "Mr. Tait," he added, "in an interview on the day succeeding the accident, declared that the Bendigo train has ample braking power. What I would like to know is why that brake was cut out. At holiday time every nerve is strained to get the last ounce out of everything, and on these occasions, above all others, all trains should be effectively braked."

When interviewed on the subject, Mr. Tait declined to make any statement. The "questions as to brake power and the condition of the train generally, will," he observed, "be thoroughly ventilated at the inquest."

ENGINE DRIVERS' DUTIES.

DISCUSSION AT THE TRADES HALL.

WORRIED BY THE DEPARTMENT.

The executive of the Trades Hall Council, at a meeting of members to-night, presented a report in which the following recommendation was made:—"That the council, on behalf of the workers, expresses its profound sorrow at the appalling accident at the Braybrook railway station, and offers to the relatives of the killed and to those who are maimed, their most heartfelt sympathy in their terrible bereavement and horrifying experiences. That this council demands from the Government that there shall be instituted, without delay, an exhaustive public inquiry into the cause that led up to the shocking catastrophe."

Mr. Stephen Barker, in moving the adoption of the report, stated that without sitting in judgment on the matter he wished to point out that over and over again the Labour party and the Trades Hall Council had brought under the notice of the Government that the Railway Commissioners were trying to make the railways pay at the expense of the employees. This was evident to him at Rupanyup and Minyip particularly, when he travelled through those districts in connection with the last Senate election. The man who had been in charge at Minyip, had broken down in health so badly under the strain of long hours that his reason was affected. It had been said by some of the older railway men that it was simply a miracle that an accident of this kind had not occurred before. While the Railway Commissioners were cheapening the lives of those engaged on the railways, they were endangering the lives of those who travelled. Mr. Tait was simply a mercenary under the capitalistic system.

Mr. D. Stephens, secretary of the Engine Drivers' Association, said that amongst the grief-stricken persons who should receive their sympathy was Driver Milburn, of the Bendigo express. He (Mr. Stephens) knew something about the harassing conditions under which engine drivers on the railways carried out their duties, for he was once one of them. Drivers should not go on footplates with anything on their minds worrying them. But it was the case—whether it was done wilfully or not he could not say—the department so worried the men that they were not fit to go and take their engines five minutes after they signed on. He did not wish to suggest that such was the case in this instance. Had the Ballarat train not been late, those who had been killed and those who were in the hospitals would now be in their homes. Six of the railway officials had been suspended. All those men had nothing to do with trains being late. Why was the Ballarat train behind time? He also wanted to know why those responsible for the delay of the train had not been suspended? Whenever trains were late the drivers were called on for an explanation, obviously the drivers dared not state reasons of the trains being late was the under-manning of the stations. Regulations were drawn up and supervised by men who had no experience on the footplate. There was a case where a person who had been a Westinghouse inspector had been appointed locomotive inspector, and, he believed, was now in charge of the locomotive stores branch. The niggardly supplies of materials such as coal and oil to drivers was also harassing. A lot had been said about the Westinghouse brake; but the fact was that the quick-acting Westinghouse brake was on the goods trains, and the obsolete brake was applied to the passenger trains. With regard to the air pumps, up-to-date appliances were attached to the goods trains only. The drivers were also expected to go out on the footplate on stormy nights to hammer the cap of the reversing lever, so that enough air could be pumped into the brake reservoir. The department seemed to place more store on the protection of property than of human life. Then the signals were not always placed where the drivers could see them. Just past the second tunnel, and before West Richmond station was reached, on the Collingwood line, there was a home signal which was invariably obscured by train smoke that came from the tunnel. Another trouble arose from the dirty condition of the boilers. (Applause.)

The motion was agreed to.

A THOUSAND PASSENGERS.

An estimate furnished by the Railway Department gave the probable number of passengers in the two trains concerned in the smash at Braybrook as between 900 and 1000. So far there have been 43 deaths, and many other passengers are lying at different hospitals and under treatment privately with terrible injuries. These patients were in the carriages which the Bendigo train in its paralysing and irresistible onrush crushed into shapeless masses.

There were presumably from 450 to 500 passengers on the Ballarat train. The exact number can never be ascertained, because a large proportion were travelling on return portions of excursion tickets, which obviously could not be collected. All that they have to guide them in this connection is the seating capacity of the train, and the fact that it was crowded. Without taking into consideration the appalling roll of the dead, the official list of injured persons has now reached a total of 282. When the number of the killed is added, 325 passengers are thus accounted for. The official list includes only those cases of injury notified to the department. Fresh names are being added daily.

Dr. Cole, the Coroner, had arranged for the trial to be made on Sunday of the Westinghouse brake on the Bendigo train in the same locality, and under circumstances as nearly as possible corresponding with those which existed at the time of the accident. Unfortunately, Driver Milburn is pronounced by his medical adviser too ill to attend at present, and it will doubtless be postponed. Dr. Cole is very determined not to proceed with an investigation of this character in the absence of the person who is vitally interested.

Messages of sympathy for the sufferers continue to flow in by medium of the post, the telegraph wire, and even by cable. Her Excellency Lady Northcote, wife of the Governor-General, has with gracious thoughtfulness arranged that flowers shall be sent on her behalf to patients in each of the hospitals.

CONDITION OF THE INJURED.

Most of the victims of the accident who were seriously injured are now making sure, but in some cases slow, steps towards recovery, and with a few exceptions are not in a critical condition. At the Melbourne Hospital last night, Miss Ethel Lynch was in a serious state. Others (though several were still very bad), all showed improvement. At the Alfred Hospital Mr. Oscar Skoglund was still in a critical state, though there was hope he might recover. Miss Isabel Hoyle and Miss Jessie Williams were very bad. The other patients, and those in St. Vincent's Hospital and the private hospitals, were reported to be making progress.

CASUALTY LIST INCREASING.

FIFTY ADDITIONAL CASES.

The list of injured persons who have reported their injuries to Mr. H. W. Hawkeswood, claims agent of the Railway Department, was considerably added to again to-day, when 50 further cases were brought under his notice. This, it was stated at the claims office, will bring the total number of cases known up to 334. A great many of these are slight injuries, arising from the shock and [illegible] shaking which passengers received through the collision, although in parts of the train which were not smashed up. The names submitted were:—Miss A. Johnson, Alfred Crescent, North Fitzroy; Mrs. King, Docke-street, Richmond; Miss Smart, Rowe-street, North Fitzroy; Albert E. J. Jewell, Hawkes-street, Melbourne; Garnet Gordon Timmins and Herbert Timmins, Spencer-crescent, East Camberwell; Austin Scobie, Wellington-street, St. Kilda; Robert Edmonds, St. Kilda-street, Middle Brighton; James B. Robertson, The Avenue, Royal Park; Norman Taffs, Chapel-street, Prahran; Donald Robert Ralston, Royal-crescent, Armadale; Otto Luckwald, Union-road, Ascotvale; Miss Mateer, Shield-street, Flemington; William Oldfield, Roslyn-street, West Melbourne; Herbert Flack, Ballarat; Miss M. Elgar, Collins-street, Essendon; Clive Elliott, Lisson Grove, Hawthorn; Miss Godfold, Rosslyn-street, South Brighton; Mr. Loller, Noller-street, South Brighton; May Andrews, Derby-street, Kew; H. E. Scarse, Montague-street, Albert Park; J. Kinloch, Grey-street, East Melbourne; Thomas Harrigan, North-street, Richmond; Esther Brennan, Edinburgh-street, Burnley; W. E. Prentice, Chapel-street, South Yarra; D. Burns, Elizabeth-street, North Richmond; Fanny White, Grace-street, Yarraville; W. Cleary, Sunshine; A. Norton, Spensley-street, Clifton Hill; Alexander M'Dowell, High-street, St. Kilda; Miss C. Ross, Rodda-street, Coburg; Mr. F. C. Dickson and Mrs. F. C. Dickson, Victoria-parade, Fitzroy; William Goss, Johnston-street, Port Melbourne; F. Furhmann, Caroline-street, Clifton Hill; William M'Guire, Gipps-street, Collingwood; James Curtain, Cromwell-street, Collingwood; F. Debney, Mount Alexander-road, Flemington; Arthur M'Namara, Gold-street, Clifton Hill; William Taylor, Gold-street, Clifton Hill; O. S. Kierulf, Sunshine; H. M'Lean and Benjamin M'Lean, Canning-street, Carlton; Abs Davis, Woodhead-street, North Fitzroy; S. Anderson, Knowles-street, South Northcote; Nellie Thomson and Charles Thomson, York-street, Richmond; Ernest Stafford, High-street, Armadale; Clarice Young, Robert-street, Collingwood.

THE OFFICIAL REPORT.

The Railway Commissioners to-day forwarded a report of the accident to Mr. Bent, in his capacity as Minister for Railways, in accordance with the requirements of the law, under which they administer the department. The report gives at length full details of the accident, and describes minutely what was done subsequently to help the injured. The statements of drivers and signalmen are also touched upon, but nothing new regarding the disaster is contained in the report, apart from the fact that "both of the engines and all the carriages on the Bendigo train were equipped with air brakes, with the exception of one carriage, which was equipped with an air pipe. One carriage had its brakes cut out; but this and the equipment of one of the carriages with a pipe only would not in any way interfere with the working of the brakes on the other carriages or on the engines."

The report concludes with the following remarks:—"The Commissioners desire to place on record their appreciation of the valuable services rendered by the doctors at the scene of the accident and at Spencer-street by the St. John Ambulance Society and other ambulance men and by the nurses and members of the public, who rendered aid to the injured; and also to the police force and Braybrook fire brigade. The Commissioners and their officers and employees are greatly distressed at this appalling disaster, and are deeply sympathetic with the injured and their relatives, and the relatives of those who lost their lives on this lamentable occasion. In view of the fact that there will be an inquiry made by the Coroner as to the cause of the accident, the usual departmental inquiry, which in the absence of an inquiry by the Coroner is customary, will not be held. The Commissioners are anxious that a thorough, complete, and independent investigation shall be held as to the cause of this accident, and that every assistance is being afforded to the Coroner in connection with his inquiry, and officers of the railway department have been specially instructed to aid him in every possible manner in his investigation."

CORONER'S PROCEDURE CRITICISED

At a meeting of the Trades Hall Council to-night the following resolution was agreed to:—"That this council, representing thousands of workers, enters its emphatic protest against the contemplated action of Dr. Cole, the Coroner, in dispensing with a jury at the inquest re the Braybrook railway disaster."

The Coroner is to have the assistance of counsel at the inquest on the bodies of the victims of the accident. To-day Dr. Cole saw the Acting Attorney-General (Mr. Donald Mackinnon), and asked for such assistance. The Minister concurred with the request, and gave instructions that every aid should be given to the Coroner.

AN ADEQUATE STAFF.

Answering the allegation that the staff at Braybrook station are called upon to perform duties of too onerous and varied a character without assistance, Mr. Tait says that the Railway Commissioners have had nothing before them to indicate that that staff was overworked. "We consider," he adds, "that the staff is adequate for the proper conduct of the business. There are two men on duty during the busy period of the day."

FIXING THE BLAME.

In an interview Mr. Tait, chairman of the Railway Commissioners, referring to the approaching inquest on the Braybrook disaster, said:—"The Commissioners trust, and are sure, that every employee will give the fullest possible information when called to give evidence, so as to assist in determining the facts and arriving at a correct conclusion as to the cause of the accident."

RENDERING FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

In accordance with the instructions issued by the Railway Commissioners, the relatives of the persons killed and of those seriously injured, were to-day visited by Mr. H. W. Hawkeswood, railway claims' agent. He interviewed 40 families. Mr. Hawkeswood states that he found only two or three families in need of financial assistance. In those cases he afforded temporary relief. Mr. Hawkeswood will visit other families.

SYMPATHY IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, April 23.

Sir T. Gibson-Carmichael, Governor-elect of Victoria, has written to Mr. J. W. Taverner, Agent-General for Victoria, expressing his sympathy in regard to the Braybrook disaster.

FLOWERS FROM LADY NORTHCOTE.

Colonel Ryan, medical officer of the Railway Department, who is on the staff of his Excellency the Governor-General, received the following telegram from Lady Northcote, who is in Sydney:—"Would you do me a kindness and order flowers for me for all the poor patients in the hospitals suffering from the terrible railway accident. I suggest that the flowers be done up in separate bouquets from three different florists. I should be grateful if you would cause them to be distributed from me, with messages of sincere sympathy. I hope you will pardon my giving you all this extra work.—Alice Northcote."

Colonel Ryan has taken steps to see that the wishes of her Excellency are carried out.

MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY.

The Railway Commissioners received a telegram from his Excellency the Governor of South Australia (Sir George Le Hunte) expressing sympathy with the sufferers in the accident, their relatives, and the families of those who were killed.

SAFETY OF THE RAILWAYS.

With the exception of Monday's disaster, with its death roll of 43 members, only seven passengers have been killed on the Victorian railways—owing "to causes beyond our control"—during the past 20 years. In that same period 48 passengers have been killed as a result—to use the language of the railway departmental officers—of "their own action or negligence."

The total number of persons killed on railways, including servants of the department, persons killed at crossings, etc., during the past 20 years, not including Monday's accident, is 898; while the injured during the same period numbered 9183.

The Victorian Government Statist (Mr. Drake) has prepared figures, which show the number of passengers carried each year for the past six years. The statement is as follows:—Year 1902, passengers carried 57,465,000; 1903, 54,798,000; 1904, 54,282,000; 1905, 59,762,000; 1906, 65,088,000; 1907, 69,920,000.

INGLEBURN.

D. C. Smith, Ingleburn Farm, Ingleburn, N.S.W., writes:—"I have used Dr. Sheldon's Digestive Tabules, and found them very effective."

Dr. Sheldon's Digestive Tabules are an unequalled preparation for the cure of indigestion and all stomach troubles.—Advt.

PREMIERS' CONFERENCE.

COMMONWEALTH AND STATES.

THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Next Tuesday the Conference of Premiers will meet in the Legislative Council Chambers at the State Parliament House. The opening ceremony will be performed by the Governor (Sir Reginald Talbot), at 3 p.m. In one form or other these conferences have sat since 1903. Many of the problems then raised still await settlement. The main business arises out of the relations of the Commonwealth to the States, particularly financial relations, but there have always been subjects of more or less importance between the States; and some states, notably Western Australia and Tasmania, are affected in a special way in their dealings with the Commonwealth. But outstanding from all other matters in importance is probably that of the financial adjustment between the Commonwealth and the States. Last year a scheme bearing the endorsement of the Deakin Government was submitted by the then Acting Prime Minister, and the Treasurer, Sir John Forrest, to the Conference of Premiers at Brisbane.

Briefly, this scheme provided that for 10 years after the expiration of the Braddon section of the Constitution, in 1910, the States would receive a fixed payment from Customs and excise duties, based upon three-fourths of the net revenue during the five years preceding December, 1910. If the three-fourths of the revenue received from this source in any year exceeds the fixed sum to be paid to the States, the Commonwealth would pay to the States such excess on a per capita basis. The Commonwealth was to have the right, however, to raise additional Customs and excise revenue for specific purposes, and earmark the whole of that revenue for such purpose, subject to the condition that any sum not actually spent in such specific purposes should be returned to the States. Accompanying this was a proposal for taking over the whole of the States' debts (including those incurred since federation) in successive operations as they matured. The conference accepted with modifications the proposals of Sir John Forrest with regard to Customs and excise revenue; but they declined to hand over the States' debts. Mr. Deakin has since declared that the proposals embrace a composite scheme, and inasmuch as the States rejected one, the party rejected the whole, and have therefore again thrown the question into the melting pot. But during the year there have been other influences at work which have changed the whole aspect of things, and will make it practically certain that the consideration of the matters as far as the Commonwealth is concerned will commence on an entirely new basis. The Labour party has made it clear that they will concur in no scheme which preserves in essence the Braddon section for another ten years after 1910. An emphatic declaration to this effect by Mr. Watson, when leader of the party, was followed with the repudiation by Sir Wm. Lyne of the scheme of distribution submitted by Sir John Forrest, and agreed to by the Brisbane conference. Another scheme is now in course of preparation. Mr. Deakin announced some weeks ago that it would embrace provision for Commonwealth old age pensions, and on Thursday last he said in effect that it would be representative, and that it would be laid before members prior to the forthcoming Premiers' conference.

So far, however, the utmost secrecy is being observed as to the nature of the proposals to be submitted. It would appear in fact that they have not been sufficiently advanced to make them public. There will be considerable disappointment amongst the State Ministers if, when the conference assembles on Tuesday next, the scheme of the Federal Ministers is not ready. Visiting Ministers all agree that this is an important matter, and they regard with apprehension the possibility of its being deferred till an advanced stage in the conference, when members will be growing anxious to return to their States.

When asked a question on the subject to-day, the Prime Minister (Mr. Deakin) said that it would be impossible to lay before the conference a matured view of the Federal Government before the end of next week at the earliest. This, however, he thought would not preclude the States going fully into the question previously from their point of view. It was not as though it had arisen for the first time. The States Ministers had knowledge of the general attitude of the Commonwealth and could conduct their deliberations accordingly. The work which had to be done in connection with the amendments by the Senate in the tariff by Sir William Lyne and himself was perhaps not fully understood. But it was very great, and it could hardly be expected that the Treasurer could turn his mind from that to settle in a minute the intricate problems involved in Commonwealth and State finance.

Captain Evans, Premier of Tasmania, arrived in Melbourne to-day. He called upon the Federal and State Ministers during the day. Mr. Moore, the Premier of Western Australia, who arrived from his State some days ago, has been on a visit to Sydney, where he had informal interviews with the Premier (Mr. Wade) and the State's Ministers. In the course of conversation to-day, Mr. Moore said that he was very desirous of reaching the financial question as early as possible. That was most important to all the States, and it appeared first on the draft agenda paper which had been circulated. Immigration was a subject which would also have to be discussed. He shared the view that the details of any policy could best be carried out by each State. The Commonwealth could do a great deal of good in advertising Australia in a general way, and liberal votes for that purpose would be money well spent, but the success of any policy would depend on the detailed information which could be given to intending immigrants by agents intimately associated with the conditions of the States.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The Acting Premier (Mr. Kirkpatrick) and the Treasurer, Mr. Peake, will leave Adelaide by the express to-morrow to attend the Premier's conference in Melbourne.

NEWCASTLE.

BARQUE IN DIFFICULTIES.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The high sea which is running outside the harbour to-day was responsible for getting the French barque La Rochejacquelien into difficulty. She was being towed into the harbour by the tug Irresistible when she was carried over towards the breakwater. The vessel had to be promptly taken seawards again, and subsequently the tugboat Enterprise also went to her assistance. The vessel was then brought safely into the harbour. During the morning another barque, which has not yet been identified, put in towards the harbour, but had to stand out seawards again. A tugboat has been sent in search of her.

MINERS' BALLOT.

The committee of management of the Miners' Federation has decided to take a ballot of the whole of the miners in the federation on the resolutions proposed some weeks ago relative to preserving discipline within its ranks. Ballot-papers were issued to-day, and they are to be returned within 14 days. The resolutions were originally framed in order to give the Mining Commission an assurance that in future its proceedings would not be interfered with by stoppages of work at the mines during its sittings; but when they were submitted to the lodges they were carried with only a bare majority. It is thought that this vote was not fully representative of the opinion of the miners to whom the resolutions are now to be submitted, in the expectation that they will be carried by a much larger majority.

ACCIDENT AT BALMAIN COLLIERY.

STRUCK BY A MASS OF ROCK.

At about 6.30 a.m. yesterday, Henry Charles Ballam, aged 30, a miner in the Balmain Colliery, met with a serious accident.

Ballam was working in the night shift on the coal facing under Waterview Bay, and just as the shift was ending a mass of rock fell from the roof above the coal facing, a stone striking him on the head and stunning him. His mates picked him up and wheeled him on a trolley about three-quarters of a mile to the bottom of the shaft. He was then raised 2880 feet to the surface, and an ambulance carried him to the Balmain Hospital, where he was admitted unconscious, and with a badly-fractured skull, so that an operation had to be performed.

Ballam is married, and lives in Elliott-street, Balmain.

LOVE AND DEATH.

SUICIDE IN A DAIRY SHED.

The body of George James Pinson, aged 23, labourer, living lately at 13 West-street, Paddington, was found yesterday in a dairyman's shed in Camp Cove, Watson's Bay, with a bullet wound in the temple and another below the ear. A revolver, of which two chambers had been recently discharged, lay beside the body. Pinson had worked for the owner of the shed where he was found. He left a letter in which he said he had been driven to kill himself by disappointment in love.

PRODUCE INWARDS.

LAUNCESTON, Friday.

The Hawes left Devonport for Sydney this evening with 8716 bgs potatoes, 735 bgs oats, 2737 bgs chaff, 79 bgs turnips, 19 bgs peas, 332 bls straw.

The Perth also sailed with 8685 bgs potatoes, 1804 bgs oats, 1095 bgs turnips, 166 bls straw, 14,800 bgs of potatoes are for Sydney, the others for transhipment. Potatoes were quoted at per £3/6 to £4/-.

CAMPS OVER.

INVALUABLE BATTLEGROUND.

REALITY OF TRAINING.

AN IMMOBILE ARMY.

The camp is over. The 3rd Regiment is swinging up the Station Hill. "There's no place like home," says the band; and as a Scotch drizzle set in this morning the men may be feeling that way, too. If so it is for the first time since they went to bed wet through on Good Friday. The tents had to be left standing. If they were folded and stored today they would rot in a week.

The camp is over. How is it best summarised? Perhaps in this way. A trumpeter was pulled into the dam by his officer's horse when he was watering it. A sergeant was stung by a soldier-ant. The cheese of the 2nd Regiment had to be dumped 20 yards from the bivouac; afterwards, when the wind set in that direction, it had to be taken further and hurled from a precipice. When these things form the list of disasters—the crimes, casualties, disease, and total shortcomings of a camp of 2500 soldiers for a fortnight—there cannot have been much wrong with the camp. In truth, by what one heard and saw, it was the most enjoyable, the healthiest, cleanest, and most orderly camp ever held at Liverpool; the country regiments have made a reputation by their shooting, and the city ones by their drill. What more is wanted?

On Friday when the troops were working as cheerfully as half-drowned men could work, and the training seemed in peril of falling through, the oldest inhabitant remarked that the rain would do more good for the country; would it? The troops have gone through a perfectly new sort of training this year; and the question is whether it was a useful one.

WAS THE TRAINING USEFUL?

This year's training was possible because there was a stretch of desolate land which soldiers might march and shoot upon without damaging men or crops or fences. They could do everything that would be done in war, except only one thing—and that is shoot their own side. They could shoot the enemy. But in war they have also to take the risk of shooting their own men. That risk cannot be taken on the Liverpool battle-ground. Every other risk can be taken if there is money enough. That is the very simple axiom on which the whole of the last week's manoeuvres rested.

REAL ROADMAKING.

Take, for instance, the Engineers. With the help of some infantry they built a real road, which was used by real waggons, lurching along a real march, and making a real war picture that might have been cut from a page of the "Graphic" during the Boer war. And just for the reason that it was so real the Engineers, the drivers, the men who hung on the drag-ropes, or shouldered the wheel-spokes, and even the spectators, were immensely interested. There is a magic in that reality. You could see that magic working over and over again—when the infantry were firing; when the artillery were shelling; when the army medical corps set up its hospital on the field; when the scouts and flanking parties were hovering under the edge of the bush at the side of the column. When the transport carted out water tanks to the dry interior of the bush, it made all the difference that the men thought they were taking it out for the infantry to use. As it turned out they brought it back unused because the plans were altered.

So far as a layman could judge, as long as these Australian soldiers knew they were doing the real thing—and they knew pretty well when they were—they went to it with their own peculiarly intelligent enthusiasm. The use that was made of their imagination was quite invaluable.

THE DISCIPLINE OF BATTLE FIRING.

Of course there were times when axiom number one—that you must not shoot your own side—prevented them from being handled as they would be handled in war. The country cleared was not wide enough and the fire discipline not good enough to allow an attack by rushes in a very extended line. As for the country, it can be cleared. As for the fire discipline, if it improves as much as the drill improved, so that men can be trusted to obey orders instantly—to close cut-offs, and unload and raise safety catches—the abundant caution that hampered the movements this year need not always do so. The faults of fire discipline this year were not always those of the men. Orders are so simple nowadays that if you only attract a man's attention he will understand them. The officers have to call the men's attention by their whistles. But often these were so feebly blown, and the orders so nervously given, that the men, interested in their firing, did not even turn their heads. When those things are improved, unauthorised bullets are not likely to be buzzing around, and perhaps a bolder attack may be practised; especially where danger existed a party of eight or ten men with red flags, under one command, instead of the solitary one, were posted. They could not very well be disregarded.

THE USE OF DIFFICULTIES.

On the quite invaluable work which was begun this year there is only one other criticism to pass. When movements were made that were obviously unreal, it was not always because of the fear of shooting one's own men. It was sometimes to save time; or because the movement would be difficult and probably bungled. Troops were retired in fours, or halted in quarter-column, or brought up compactly through the bush at times when they would certainly have had to be extended in war. No doubt they might have reached the bottom of the rocks, or the edge of the wood, looking as if they had been sprinkled from a pepper-pot. But it is better that they should bungle it a hundred times in peace than that they should not practise it, and bungle it for the first time in war.

It is the same with the use of flanking parties, with the lack of constant communication between the different columns, the flanking parties, the medical corps, engineers, and transport. They should all have been kept constantly in touch with the staff which knew what was happening, even if it needed a special set of men on the staff to attend to each of them. It is all difficult of arrangement, no doubt; but if it is not done, the roads will be blocked, the transport not where it is wanted, and the ambulance where it is not wanted in critical moments, when the real thing comes. There can be no doubt that bungling or no bungling, difficulty or no difficulty, every chance should be taken that can be taken of working in extended order through the bush; of advancing by rushes in the attack where possible; of scouting on the flanks; of keeping in touch with the scouts; of disseminating information through the whole force; and so on.

WANTED: THE BATTLEGROUND.

However, these things are all details that can be easily remedied, provided only that they have preserved to them this wonderful battleground. It has not yet been bought by the Government. At various spare times during the past week I drove over different parts of it. It is curious that the lower parts along the Eckersley-road are strikingly like parts of the country around Aldershot and the Fox Hills in England. There are the same sandy soil and patches of undergrowth through which you can see some 300 yards. The artillery ranges, too, at Heathcote are in some ways like the Dartmoor country, near Okehampton—the great English range. But they are far more difficult. In fact, it seemed that unless money were spent on the making of a track to those isolated targets the new range would not be a good one. But the engineers at the battleground solved that problem. If only the Government will preserve this tract of land to its soldiers the engineers could see to the making of that track on their parade day. After seeing them at work on the Island one has no doubt that this practical work would be far more attractive to them than their ordinary Sydney routine. In fact, give the soldiers this land, and they will do the rest, like the true Australians they are.

A DESERTED LAND.

It is not necessary, after all that has been written, to enlarge on the value of the battleground. That it makes any soldier's mouth water five minutes' conversation in camp would prove. As for its present use—practically it has none. I asked several of those who lived about it as to the value of it. "To turn it into a battleground is the best thing you could do with it," one said. "There are really no farmers on it—only a few gardeners. And these are generally of the very worst sort, quite unprogressive, living there because their fathers lived there." Angora goats are the only stock suggested; very few of them are actually to be found. The holdings on the area are mostly old grants—many of them long deserted. An old convict water mill, deserted paper mills, forgotten orchards, old furrowed hillsides where no plough has been for fifty years, tumbled stone chimneys—these you may see all through the flat country. It was of some use in the days when no better land was explored. Since those days, with the exception of small patches, it has been of no use at all. A French settlement in the south and a few antiquated gardeners form the most part of its population.

THEY HAVE SETTLED IT.

So it is not unnatural that the inhabitants are not sorry at the idea of selling their land to the Government. It is the talk of the place. Of course they are all convinced that they are going to receive enormous prices. And they have settled the whole thing. The oldest inhabitant can tell you exactly where the barracks are to be. They all know which is to be the general's house and the arsenal. What is intended by some of those in authority is that a manager should live on the spot to manage the estate as an estate, and develop it as far as it could be developed; to work it as a commercial concern, with strict reservations in every lease as to the rights of the Army to shoot and march over all the land. Once given the land anyone can draw up such a scheme for the Australian Army as is a thing to dream on.

AN IMMOBILE ARMY.

One last word before closing the page for good and all on this year's camp. The layman cannot well judge for himself. But he cannot help being a little alarmed when he finds that every single officer to whom he speaks is thoroughly convinced that no Australian army could march the length of the training ground and back because of its lack of transport; that Australian artillery, if faced by any foreign artillery, would be unable to do the things the other men could do—simply because it had not the signallers, telephones, and balloons; and so on with all the departmental corps. The work done by the transport and signallers is splendid. But everybody knows that the former is so small as hardly to exist. Colonel M'Cay, who commands the new intelligence corps, was over here from Melbourne this Easter; and no doubt his corps will be able to draw up some scheme for commandeering the necessary carts. Telephones, balloons, and so forth, cannot be improvised. But every man in the forces might well learn to signal. It can be done in a day or two. It is only the speed that takes time.

UNION CLUB BALL.

TOWN HALL TRANSFORMED.

The Town Hall was converted into a veritable bower of beauty last night, when the members of the Union Club gave one of the most brilliant balls of the season, and entertained over 1000 guests. The decorations were carried out in a most elaborate and effective manner, the predominant colours being red and green, and were pronounced on all sides to have exceeded in beauty all previous decorations. Festoons of light feathery green were suspended from the ceiling and caught up on the galleries, each festoon having hundreds of red cactus dahlias, intermixed with innumerable electric lights. Between the festoons hung ropes of greenery and red dahlias, the ends finished with hanging baskets of ferns and flowers. The railings of the galleries were hidden, draped with red, on which trails of feathery green smilax or asparagus ferns were placed, and between each pillar was a small red arch, from which was suspended a hanging basket. The galleries themselves were decorated with beautiful tall palms, and formed a favourite resort between the dances, and for the non-dancers, from whence a charming view of the gay scene below was obtained. The orchestral dais was ornamented with three arches of shaded red dahlias, which were most effective, and the mirrors draped with red and greenery. To throw up these decorations the walls beneath the galleries were covered with pale-blue muslin, with sprays and trails of greenery here and there. The vestibule, where refreshments were served, was transformed into a veritable fairy bower with tall palms and festoons of large white chrysanthemums. There were numerous cosy corners, which all found occupants between the dances. The decorations in the supper-room were carried out in a scheme of white and pink, the walls being draped with a pink dado, and the white lattice work ornamented with greenery and chrysanthemums; the pillars were also covered with the same kind of decorations. The table reserved for the Vice-regal party was artistically arranged with lilies of the valley and pink carnations, the numerous small tables also being decorated with carnations.

The guests were received by the president of the club, Mr. H. C. Dangar, and the members of the reception committee, who stood at different doors beneath the northern gallery, all crush and inconvenience being thereby avoided, as the guests could enter by any door without having to wait. Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Northcote, attended by the members of their staff, arrived about 10 o'clock, having been preceded by his Excellency the Governor and Miss Rawson and his Excellency the Admiral and Lady Poore, who occupied seats on the Vice-regal dais, beneath the southern gallery.

Soon after their arrival a formal set of Lancers was danced by his Excellency the Governo-General and Mrs. Dangar, Her Excellency Lady Northcote and Mr. E. W. Knox, his Excellency the Admiral and Miss Rawson, Sir Samuel Griffith and Lady Poore, Sir Francis Suttor with Miss Darley, Mr. A. F. Robinson with Lady Trafalgar, Mr. Russell French with Mrs. Fitz-Wentworth, and Mr. Rothe with Lady Suttor. The ballroom presented a most brilliant scene, the beautiful dresses of the ladies, intermixed with the naval and military uniforms worn by the many officers present, forming a most picturesque ensemble. Her Excellency Lady Northcote wore a lovely dress of pale moonlight blue satin charmeuse, richly embroidered with blue bugle trimming and mother-o'-pearl sequins down each seam, and finished with raised blue satin applique flowers; the crossover bodice was embroidered in the same manner, fine lace forming the short hanging sleeves, and her Excellency's ornaments included a magnificent collar, necklet, and pendant of diamonds, a diamond headdress, and many other ornaments of the same precious stones. Miss Rawson was in white chiffon, powdered with tiny sequins, and trimmed with white satin. Lady Poore's dress was of black chiffon velours, with a beautiful lace bertha, and diamond ornaments, and a black and white head-dress. Each of these ladies was presented with a bouquet of lilies of the valley upon her arrival. Mrs. Dangar wore a handsome dress of black satin, relieved with sequins and diamond ornaments. Lady Trafalgar was in pale grey brocade, the overskirt being finished with a fringe of net bordered with sequins. Lady Suttor wore grey crepe-de-chine, with handsome guipure bertha. Lady Mills was in white satin, beautifully made, and trimmed with pale blue and white embossed applique. The Lady Mayoress chose an effective dress of white silk, veiled with black lace. Mrs. Ewan Frazer's sapphire blue semi-Empire dress was relieved with some beautiful applique embroidery, and a corsage bouquet of pale pink roses. Mrs. Walter Hall was in black, with diamond ornaments. Mrs. Toohey wore a rose-de-Barri satin charmeuse, with beautiful venetian point lace bertha. Mrs. Buckland Taylor (Queensland) was in black, with diamond ornaments. Miss Darley's black net dress was heavily embroidered with sequins. Mrs. W. Macfarlane wore palest heliotrope chiffon, with panels of silver sequined lace. Miss Daisy Willis was in pale grey crepe-de-chine, with pink roses in her hair. Madame Bouchard wore a picturesque dress of pink floral chiffon over pale pink. Mrs. Napier's sapphire blue net was trimmed with touches of steel embroidery and dark blue velvet. Mrs. George Osborne was in black satin, with touches of black velvet. Mrs. Harry Lamb wore apricot satin, veiled in cream lace. Mrs. Arthur Allen's handsome black chiffon taffeta was relieved with diamond ornaments. Mrs. Turnbull chose a violet chiffon, powdered with tiny sequins over white silk. Mrs. Kelly's white satin was veiled with white net embroidered with silver. Mrs. Grenville Miller was in white satin charmeuse, with a blue bandeau in her hair. Mrs. Bridges wore black satin with a lace bertha. Miss Bridges was in pale heliotrope. Miss Ruby Madden wore rose pink crepe de chine. Miss Denby (New Guinea) was in pale blue satin with sequin embroidery. Miss Heather Keys wore white. Mrs. Learoyd chose a reseda green chiffon. Mrs. Mac Quade wore a handsome black dress. Mrs. Rabett's vieux-rose chiffon was worn over white, and trimmed with lace and silver embroidery. Mrs. W. Chisholm was in yellow and white brocaded satin. Miss Ruth Dangar wore reseda green, and Miss Dorothy Dangar was in white and pink. Mrs. F. Browne chose pale heliotrope satin. Mrs. Payne wore fine black lace over white, and diamond ornaments. Mrs. S. Hordern wore a beautiful dress of white lace and gold over white satin, with diamond ornaments. Miss Sly was in hydrangea blue chiffon, with silver embroidery. Miss White (Muswellbrook) wore white. Miss Dorothea Lamb, Miss Frieda Lamb, Miss Sylvia Grace, Miss Lorna Robinson, Miss Rose Merivale, Miss Janet Knox, Miss C. Gordon, and many other of this season's debutantes all wore white. The guests also included Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kater, Mr. C. E. Pilcher, Mr. E. W. Knox, Mr. and Mrs. David Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Campbell, Mr. George Miller, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Knox and Miss Knox, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dibbs and the Misses Dibbs, Mr. and Mrs. Kilgour, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Knox, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gilchrist, Sir James and Lady Fairfax, Mr. and Mrs. R. Simpson, Dr. and Mrs. Ewan Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Little, Miss Little, Dr. and Mrs. MacCormick, Dr. and Mrs. Chisholm, Mr. and Mrs. David Anderson, the Misses Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Keys, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Osborne, Miss Beatrice Madden, Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown-ing, Professor and Mrs. Anderson Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd Laidley, Mr. and Mrs. Rothe, Mr. Consett Stephen, Miss Kadith Walker, Miss Suttor, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dangar, Miss Lue Dowling, Mrs. and Miss Mosely, Mrs. and Miss Partridge, Mr. Arthur Tooth and Miss Gwendoline Tooth, Mrs. and Miss Brady, Dr. and Mrs. Collins and Miss Collins, Count Morner, Captain Napier, Captain Prowse and the officers of H.M.S. Powerful, Commodore and Mrs. Bouchard, Mr. Burnside, Mr. Milner Stephen, Mr. Alex. Gordon, Mr. G. Youll, Mr. and Mrs. H. Massie, Mr. E. Fosbery, Mr. J. Alison, Mr. W. Macfarlane, Mr. W. E. Mort, Mr. N. N. Dangar, and many naval and military officers.

Mr. G. B. Holt, the selected Labour candidate for St. George, opens his campaign to-night, when he will address meetings at Rockdale, Kogarah, Carlton, and Arncliffe.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

There will be an extra matinee of "Humpty-Dumpty" at Her Majesty's Theatre to-day. The dazzling Wheel of Life, the Coral Ballet, and the Ballet of All Nations are amongst the spectacular attractions of this piece, in which Messrs. Gilbert, Phydora and Shine figure in a whole series of laughable scenes.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The sparkling music of "The Lady Dandies" is finely interpreted by Miss Florence Young and Mr. Reginald Roberts in this elegantly staged piece of the Directoire period, whilst Miss Fanny Dango, Messrs. Bantock, Leslie, and Percy assist in a vivacious ensemble. There will be a matinee on Wednesday.

CRITERION THEATRE.

There will be a matinee of "A Beggar on Horseback" next Wednesday at the Criterion Theatre, where Messrs. Meynell and Gunn have picturesquely staged this new romantic drama. Mr. Harcourt Beatty and Miss Madge Macintosh play the leading characters in this spirited story of Jacobite intrigue, and the whole runs smoothly.

PALACE—MASKELYNE MYSTERIES.

This afternoon and evening, at the Palace Theatre, Mr. Henry Hayward will present a radically varied programme of Maskelyne and Devant's Mysteries. "St. Valentine's Day" will form the new dramatic illusion, with new tricks by Gintaro, laughable monologues by Mr. Barclay Gammon, and smart conjuring by Mr. Owen Clarke. Owing to its marked popularity, "Will, the Witch, and the Watchman" will be retained.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

At the Tivoli Theatre, both afternoon and evening, Mr. Harry Rickards's Company will include the marvellous Kauffmann troupe of star cyclists, the Albert Sisters, Messrs. J. P. Ling, Charles Mildare, Frank Harwood, the Margaret Parker Dramatic Company, and Fred Bluett. Mr. Walter Whyte will introduce Mr. Bert Rache's new song, "You Left Me Dreams."

NEWBURY-SPADA OPERATIC CONCERT.

At his final concert at the Town Hall to-night, Mr. Philip Newbury will sing "Adelaide" (Beethoven), "On with the Motley," "M'Appari," and beautiful duets with Mme. Emily Spada from "Faust" and "La Traviata." The American soprano will also render the famous air, "Ritonor Vincitor." Mr. Sydney Scott (solo organist), Mme. Lilias Appleby, and Mr. Sykes will assist.

THE KUBELIK SEASON.

One of the great events of the musical year will be the coming of Kubelik, who is now closing his third great tour of America. Kubelik is the violinist of whom, upon his debut at the Bosendorper Hall, Vienna, a great critic observed, "If that young man sticks to his fiddle, he will conquer the world." The prediction has since been fulfilled. This great player will make his debut at the Town Hall on Tuesday, May 19. To-morrow he sails from Vancouver by the Marama with his children and his young and beautiful wife, a noble lady of Bohemia, formerly known as the Countess Szaky-Czell. The general manager of the tour, Mr. F. Buckingham, now announces the supporting artists as Miss Erna Mueller, a Bendigo mezzo-soprano, who has done well in England, and Miss Emily Dyason, a pianist originally from the same city. Both these young artists were at one time at the East Melbourne Conservatorium. Kubelik's stay at the Antipodes will be limited to about two months.

HERR MAX SCHLUYTER'S SEASON.

On Tuesday morning the plan will open at Paling's for the first concert by Herr Max Schluyter at the Centenary Hall on Monday, May 4. Herr Schluyter will be well remembered as the Danish violinist who visited this city some years ago. He is a player of very distinguished talent, and his return will be heartily welcomed. Messrs. J. and N. Tait are directing the Schluyter tour, which will comprise further concerts on May 7, and Saturday, May 9.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

The National Vaudeville Entertainers, both afternoon and evening to-day, will open with the scene "Court Revels," and will include Zeno and Hall, comedy jugglers, Pastor and Merle, the Crack-a-Jack Trio, the Musical Gardiners, Eileen O'Neill, Lily Grimshaw, and a long list of artists, with new pictures by the Mioranas.

GLACIARIUM—WEST'S PICTURES.

On Monday Mr. T. J. West will transfer his picture entertainments to the Town Hall for a continuous season, so that this afternoon and evening he will give the final exhibitions at the Glaciarium. The new pictures will be an authorised series of the Agricultural Show at Moore Park, views of Shanghai, and "A 7th Century Love Story."

LYCEUM—SPENCER'S THEATRESCOPE.

This afternoon and evening Mr. C. Spencer's Theatrescope Company will include the terrible railway disaster near Melbourne. The final view of "The Life of Christ" is fixed for this afternoon. The new features will include the star films "Cupid's Pranks," "The Cider Industry," "Whimsical People" (coloured), "Views of China, Lapland, Cornwall, and Holland."

WIRTH BROTHERS' CIRCUS.

Wirth Brothers' mammoth circus will be open this afternoon and evening, when the four united menageries, the performing wild animals trained by Herr Hagenbeck, Sidney Brothers in their mid-air cycle loop, Les Grottons (gladiators), the three Gamon Brothers, and other stars of the ring will attract audiences. The giraffe, which will arrive on Tuesday, is the only one in any circus in the Southern hemisphere.

WONDERLAND—LAST NIGHT.

The summer season directed by Mr. William Anderson at Wonderland City will absolutely close to-night, when the prize-takers at the Baby Show will be paid, the realistic scenic tableau, "Fire and Flames," will be shown, Dare Devil Dee will enact his perilous feat, and a host of minor side attractions will be available.

MR. LAURENCE SMITH'S CONCERT.

Mr. Laurence Godfrey Smith's concert at the Y.M.C.A. Hall next Tuesday evening is important on account of the reopening of the popular music chamber and the high standard of the programme. This clever pianist will be assisted by Madame Slapoffski, who will sing an aria from "Carmen," Miss Dorothy Curtis (violin), Miss Alice Liggins, and Mr. J. Edward Sykes.

MISS ERNESTINE LOUAT'S CONCERT.

At Miss Ernestine Louat's attractive choral concert in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Thursday evening next the young soprano will sing the "Shadow Song," Mendelssohn's "Hear my Prayer," and the "Church Scene" from "Faust," with Mr. W. H. R. Woods. Miss Ella Crone will recite, and Miss Lilian Frost, and Messrs. Laurence Godfrey Smith, W. J. Coad, and a chorus directed by Mr. S. A. Kenny will assist.

LECTURE ON SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN.

The first of a series of lectures on famous musicians will be given next Thursday evening in the Pitt-street Congregational Church by Mr. S. A. Kenny. Musical illustrations will be given by the choir and by the Misses Emma Sussmilch, Emily Marks, Messrs. W. H. Lynch and Emil Sussmilch.

LECTURE-RECITAL, "THE TALISMAN."

On Tuesday evening next Mr. William Holman and Miss Lilian Booth will give a lecture-recital at St. James's Hall upon Scott's celebrated novel, "The Talisman," with appropriate vocal and instrumental music by Misses Millie Hughes, Muriel Casey, Agnes Chambers, and Mr. R. L. Jenkins.

SYDNEY CONSERVATORIUM.

The second term of the present year will commence on Monday next, April 27. Application forms and vouchers can be obtained from the registrar at the office of the Conservatorium, 15 Paling's-buildings, between the hours of 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. daily. Further information will be found in another column.

MISS MARY ROBINSON'S CONCERT.

Miss Mary Robinson's complimentary concert will be given at the Centenary Hall on Wednesday, May 6, when she will be assisted by Miss Annie Perry, Miss Emma Sussmilch, Messrs. W. Burns-Walker, A. Bertram Flohm, Emil Sussmilch, L. Godfrey Smith, and the Staell Quartet, including Messrs. H. Staell, F. Mowat and Bryce Carter, and Jansen. The plan opens at Paling's next Wednesday.

THE SUSSMILCH-BALMAIN CONCERT.

Misses Emma Sussmilch and Violet Balmain will give a vocal and piano recital at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Wednesday, May 13, assisted by Miss Edith Bunting, Messrs. Emil Sussmilch and Bryce Carter, when some novel and attractive music will be rendered.

QUEEN'S HALL.—LONDON BIO-TABLEAUX.

At Queen's Hall this afternoon and evening the London Bio-Tableaux entertainment will present "Training the British Bluejackets," "Hook of Holland," "Electrocuted," and songs by Master Harry Le Breton.

VICTORIA HALL PICTURES.

There will be the customary matinee at Victoria Hall to-day, and again in the evening the American Picturescope Company will show their new holiday programme, comprising the latest scenic and humorous subjects, with music.

OXFORD HALL.—LONDON BIOGRAPH.

This afternoon and evening, at Oxford Hall, the London Biograph will show some new holiday films upon stirring current events and humorous subjects, supplemented by vaudeville numbers, as noted in another column.

CLAY'S VAUDEVILLE COMPANY.

This evening Mr. Harry Clay's Vaudeville Company will resume at the Royal Standard Theatre with new artists and moving pictures. Miss Phyllis Hays, Miss Lucy Fraser, and Mr. John Ralston will join the combination. The suburban circuit will be as notified.

THE NEW "EAST LYNNE."

Last evening Miss Rowland Challis gave the final performance of her Easter season of the new "East Lynne" at the Royal Standard Theatre, when she successfully reappeared as Lady Isabel, with Mr. George Herron as Sir Francis Levison. Both artists were cordially recalled.

BUCKJUMPING, PRINCE ALFRED PARK.

The "Australian Buckjumpers, Limited," has now roped-in some three-score notorious outlaws, and, as duly noted in another column, some exciting tussles between the horse and his rider will be included in to-night's special programme of "Fun in a Stockyard."

"AS YOU LIKE IT."

At the Standard Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, 5th and 6th May, the Sydney "Muffs" will revive "As You Like It," after careful rehearsal under an ex-member of Benson's English Shakespearean Co. The plan opens at Paling's to-day, with a special tariff for schools.

THE HAYMARKET HIPPODROME.

The sporting drama, "Keane of Kalgoorlie," has proved such a success at the Haymarket Hippodrome that it will be played nightly until further notice. The detective drama, "Saved from the Jaws of Death," is in active rehearsal.

THE BLIND STUDENTS.

The Blind Students will give another entertainment at the Haymarket Hippodrome to-morrow night. The programme will consist of solos, duets, illustrated songs, and moving pictures.

VIRGIL CLAVIER METHOD.

Two demonstrations of the Virgil method of piano teaching are to be given next week at St. James's Hall, the first on Friday evening, when the work will be of an advanced character, and the second on Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of illustrating the elementary principles of the method.

SHIPPING.

THE WYOMING SOLD.

The wooden steamship Wyoming, of 258 tons, belonging to the North Coast S.N. Company, Limited, was yesterday sold to Captain Joseph Weston, of Balmain, to replace the steamer Sophia Ann, which recently became a total loss on the bar at the Richmond River. Her new owner will continue to employ the Wyoming in the coastal trade, and she will leave on Tuesday or Wednesday next.

The Wyoming was built at Brisbane Water in 1890, her principal dimensions being:—Length, 132ft; breadth, 23ft; and depth, 10ft 3in. She was yesterday floated into Mort's Dock for sighting by the purchaser with satisfactory results.

NEW STEAM COLLIER FOR THE COAL AND BUNKERING TRADE.

Messrs. Warburton and Son, shipowners and coal merchants, of Sydney, have secured, and are bringing out from England, an up-to-date steam collier, with a carrying capacity of about 500 tons, for their Sydney coal and bunkering business.

Alterations are now being carried out to make her in every respect suitable for their business according to the specifications and under the supervision of Mr. J. Sted Thompson, of Messrs. James R. Thompson and Son, consulting engineers, of 25 Pitt-street, Sydney, who expect the vessel will be ready to sail for Sydney in about a fortnight or three weeks from this.

THE SUEVIC AT CAPETOWN.

A private cable message was received yesterday stating that the White Star liner Suevic, which left Sydney on March 18 for London, arrived at Capetown on Thursday last.

THE STAR OF JAPAN WRECK.

Private cable advices received in Sydney yesterday stated that there is every prospect, should the weather remain favourable, of a quantity of the cargo of the wrecked Tyser steamer Star of Japan being saved, if steamers and lighters are sent at once. Arrangements are being made for salvage.

The Star of Japan sailed from London on March 26 for Melbourne, Sydney, and New Zealand ports, and was wrecked at Dakar, near Cape Verde.

THE BAR HARBOURS.

The following telegrams were received yesterday as to the conditions of the bar harbours:—Ballina, 14ft on bar, 16ft on inside channel at high water; Cape Hawke, bar 7ft at high water; Manning Heads, no soundings obtained; Bateman's Bay, bar 5ft 4in low water this morning.

THE MACLEAY AND PORT MACQUARIE TRADE.

Negotiations are still being conducted between the North Coast S.N. Company, Ltd., and N. Cain's Coastal Co-operative S.S. Company, with a view to an arrangement being arrived at in regard to the Macleay River and Port Macquarie trade. It is proposed that the North Coast Co. shall conduct the trade with the former place, leaving Port Macquarie to N. Cain's Coastal Co-operative Co.

The principals stated yesterday that no finality had yet been arrived at, and that the rumour which had been circulated that an agreement had been signed was without foundation.

FINANCIAL.

THE MONEY MARKET.

An interesting summary of the position of the money market is made by Messrs. Joseph Palmer and Sons in their monthly share list, wherein it is stated:—"The Bank of England rate remains unchanged at 3 per cent., but trade conditions throughout the world still show depression. Hence prices of metals and wool are still low. In Australia the demand for money is stronger, and it is fortunate that the banks had wisely accumulated large reserves in London during the prosperous period of the last five years. These reserves have now, to a great extent, been drawn upon, and the banks have met all requirements with ease. It should be observed that, at the time when the supply of money in Australia was in excess of the demand, it was scarce and dear in England, and the banks, in lending it there, were doing good to that country and to themselves at the same time. Now, when money is cheap and plentiful in England and wanted in Australia, the banks are able to use it here with advantage to the people of this country. Herein is afforded an illustration of the truth that the free interchange of money as well as of merchandise makes for the wealth and prosperity of nations. The desire expressed by some of our Commonwealth legislators to make the country 'self-contained' means simply to cut it off from the brotherhood of the human family and to deprive it of the benefits accruing from the superabundance of one nation going to make up the deficiency of another."

LONDON FINANCIAL CABLE NEWS.

The position of the Bank of England has strengthened a shade during the week, the proportion of reserves to liabilities having increased from 50.06 to 50.52, which compares favourably with the 45.32 per cent. of last year. At the same time, the institution's holdings of gold have been considerably reduced, the diminution in the banking department alone amounting to £738,000. This possibly has had an effect upon the value of call money, which is quoted at 3 per cent., a rise of ⅛ on the week. The official rates in Paris and Berlin have also hardened. Under such circumstances, a fall of ⅛ in consols, and a slight easing in the prices of a number of Australian Government stocks, is not to be wondered at. Metals generally have taken a further downward move. Silver is /⅛, and copper 12/6, spelter 1/3, and lead 7/6 lower on the week. Tin has proved an exception, being 15/ better. Bradford tops, unfortunately, are again lower, merinos having eased a further /1, and crossbreds a further /⅛ per lb. The wheat markets, on the other hand, have recovered 1/ per quarter; while butter is cabled as firm, with good clearances of Australian.

FLOTATION OF COMPANIES.

From the Registrar General's department we have received returns made under the several Acts of Parliament administered by that official for the year 1907. From this publication we extract the following information in regard to company flotations, and increase in capital made during the years enumerated:—

LIMITED COMPANIES.

	Nominal Capital.	Increase in Capital
1898	£1,578,006	£119,850
1899	4,085,180	127,125
1900	1,836,700	134,000
1901	1,841,341	196,700
1902	4,156,707	347,250
1903	4,833,105	126,100
1904	2,755,777	1,210,600
1905	3,185,890	345,300
1906	4,528,980	149,500

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

At an extraordinary general meeting of Beale and Co., Ltd., held on March 24, it was decided to increase the nominal capital by the creation of 45,000 additional shares of £1 each, and at a subsequent meeting on April 10 this resolution was confirmed.

At a special general meeting of the Trades and Industrial Hall and Literary Institute Association of Sydney, Ltd., held on March 20, and confirmed at a meeting held on April 10, it was decided to increase the capital of the association by the issue of 25,000 new shares of £1 each.

At a meeting of the Casino Co-operative Dairy Company, Ltd., held on January 20, it was decided that the capital of the company should be increased to £10,000 by the issue of 5000 new shares at £1 each, on the following terms:—Sixpence per share on application, 6d on allotment, and the balance of calls not exceeding 3d per share per month.

The Southern Cross Rubber Company, Ltd., has been formed with a capital of £500, in £25 shares, to purchase or acquire in any other manner land at Kelantan, in the Malay Peninsula, or elsewhere, suitable for the planting and cultivation of India rubber, etc. The registered office of the company will be at Sydney.

From April 27, during alterations of premises, the business of the local branch of the Queensland National Bank will be conducted in Norwich-chambers, Bligh and Hunter streets.

The annual report of the Indemnity Mutual Marine Assurance Company, Ltd., shows that they declared a dividend of 6/ per share on the shares paid up to £3 for the year 1907.

A valuator in England, who advised a lady to lend £5500 on mortgage on some houses, was adjudged liable for damages to the extent of £1750, it being afterwards found that the property was worth much less than the valuation.

Mr. J. H. Forrest has been appointed director of the Sydney Tobacco Co., Ltd., in addition to his previous position of general manager and manufacturer.

MONEY MARKET.

The Bank of England rate of discount is now at 3 per cent., to which rate it was reduced from 3½ per cent. on March 19. The open market rate of discount for the best three months' bill is 1-16 lower at 2 5-8 per cent. Short loans are quoted at 5-8 higher at 3 per cent. The official bank rate in Paris is 3-16 higher at 2 13-16 in Berlin 1-8 higher at 4 1-8 per cent.

COMMERCIAL.

Transactions throughout all departments of the mercantile markets yesterday were almost wholly confined to the distributing trade, which continued fairly brisk. Ceylon teas sold freely between merchant and merchant, apart from the business at the auctions, which also was brisk. This market showed prices to be steady as compared with rates ruling prior to the holidays. In groceries dried fruits continued in good request. It was reported that all Mildura and Renmark currants were practically out of first hands, and are now distributed at prices in some cases above trust rates. Candles and matches had some amount of attention at prices which displayed some little variation. Imported milks were said to be scarce, with a good demand for all the well-known brands. Shipments coming forward have largely been booked to arrive. The market for oils was quiet, though linseed continued firm in sympathy with the higher quotations ruling in London. Private cables received yesterday reported the market for Thistle oil to be not only slightly higher, but strong in tone, inasmuch as manufacturers were not showing the least desire to book forward at present rates. In other respects the local oil market was featureless. Business in jute continued practically at a standstill, but private cables from Calcutta indicated that the markets on that side were somewhat firmer. Merchants here believed that this firmness and rise could be attributed largely to weather conditions lately prevailing in India, which threatened to prejudice the jute crop. The market for metals was devoid of large business, a few small parcels of fencing wires and wire nettings being placed at current rates.

OLIVE OIL.

Respecting the olive oil crop in Italy the following appears in the "Board of Trade Journal":—

H.M. Consul-General at Naples (Mr. E. Neville-Rolfe, M.V.O.) reports that the season of 1907 has been a very late one for all crops, and the oil crop has been no exception to the rule. Hence one cannot speak with the usual certainty of the results of the crop at the end of 1907, but the opinion is generally held that the result will be favourable. The Calabrias and the Neapolitan districts promise exceedingly well, and Puglia, which gave some grounds of uneasiness in the summer, seems to promise a good average crop. Prices are likely to remain high for export because the 1906 stock is completely exhausted, and the demand for the local market in Italy becomes stronger every year. The 1907 quality should be very good, because the fruit is generally sound and not punctured by the fly or eaten away by the worm.

W. C. DOUGLASS, 58-66 Liverpool-street, SYDNEY, holds large stocks of everything appertaining to the Grocery Trade. Special Wholesale Agent for "A.B.C." Tea, "Breakfast D-light," "Bovril," Bird's Custard Powder, Dunn's Extract of Coffee.—Advt.

BREADSTUFFS.

Whether the improvement in the European markets was "influencing" the position of wheat in Sydney, could hardly be detected—for the reason that growers were not ready sellers before, as now. There was, however, no anxiety yesterday on the part of the farmers to "let go," at even 4/6 per bushel. Millers were not buyers at this price, and so, in the absence of business, the value of wheat might be put down as nominally 4/5½ to 4/6 per bushel.

It was learned during the day that a grain firm had practically decided to transfer a cargo of 15,000 bags from the destination of the United Kingdom to this market. The vessel will leave Adelaide for Sydney on Monday—provided nothing happens meanwhile to make London look a better speculation.

Flour moved slowly at prices which were unchanged, up to £10 for city, and from £9/15/ to £10 for country brands.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 68 tons of wheat and 34 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

Stocks in Bond.—The stocks of merchandise other than wines, spirits, narcotics, and sugar in bond on April 24, also at the corresponding period last year and movements of the week were:—

Sugar.—Quite a modest trade was the record of the week. The prices ruling were the following:—Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Limited:—No. 1 B (brewers' crystals), £22 per ton; No. 1 X (confectioners' crystals), £21/10/; No. 1 A (dried for table use), £21; No. 1 (I.W.), £21; No. 2 (I.C.), £20/15/; and No. 3, £18/15/; tablets, in 56lb bags, £25/10/ per ton; icing and caster sugar, 56lb bags, £26; coffee crystals, in 70lb bags, £24. Syrups remain unaltered.

The Millaquin and Yengarie Sugar Company:—Millaquin 1A and AA, £21; No. 1 dry and A/x, soft, £20/15/; B/x, soft, £20/10/; and P, £20/5/.

Sugar.—The bonded stock of sugar in tons compares:—

	Impt.	Duty paid.	Exptd.	In Bond.
March 27	77	1117	746	54,461
April 3	271	1115	624	52,993

April 24	196	734	1167	47,563

A year ago the sugar in bond was 39,541, and two years ago 25,103 tons.

Prices for German 88 per cent. beet sugar, f.o.b., Hamburg, and first marks granulated, as cabled from London yesterday, compare with prices ruling earlier as follows:—

	German Beet. Per cwt. s d	Granulated. Per cwt. s d
Yesterday	11 11	13 6
A week ago	11 9	13 3
A month ago	11 0	12 7
A year ago	9 5	11 1
Two years ago	8 8	10 8

Tea.—There was a fair demand for Ceylon teas apart from the auction sales. Business reported included 90 packages at /9 to /11 per lb., 150 packages at up to /11, and 100 packages at /8½ to /10½.

Fraser, Usher, and Co., Ltd., report having sold by auction yesterday, on account of the importers, Messrs. Thompson, Fraser, Ramsay Proprietary, Ltd., ex R.M.S. Mongolia, etc., 464 packages Ceylon teas at prices up to /10½. The whole of the catalogue was cleared. On Thursday next these auctioneers will offer, at the City Mart, at 12 noon sharp, the following, under instructions from the following importers:—Messrs. Parbury, Henty, and Co., 246 packages Ceylon teas, and 222 Indian; under instructions from Messrs. Thompson, Fraser, Ramsay Proprietary, Ltd., 505 packages Ceylon teas, ex R.M.S. Oruba, etc.

Messrs. H. W. Carey and Co. submitted, at their saleroom, yesterday, on account of Messrs. Gibbs, Bright, and Co., 1030 packages Ceylon tea; and on account of Messrs. Burns, Philp, and Co., Ltd., about 120 packages Fiji tea. They report having cleared about two-thirds of the catalogue at prices showing a steady market, especially for medium and good medium grades broken pekoe and broken orange pekoes realised up to 9½ per lb. The same brokers announce a sale for Friday next, May 1, of 1025 packages Ceylon tea, just landed, on account of Messrs. Gibbs, Bright, and Co., as advertised elsewhere.

Groceries.—Special business was scanty, but a good distributing trade was maintained for practically all lines. Many orders were on hand for Gold Medal milk to arrive ex the Miltiades on 28th. The Niwaru shipment (2500 cases) was all sold to arrive. This was landed only yesterday, although the vessel had been in since Good Friday morning. Ex the Wakool 1000 cases were said to have been sold to arrive, and the same applied to 2000 cases ex Port Chalmers. Other milks—Nestle's, Milkmaid, Cressbrook, and Highlanders—were also moving off in fair parcels. Stocks of all these brands were light. Keen's blue had attention at /8½. Swinbourne's gelatine sold at 16/6, and jelly crystals (White's) had attention at 3/9½ per gross. D.S.F. mustard was distributed at 19/ for 1's, 9/6 for ½'s, and 5/3 for ¼'s. Pan Yan sauce was in fair demand. Candles sold freely, 100 boxes of D.R.J.'s being placed at /7½. Merchants were, however, asking /7¾ for distributing lots. Fifty boxes of Goudas sold at /7⅛, distributing lots being quoted at /7⅜. Twenty-five boxes of Schiedam's sold at /7. Fifty cases of matches sold at 3/5 and 3/6 for 12's and at 3/4½ and 3/5½ for 24's. Dried fruit continued in request. Quotations for currants in 10-ton lots were: /5¼ for one-crown, /5½ for two-crown, and /5¾ for three-crown. The distributing trade was upon the basis of /5¾ to /6, according to quality. It was reported that all the Mildura currants were out of first hands, and being now distributed. Sultanas were selling freely at /6½ for three-crown and /6¾ for four-crown. Stocks of one and two crown were practically exhausted, and three-crowns were being rapidly depleted. Dates from the Niwaru sold at /3½. Evaporated fruits had distributing sales at the following rates:—New season's apples, /7½ bulk, and /8½ 1lb cartons; old apples, bulk /9; peaches, old, 8 grade /11, 8X /11½; apricots, 8 grade, /10, 8X /10½; prunes, /7½; pears, /10½; and nectarines, /11½. Fish of all kinds met with fair sales.

Oils.—A private cable received during the afternoon reported the market for raw linseed oil (Thistle) to be 1/9½ f.o.b. Glasgow for immediate shipments. This represented a rise of ½ on the week, and denoted a strong upward tendency for forward business. B. and S.'s linseed oil was quoted on spot at 4/4½ and 4/6½ per gallon. One hundred cases of Thistle, to arrive next week ex the Hyson, sold at 3/3 and 3/4. Fifty cases pure China oil realised 5/. Pinetree turpentine was quoted at /1 less—3/5 per gallon. Pratt's was available at 3/7, which also was easier for spot business. To arrive, orders for Pratt's were being booked at 3/3. Whitlead was unchanged.

The Colonial Oil Company were quoting:—Snowflake kerosene, ex store Sydney and Newcastle, /10½ per gallon; Royal Daylight kerosene, for oil engines, ex store Sydney and Newcastle, /8⅛; Pratt's benzine, ex store Sydney and Newcastle, 1/2¼; Pratt's naphtha, ex store Sydney and Newcastle, 1/5½; Pratt's motor-car spirit, ex store Sydney and Newcastle, 1/5½; and Pratt's gasolene, ex store Sydney and Newcastle, 2/1.

The British Imperial Oil Company's quotations were:—Silverlight kerosene (in tins), /9½ per gallon f.o.r. Sydney; Shell (mota) benzine, 1/2½; Shell (mota) naphtha, 1/5½; Shell (mota) motor-car spirit, 1/5½; spirit, terms net, 14 days.

Metals.—There was rather less movement in the metal market. Ten miles of Lysaght's wire netting, 42 x 1½ x 17, A grade, sold at £36/10/, and five miles of ditto, B grade, at £33/10/. Second-grade English, 42 x 1½ x 17, was placed at £32. American black wire, landing, sold at £8/10/ and £8/17/6 for 8 and 10 gauges respectively. American galvanised was worth £10/15/ and £11/5/. German black, small lots, sold at £8/2/6 and £8/12/6, 20 tons being placed at 2/6 less. German galvanised was worth £10/12/6 to £12/15/ for No. 8, and £11/5/ for No. 10. Five tons of 14 gauge barbed wire, imported, sold at £17/5/. No. 12 gauge was quoted at £15/10/.

Jute.—No disposition was shown to do business in jute fabrics, and the market remained lifeless, as it had been practically throughout the week. Quotations, in the absence of big business, were nominal—cornsacks 6/, woolpacks 2/3¾, and branbags 4/7½. Calcutta was cabled as being firm and advancing, with sellers prepared to do business only at the advanced rates, cornsacks and woolpacks being more than /1 higher on the week.

Respecting the manufacture of gin, an application was recently made for permission to compound spirits in bond, using Australian rectified spirits and certain ingredients, and to issue the result as "dry gin." The application was refused. "No spirits," says a Customs order, "can be manufactured in bond as 'gin' unless complying with the terms of order 1005."

At Darling Harbour yesterday 249 bales of wool were manifested to arrive.

The revenue collected at the Customs-house yesterday amounted to £22,107.

LONDON MARKET CABLES.

SILVER.

LONDON, April 23.

Bar silver is quoted to-day 2/1 1-16 per ounce standard, ⅛ lower on the week.

METALS.

April 24.

Closing quotations were:—

Copper.—Spot, b £58, s £58/5/; three months, b £58/10/, s £58/15/—a fall of 12/6 spot, and 12/6 forward, on the week.

Tin.—Spot, b £145, s £145/10/; three months, b £143/15/, s £144/5/—a rise during the week of 15/ spot, and forward.

Pigiron.—51/6—a fall of /6 on the week.

Spelter.—Spot, b £21/5/, s £21/7/6—a fall of 1/3 on the week.

Lead.—Soft foreign, spot, b £13/5/, s £13/10/—a fall of 7/6 on the week.

At the corresponding period of last year copper, on spot and at three months, was quoted at £100/2/6. Tin, on spot, was worth £188/15/, and at three months, £186/15/. Pigiron was quoted at £2/16/3. Lead was at £20/11/3; and spelter was worth £25/18/9.

WHEAT IMPROVING.

The wheat markets have evidenced a better inquiry, and there is a general advance of 1/ per quarter. The impression is that the worst is over. Cargoes are firm. Those off the coast are held for 36/3 per quarter of 480lb, and the afloats are worth 36/6. Australian wheat on spot is in small supply at 38/ and 38/6 per quarter of 496lb.

FLOUR.

Flour is slightly firmer. Cargoes afloat are offering at Glasgow at 27/6 per sack.

FREIGHTS.

No freight fixtures are reported.

BRADFORD TOPS.

There has been slightly more inquiry for Bradford tops, but only a little business. Values (easier) are: Super 60's, /22 per lb (/1 lower on the week); common 60's, /21 (/1 lower); 46's, /10½ (/½ lower); and 40's, /8¼ (/½ lower).

At the beginning of the year the prices were: Super 60's, /26½ per lb; common 60's, /25½; 46's, /14½; and 40's, /12½.

SUGAR DEARER AGAIN.

German beet sugar, 88 per cent., is quoted at 11/11 per cwt, a rise of /2 during the week. First marks granulated are quoted at 13/6 per cwt, a rise of /3 during the week.

BUTTER.

The butter market is firm, colonial clearing well. Choicest Australian is worth 106/ and 108/ per cwt. New Zealand and Danish are quoted at 110/ and 112/. The cold weather is checking European supplies.

APPLES.

The apples per the Grosser Kurfurst landed at Hamburg are disappointing, being mostly too small. Sales have been made of green at from 6/ to 12/6 per case. A few good coloured large Jonathans realised 16/9. Cleopatras brought 16/ and Munroes 18/ per case.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The wheat market was advised to-day from London to be firmer, but no alteration occurred here. Inquiry was made from the eastern States at 4/0½, but sellers are holding for 4/1 to 4/2. Flour sold at £8/10/ for export. Bran and pollard were firm at 1/6. Tasmanian potatoes reaching this market are being sold in merchants' parcels at about £6. A few locals are coming in. Butter was firmer, with short supplies at 1/4. Eggs improved to 1/4.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The market was fair, to-day's prices being:—Chaff, lucerne, prime, 4/5, passed and sold to 4/6, mixed 3/ to 3/7; wheaten straw, 3/ passed, and 3/6 passed; lucerne hay, prime, 3/ to 3/3; maize, prime, 4/0½ to 4/1; potatoes, Brownell's new, 5/3 passed; sweet, 1/3 to 2/ passed; pumpkins, 1/9 passed to 2/7; pollard, 7/8; bran, 7/1; barley, 3/5; wheat, 4/5 to 4/6; eggs, ordinary, /10½ to 1/1¼, special 1/2 to 1/6¼; butter, prime, /7½ to /8.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Wheat was firmer at 4/4, with a better inquiry, and holders are unwilling to sell. Flour was unchanged at £10. Bran was scarce, sales being made at 1/6½. Pollard was quoted up to 1/6½. The town demand for Algerian oats was quiet. There were good samples being quoted at 3/1½ to 3/2; but country demand continues, and several hundred bags of good heavy sold at 3/3 spot. Maize was scarce. Prime old sold at 4/9. New maize for delivery early next week was quoted at 4/6, sellers being without buyers. Peas were firm at 4/2. Chaff was very firm at advanced rates. Prime oaten sold from £5/12/6 to £5/15/; choice green wheaten, £5/17/6. Potatoes were steady. Prime Gippsland sold from 75/ to 80/; good pinkeye, 70/; Tasmanian, 85/ to 90/. Onions were quiet at from £4/15/ to £5. Butter advanced /1, owing to the falling-off in production. Choice western sold at 1/2; other prime to choice 1/1 to 1/1½; occasionally 1/1¾. Eggs sold from 1/4½ to 1/6.

At auction 466 packages of Ceylon tea were offered, and all sold at from /7½ to /11. 200 packages of Ceylon were sold privately up to 1/1. Ten tons of Nilghiri coffee were sold. Twenty bags cream of tartar were sold at /8½. Two tons of citric acid were sold. Cornsacks on spot had sales at from 6/ to 6/0½. Branbags on spot were in fair demand at 4/9. Galvanised fencing wire had good sales, and is in good interstate demand. 200 drums of B., S., and Co.'s linseed oil were sold. Fourteen tons of Champion's and seven tons of Mersey white lead were sold.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

The usual quiet feeling which characterises the nearing of the end of the month was evident among produce agents. Only moderate turnovers were reported, and retailers only operated to actual needs, probably, on account of the wet weather. Chaff remained unaltered, and good stuff was reported to be selling well. The maize market continued weak, and the majority of the sales for prime dry were made from 3/10 to 3/11. Potatoes were quiet, and ruled at late rates. Oats met with fair sales; no alteration was noted. Peas sold fair; up to 5/3 was obtained for blue. Lucerne remained at late rates. Bran and pollard were scarce, £7/10/ still being asked.

FEED-GRAIN AND OFFAL MARKET.

Maize.—Prime dry, 3/11 to 4/; white, 3/9 bus.

Barley.—Cape, seed 4/3, extra prime 4/6, medium 4, to 4/2 bus.

Peas.—Blue, 5/ to 5/3; grey, 4/6; inferior, 4/3 bus.

Wheat.—Prime milling, 4/6.

Chickwheat.—4/4 to 4/5.

Oats.—Melbourne: Heavy milling, 3/2 to 3/4. Tasmanian: White, 3/2 to 3/4. Local: Algerian, 3/1, 3/3; Tartarian, 3/4.

Bran.—£7/10/; pollard, £7/10/.

FORAGE MARKET.

Chaff.—Victorian: £5/15/, £6. Adelaide: £5/15/ to £6. Western Australian: Nominal. Tasmanian: £5/10/ to £5/15/.

Oaten Hay.—Victorian, £6 to £6/10/ ton.

Derrick Straw.—Tasmanian: £3 to £3/5/.

Lucerne.—Hunter River, £5 to £5/5/; other lines from £4.

VEGETABLES.

Potatoes.—Tasmanian: Redskins, £4/5/ to £4/10/.

Onions.—Melbourne: Brown Spanish, £6 ton.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

The week-end market showed an improvement upon conditions prevailing during the week. Now that the Easter demand has fallen off, and the cold weather is setting in, the inquiry for bacon will consequently slacken off considerably. In fact, one agent reported the change to have already commenced, and quoted sales of prime factory sides from /8½ to /9; and also a decline of a farthing all round. But the majority of the sales ruled at late rates, no alteration being noted. Choice brands of butter were firm, and no change in price was reported. There was a large amount of second-quality on hand, which had been detained at the northern rivers, and it was said to be moving off slowly. Cheese was well inquired for, and brisk sale resulted. Eggs had a fair demand, and no alteration in prices have yet been reported. New-laid ranged from 2/ to 2/3; the supply was only fair.

Current quotations were:—

Butter.—Special flavoured brands 104/, choice 98/ to 96/, seconds 8/6 to 90/, pastry lines 80/ cwt.

Bacon.—Prime factory, sides /9 to /9½, flitches /8½ to /9, middles /10½; special brands, sides /10½; flitches /10½, middles 1/. Hams; In cloth, 1/ to 1/2, special brands, /12½; bagged, /12½ to /18; special brands, /13½.

Cheese.—Local: Prime loaf /8½ to /8¾, good /7½ to /8, inferior from /5, prime large /8, good /7, inferior from /5; special brands, /8½.

Lard.—Packets and small bladders, /7½ to /7¾, special /8, bulk /7, special /7½.

Eggs.—Northern Rivers, 1/4 to 1/5; Southern and railway, 1/5 to 1/7, choice 1/9; new-laid suburban, 1/11 to 2/, few choice to 2/3; new-laid duck, 1/5 to 1/6 dozen.

POULTRY.

Choice birds were still scarce in the poultry section. Prices remained at late rates.

Current rates were:—

River.—Old hens 2/ to 3/; young roosters, 3/ to 5/; chickens, 1/ to 2/; English, ducks, 2/6 to 3/3; Muscovy, small 2/, good 2/6 to 3/3, drakes 4/ to 5/, extra choice 5/6; geese, 5/; goslings, 5/; turkeys, hens 5/ to 6/; gobblers, prime 10/ to 13/6, extra heavy to 18/; guineafowls, 4/ to 4/6 pair.

Suburban.—Fowls, young roosters, 2/6 to 4/, small kinds 2/, old hens 2/ to 3/; ducks, English 2/6 to 3/, small 1/6 to 2/, choice to 4/6; Muscovy, 3/ to 4/, choice 5/; drakes to 6/, choice 7/; turkeys, hens 5/ to 6/; gobblers, prime 10/ to 13/6, inferior from 6/; geese, 6/; guineafowls, 4/ to 4/6; pigeons, 1/ to 1/6 pair.

Messrs. Ellis and Co. report having obtained the following prices at their auction sale yesterday:—Eggs, case /18 to /21, new laid /25 to /27, choice suburban brands /28; duck, /18 to /22 per doz. Fowls, young roosters, 3/6 to 6/6, choice 7/3, very small kinds from 2/, fat hens 2/9 to 4/4, choice 4/10. Ducks, English 3/3 to 4/11, choice suburban 5/3, Muscovy 3/6 to 5/, choice suburban 5/4; drakes, Muscovy, 4/6 to 7/3, choice suburban 8/. Turkeys, hens 6/3 to 8/, choice 9/, small from 4/6; gobblers 9/6 to 13/9, choice 16/, small from 6/. Geese, 6/ to 7/6; guinea fowls, 4/6 to 5/5; pigeons, 1/ to 1/6 per pair; sucking pigs, 5/9 to 9/3, choice weighty 11/ each. Honey, /1½ to /2½, choice /3 per lb.

APIARY PRODUCTS.

Honey moved well, choice brands, while second qualities were slow. Wax was firm.

Current rates were:—

Honey.—60lb tins extra choice extracted, /3, prime /2½ to /2¾, good /2¼, inferior and candied, /2.

Beeswax.—Bright, 1/2½ to 1/3; dark, 1/2.

FIREWOOD.

At auction 26 truckloads were offered. Good sales were reported. Best boxwood improved to 7/, and ironbark and stringybark to 12/ per ton.

Late rates were:—Boxwood, best 15/ to 17/, good 12/ to 14/; bakers' wood, 12/ to 13/, good 10/ to 11/; stringybark, 10/ to 12/; ironbark, 10/ to 12/ ton.

AUCTION SALES.

At the auction sale held at the railway yards on Friday 37 consignments of mixed produce were offered, and 26 were disposed of. The attendance of buyers was fair, and competition was slack at the commencement of the sale, but firmed considerably towards the close, when sales were brisk. The prices obtained for chaff, of which there was only a small supply, were firm at late rates. Only three truckloads were offered, and two were sold, prime cuts selling at 6/1, and good at 5/2 per cwt. A feature of the sale was a change in the lucerne market, which at the opening of the sale was weak, but firmed as the sale progressed. Altogether 16 truckloads of lucerne were offered, and only four lots were passed in. Prices realised were 6/ to 6/1 for prime Mudgee hay, 5/7 for medium Mudgee hay, 4/6 to 4/9 for good truss hay. Prime large bales realised 5/2, good 4/8 to 4/9, inferior large bales 2/6. Prime Singleton hay 5/6. A truckload of prime Mudgee hay was sold at 6/7, but this price was very high, and cannot be taken as a fair quote for the market. A truckload of oaten hay, and also one of wheat, were offered, but both were neglected. A truckload of good pumpkins was offered, and changed hands at 50/ per ton. The supply of potatoes was good, 15 truckloads being offered, of which 11 changed hands. Prices were slightly higher than late rates, as dairymen were operating freely for cow-feed. Prices obtained were 2/ to 2/5 for medium quality, and 1/6 to 1/10 for inferior samples.

Consignments were disposed of as follow:—

Chaff.—From Lyne, Iandra, (6686) p 3/3; Pedley, Newbridge, (4754) 5/2, (58) 6/1 per cwt.

BATHURST-STREET.

Agents reported fair turnovers in the Bathurst-street fruit markets. There was a large supply of tomatoes, which was unusual for this time of the year. The demand was limited, probably on account of the wet weather, and resulted in a decline in prices. Choice were quoted at 3/6 to 4/, and were very hard to sell. Cucumbers fell off a little, choice lots bringing only 5/. The Fiji consignment of bananas arrived. The demand was brisk, but prices remained unaltered, in spite of the shipment being of a fair quality. Coconuts were in good demand, and a rise of sixpence resulted.

BELMORE MARKETS.

FRUIT.

The demand for all varieties of fruit has weakened. Prices obtained for apples were firm at late rates; but pears were very scarce, and, consequently, rose in price. The supply of lemons is getting smaller; but prices received are about the same as late rates. Consignments of local oranges are still being placed on the market, and prices retained unaltered. Consignments of mandarins have been placed on the market, and Emperors and Thornies are both selling freely at from 4/ to 5/ per box, according to quality.

VEGETABLE MARKETS.

Sellers on Friday reported that the demand for vegetables was good, but supplies were scarcely large enough to meet the demand. Cauliflowers and cabbages were a little cheaper, but asparagus was much cheaper. Pumpkins were firm at late rates for large and medium varieties, but were a little cheaper for the small varieties. Horseradish was scarce, and was very much dearer, while tomatoes, Early Rose and sweet potatoes were also dearer. Quotations were:—Cauliflowers, 3/, 3/6, small 1/6, 2/; cabbages, large 3/6, medium 2/6, small 1/, 1/3; pumpkins, large 10/, medium 6/6, small 1/, 1/6; lettuce, 1/; vegetable marrow, 1/6, 2/; cucumbers, 2/, 2/6, small 1/, 1/6 per dozen; carrots, 1/; parsnips, 1/, 1/3; turnips, 1/, 1/3; beetroot, /9, 1/; leeks, 1/; eschalots, 1/; spinach, /9, 1/; parsley, 1/, 1/6; herbs, 1/; mint, 1/, 1/6; watercress, 2/, 2/6; asparagus, 4/6; rhubarb, large 2/, 2/6, small 1/6, 1/9; celery, large 1/9, 2/, small 1/, 1/3; radishes, /6, /9; horseradish, 10/; Swede turnips, 2/, 2/6 per doz bdls; potatoes, Early Rose 5/6; sweet, 6/6; onions, 6/6 per cwt; French beans, 1/, 1/3; green peas, best 3/, 3/6, other varieties 2/, 2/3; chillies, 4/, 3/6 per bushel, tomatoes, 2/, 2/9 quarter-case; 3/6, 4/ half-case.

STATION PRODUCE SALES.

The Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance Co., Ltd., John Bridge and Co., Ltd., Dalgety and Co., Ltd., Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Ltd., Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Ltd., Hill, Clark, and Co., New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Co., Ltd., Pastoral Finance Association, Ltd., Pitt, Son, and Badgery, Ltd., Schute, Bell, and Co., and Winchcombe, Carson, and Co., Ltd., report:—

Sheepskins.—Very good competition prevailed, and prices ruled firm at late rates. Quotations:—Merino: Three-quarter to full wools, /6 to /7; half wools, /4½ to /5; short wools, /3½ to /4½. Crossbred: Fine half-woolled, /4½ to /4¾; halfbred to coarse, /3½ to /4. Lambs (merino and crossbred): Good length, /4½ to /5, average to /3½. Pelts: Merino to /4, crossbred to /3¾.

Hides.—Competition was very firm, particularly for medium and heavy weights. Good-conditioned lights held their own, but sloppy sorts were occasionally easier. Supplies heavy. Quotations:—Queensland butchers' hides: Heavy-weights (60lb up), /6 and up per lb; medium-weights (50lb to 56lb), /4½ to /5½; light medium-weights (40lb to 46lb), /4½ to /4¾; light-weights (33lb to 38lb), /4 to /4½; dry hides, /3¾ to /5½. New South Wales butchers' hides: Extra stout heavy-weights (picked lots), /7 and up; heavy-weights (60lb and up), /5½ to /6½; medium-weights (50lb to 56lb), /4¾ to /5⅞; light medium-weights (40lb to 48lb), /3⅞ to /4⅞; light-weights (32lb to 38lb), /3½ to /4⅛; inferior and faulty, /2 to /3½; dry hides, /3¼ to /5½. Yearlings, to 8/ each; calf, to 3/6; horsehides, to 10/6.

Messrs. George H. Moxham and Co. also report having held their usual weekly sales of sheepskins and hides.

CITY YARDS.

At the week-end pig sales 350 head came under the hammer, porkers and baconers were about equally represented, while a fair number of backfatters were yarded. Buyers were in good attendance. The competition was restricted, and prices ruled a little lower for all classes.

The following prices were realised:—Backfatters: Extra prime and weighty, £4/10/ to £5; good £3/10/ to £4/10/; others from £3. Baconers: Best heavy, 55/ to 62/; good, 48/ to 55/; medium, 42/ to 48/; others from 36/. Porkers: Prime, 30/ to 34/; good, 26/ to 30/; medium, 21/ to 26/; others from 14/; suckers, 4/ to 7/6.

PROPERTY MARKET.

No outstanding feature marked operations in the real estate market during the current week, and the turnover was of small dimensions. There was a steady inquiry, and satisfactory sales were reported for the Easter auctions. A continued demand was still made for water frontages within easy access of the city. About the largest sale during the week was that of a city freehold property fronting Phillip-street, which realised nearly £5250.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman have sold the following properties by public auction and private treaty:—Newtown: Business premises, comprising shop and dwelling, No. 155 King-street, £1400. Hunter's Hill: Residence and grounds, known as Woodbank, fronting North-parade, and the reserve along the Lane Cove River, £1025. Bondi: Block of land, fronting Ocean-street, at £4/15/ per foot, £437. Bondi: Block of land, fronting Ocean-street, £322/10/. Waverley: Two houses, Nos. 15 and 17 Prospect-street, £350. Burwood: Two allotments, fronting Neich's-parade, portion of Neich's Estate, £150. North Sydney: Allotment, portion of St. Leonards Park Estate, £90. Botany: Parcel of land, Sandgate Estate, £80. Leura (in conjunction with Craig and Hogben): Three allotments, Marmion Estate, £40. Centennial Park land (in conjunction with Richardson and Wrench, Ltd., and Batt, Rodd, and Purves, Ltd.): Three allotments, £378.

Richardson and Wrench, Ltd., report having sold by auction and private contract during the week the following properties:—City freehold property, fronting Phillip-street, £5250; corner freehold property, Lennox and Eliza streets, Newtown, £1450; dwelling, fronting Marine-parade, Double Bay, £560; two small cottages, fronting Edmund-street, Waverley, £375; two blocks of land, fronting Ewos-parade, Cronulla, £499; block of land on Western railway line, £300; allotment, forming part of the third subdivision of Dawson Estate, Drummoyne, £200; allotment, Turramurra-avenue, Turramurra, £121; small allotment, May-street, St. Peters, £37; also, in conjunction with G. H. Mobbs and Co., 16 allotments of Heart o' Cronulla subdivision, Cronulla, at prices aggregating a total of £2208; in conjunction with Messrs. King and Humphery, 15 allotments of Freshwater Beach Estate, Manly, £320; and in conjunction with Messrs. Hardie and Gorman, and Batt, Rodd and Purves, Ltd., three allotments of Government subdivision, Centennial Park, £368.

Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report the following sales at auction and privately during the past week:—40 lots, mostly water frontages, Holt's Sutherland House estate, Sylvania, £2303; 26 lots, Greenland estate, Wentworth Falls, £947; lots 2, 3, 4 Restwell estate, Woy Woy, £81; lot 12, Troy's estate, Campsie, £70; lot 12, Pymble View estate, Turramurra, £65; lots 46 and 50, Arabi Hills estate, Enfield, £67; lot 80, one acre, Bankstown farmlets, £20; lot 1, Narrabeen Lakes estate, Narrabeen, £30; lot 6, Tennyson estate, Tennyson, £33; lots 17, 18, 19, Narrabeen Heights estate, at Narrabeen Lakes, £36; lot 9, Auburn Downs estate, Auburn, £30; part of lot 38, Bundoona estate, Port Hacking, £8; lots 6 and 51, Dellwood Park estate, Granville, £35; half-acre, Macquarie Fields, £2.

Messrs. Henry F. Halloran and Co. report the following sales have been effected since last week:—Thirty lots Yow Yow estate, Woy Woy, £804; 19 additional lots of Lithgow Extension estate, £454; 2 lots Fairfield estate, Arncliffe, £100; 1 lot Oak-street, Cronulla, £55; 1 lot Seaforth, Middle Harbour, £82; 1 lot Stanwell Park, £68; 1 lot Warriewood Closer Settlement, estate, £122.

Messrs. Fowler and Son report having sold this week by private contract the following:—Block land, Abigail-street, Summer Hill, £103; brick cottage, Vendetta, Carlton-crescent, Summer Hill, £400; brick cottage, Mentone, Sloane-street, Summer Hill, £725. —Advt.

FORTHCOMING SALES.

Oatley.—Arthur Rickard and Co., Limited, are holding an auction sale of some choice allotments at Oatley station on the Illawarra line, this afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The land is nicely elevated, close to station, and suitable for building purposes. Title is Torrens, and advertised terms are £1 down and 10s per month. In addition to the land, a six-roomed brick cottage standing on about an acre of land will also be sold.

Strathfield.—An estate occupying the highest ridge between Sydney and Parramatta is subdivided into 20 building allotments, with average depths of 170ft and frontages of 40ft. This land will be sold by auction on the ground this afternoon, at 3 o'clock, by Batt, Rodd, and Purves, Ltd. The Enfield to Burwood tram passes the allotments, which are within easy walking distance of either the Strathfield or the Burwood railway stations.

Manly.—Free conveyances will meet the 1 and 2 o'clock steamers from Sydney to Manly to-day, to convey intending purchasers to the Bellevue Estate allotments, where Richardson and Wrench, Ltd., in conjunction with Messrs. Hanson and Strong, will sell the property by auction. The terms have been very suitably arranged.

Little Coogee.—An auction sale on the Sea Bathers' Estate, Little Coogee, is advertised by Mr. Arthur Blackwood to take place at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The property is connected by gas water, and sewerage, and is in close proximity of the sea baths.

MINING.

THE SHARE MARKET.

A fall of 1/6 in the price of a ton of lead may appear an insignificant amount, but the fact that such a decline was announced in yesterday morning's private cables from London, coming on top of the previous declines of 2/6 each, bringing the price down from £13/12/6 to £13/6/, was not calculated to inspire a speculative spirit. And when the announcement was accompanied by quotations, showing that the London Stock Exchange on Thursday marked down Broken Hill silver shares all round, it was no wonder that the local market, as well as the Adelaide and Melbourne Stock Exchanges, displayed a corresponding weakness.

The position of affairs will be understood, when it is stated that Broken Hill South (paid) receded from 62/ to 59/3, the contributing scrip from 55/ to 53/, Broken Hill South Blocks from 11/10½ to 10/3, and Broken Hill Junction N. from 16/3 to 16/. Transactions at 6 weeks, at the seller's option, were booked at 38/3 in Broken Hill Proprietary, and also at 38/ on six weeks' terms, whilst for ordinary delivery there were sellers at 39/6, as against the previous day's closing sale at 41/. Other Barrier stocks not dealt in showed a corresponding weakness. Thus there were sellers of British, Broken Hill Block 10, Broken Hill Block 14 (ord.)—morning call—Broken Hill Junction, and Broken Hill North below the last recorded sale.

This slump in silver interests was calculated to have a depressing effect upon copper stocks, notwithstanding they are controlled by entirely different circumstances. That it did not do so, though copper shares were not too buoyant, was possibly due to the announcement that in London on Thursday the price of copper rose from £58 to £58/5/. At the same time, London quotations for Chillagoes, Munganas, and Mount Lyells did not disclose a firm market, hence the position of copper stocks locally was not in all cases too buoyant. For instance, Hampdens sold at 11/, the previous sale recorded, some weeks ago being 13/; whilst Munganas eased from 8/? to 7/9, Mount Morgans from 66/6 to 66/, and Chillagoe, contg. from 5/1½ to 4/10½. On the other hand, Mount Molloys firmed from 5/6 to 5/8. New South Wales copper stocks were rather quiet, with holders, however, quoting firmly.

In tin shares Gilmore Tin eased from 6/10½ to 6/7. Gold stocks were represented by sales at weakening rates, in Mount David and New Hillgrove Proprietary.

The afternoon proved a quiet session, with business less active than in the morning, and with silver stocks closing weak.

MINING NOTES.

Charters Towers yields:—Worcester, 99 tons, gold value £788; Caledonia, 534 tons, gold value £1221; Kulamadau, 250 tons, 102oz.

The Ringarooma Bucket Dredging Company (Tasmania) has obtained 19cwt of tin oxide for 113 hours, and the Gladstone Tin Development 11cwt for 200 hours.

The Stannary Hills Mines and Tramway Company treated during the past fortnight 1356 tons of ore, estimated to produce 29 tons concentrates. The approximate value of this, at the present market price of tin, is £2465. The small tonnage is owing to necessary adjustments of the machinery.

During the past month the Vulcan tin mine (Q.) treated 1092 tons of ore for 65 tons 13cwt 3qr 2lb of black tin, valued at £4608. Poor ore, carrying a large percentage of magnetic iron, is showing at the 280ft level workings. The ore having cut out at the 840ft level, the latter is being continued. The face carries a percentage of wolfram. The 900ft stopes show no change. It is expected to be able soon to start and drive for the main lode from the 1220ft level.

The directors of the Harden West Company have purchased the up-to-date complete plant of the Hargreaves Goldfields, Limited, Hargreaves, which includes a 10-head battery, winding gear, engine, boiler, and all appliances. Mr. A. Chapple has proceeded to Hargreaves to dismantle the machinery and forward it to the Harden West gold mine, Harden. It is expected that all the machinery will be in position at the mine, and ready to commence treatment work in about three months' time.

Private cables state that amongst the shares quoted on the London Stock Exchange on Thursday were the following:—B.H. Block 10, s 43/9; B.H. Proprietary, 36/3 (m); B.H. South, paid, 57/ (m); B.H. South Blocks, b 11/; Zinc Corporation, 4/6 (m); ditto, pref., s 16/3; B.H. North, s 37/6; Chillagoe, contg, s 5/; Munganas, s 8/3; Mount Lyell, s 28/3; Briseis, s 10/9; Kalgurli, b £8/1/6; Great Boulder, b 25/9; Ivanhoe, b £7/17/6; Mount Morgan, b 62/6. Lead was quoted at £13/6/ (spot), a decline of 1/6, the forward quotation being £13/10/. Copper was quoted at £58/5/, a fall of 5/ per ton.

NORTHERN TERRITORY TIN-MINING.

A telegram from the manager of the Mount Wells tin mine, situated near Burrunderie station, on railway from Port Darwin to Pine Creek, states that 20 tons of tin will be despatched to Sydney by the next steamer. Twenty heads of stampers are at work, and there is plenty of ore of fair quality. This shipment makes 52 tons of tin won since the commencement of the year.

THE GULF DISTRICT.

EMMAVILLE, Friday.

Consequent on the rise in price of tin, there is more mining going on at the Gulf than has been the case for some time past. Clifford and Wilcox, working on what is known as "Charlton's mine," are down over 100ft. The shoot of ore is looking well, and shows no sign of diminishing. During the past fortnight the party took out half a ton of tin. Clifford and Son's mine, on Clarke's Gully, is looking well, and good tin is being got out, some of the veins being almost pure tin. They are now working the stopes, and have a large quantity of ore at grass.

Harvey and Porter will be cleaning up this week, and expect to have a good return. This party is working the show recently discovered by James Stapleton, but it is not near so rich as was at first thought. Nevertheless, payable ore is being obtained.

Charlton and J. Clifford are sinking on a big lode at "Carpet Snake." The country is decomposed sparr, and easy to work. The shaft is now down 20ft, and tin is beginning to make.

Frendon and Rubelt are sinking on tin, and expect to cut through into the main shaft any day. This is a good mine, and has already yielded a lot of tin.

Bradshaw Bros. have a very good show on the old Yankee reef, and are now down about 25ft, the lode improving as it goes down. They are now washing up about 5cwt per week.

The Gulf Tin-mining Company has closed down, and the property has been let on tribute to Griffen and Purves, who are getting out a fair quantity of tin, and doing well.

Hutton and party are working their wolfram show on the flat, and are doing fairly well. This is the only wolfram property now being worked at the Gulf. There are plenty of promising shows, but the low price ruling for the ore does not warrant prospecting. There are several parties on tin shows, all of whom are making wages. Mr. Joseph Clifford is the only tin buyer at the Gulf, and since the rise in tin has purchased a good few tons of the metal which had been held for a better market.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Friday.

The Golden Horseshoe has declared a dividend of 6s per share, payable on April 29.

The new mill of the Boulder No. 1, on the St. George's leases, Magnet, start crushing about the middle of next month.

The Kalgurli main shaft is down nearly 1550ft, at which point it is intended to drive the next level. So far the western ore body has been opened up a total length of 450ft at 1350ft without reaching the limit of the shoot. Other parts of the property are, according to latest official reports, looking well throughout.

The Golden Ridge management report that the No. 2 cross reef has been opened up 67ft at No. 4 level. The ore averages 45s per ton for the last 27ft of driving.

Ore carrying coarse gold has been struck at the 230ft level of the Lady Miller lease, Norseman. The development is regarded as an important one.

In a bore hole put in from the face of the crosscut at the No. 4 level of the Oroya Black Range, the first few feet of the formation was low grade; then came a foot of quartz, assaying 54/ ton. At this point boring operations were suspended on account of a heavy inrush of water.

MOUNT BISCHOFF TIN MINE.

LAUNCESTON, Friday.

During the fortnight 540 tons of crush dirt were obtained from the underground works on the Mt. Bischoff lodes, ranging from 18in to 5ft. The tin contents were fair to good. Further deposits have been found on the north side of the mount. Other prospecting work is turning out satisfactorily.

LONDON SHARE MARKET.

LONDON, April 24.

On the Stock Exchange to-day, shares in Australian mining ventures were quoted as follow:—Broken Hill Proprietary, b 36/3, s 37/6; Broken Hill Block 10, 43/9, s 46/3; Broken Hill North, b 36/3, s 38/9; Broken Hill South, paid, 56/3, s 58/9.

GOOD TEMPLARS' ANNUAL SESSION.

The annual session of the International Order of Good Templars, which had been sitting in Sydney during the week, closed on Thursday. About 250 representatives and other members of the order were present. The Grand Lodge degree was conferred upon about 80 members, including representatives from Broken Hill and Tweed River.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—Mr. W. J. Green, G.C.T.; Mr. J. Sims, G. Co.; Miss M. E. Wright, G.V.D.; Mr. W. H. Mitchell, G.S.J.W.; Mr. G. D. Clark, G.E., Supt.; Mr. Geo. House, G. Sec.; Mr. J. L. Fegan, G. Treasurer; Rev. J. Tarn, G. Chaplain; Mr. A. Morley, G.M.; Mr. H. W. Lee, P.G.C.T.

The officers' reports and business sheet were discussed at length, and resolutions were carried regretting that steps were not taken in connection with the State elections to pledge Parliamentary candidates to the principles embodied in the policy of local and State option and majority rule, and also profound satisfaction with the magnificent vote cast in favour of no-license, and claiming that the great interest manifested and the large vote polled amply demonstrated the wisdom of conceding to the people the right of veto. Another resolution expressed the opinion that immediate steps should be taken to amend the law so as to provide for majority rule, State option, abolition of barmaids, elimination of the 30 per cent. minimum, and the repeal of the provisions granting time compensation to publicans. It was also declared that the Grand Lodge is greatly encouraged in its work by the expansion of prohibition and no-license territory in America, embracing communities containing nearly 35,000,000 people.

A further resolution was—"That with a view of accomplishing in our time similar results in New South Wales, this Grand Lodge decides to (a) adopt a clear-cut prohibition issue; (b) enter upon an extended pledge-signing crusade; and (c) make special efforts during the present year to bring the Churches of this State up to the same high total abstinence and prohibition level as are the Churches in America." Regret was evinced at the disgraceful scenes which occurred on New Year's Eve, as reported in the public press, where the licensing laws were openly violated, and children supplied with liquor, and asking a deputation to wait on the Minister, asking him to see that steps are taken to prevent any future recurrence.

The incoming executive was directed to make arrangements for the taking of pledges on the Pollard plan in the various police courts.

The New South Wales Alliance at the recent no-license campaign was congratulated on the advantages gained.

Respecting propaganda work in the future, the opinion was recorded that to bring the order up to its true position in the State it is absolutely imperative that there should be (a) a division into workable areas of the entire jurisdiction, and the appointment of active and experienced members of the order as district deputies to supervise the work of subordinate lodges, and to open up new branches where practicable; (b) the holding of special demonstrations in different centres of population, to be attended by Grand Lodge officers; (c) more frequent and out-spoken advocacy from the platform and through the press of the two great fundamental principles of the order—total abstinence for the individual, and prohibition for the State; and (d) the wider recognition in the lodgeroom and in the field of politics of the unique position of the order, as representing the element for complete and universal prohibition.

On Thursday a harbour excursion took place. About 250 members of the order and their friends attended.

FROOTOIDS.
FOR HEADACHE, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, AND BILIOUSNESS.

The immense number of orders for Frootoids sent by post direct to the proprietor is convincing proof that the public appreciate their splendid curing power over the abovenamed complaints. They are elegant in appearance, pleasant to take, and, what is of the utmost importance, are thoroughly reliable in affording quick relief.

Frootoids are immensely more valuable that an ordinary aperient, in so far that they not only act as an aperient, but do remove from the blood tissues and internal organs waste poisonous matter that is clogging them and choking the channels that lead to and from them. The beneficial effects of Frootoids are evident at once by the disappearance of headache, the head becoming clear, and a bright, cheery sense of perfect health taking the place of sluggish, depressed feelings, by the liver acting properly, and by the food being properly digested.

Frootoids are the proper aperient medicine to take when any Congestion or Blood Poison is present, or when Congestion of the Brain or Apoplexy is present or threatening. They have been tested, and have been proved to afford quick relief in such cases when other aperients have not done any good at all. It is of the utmost importance that this should be borne in mind, for in such case to take an ordinary aperient is to waste time and permit of a serious illness becoming fatal.

Frootoids act splendidly on the liver, and quickly cure bilious attacks, that "antibilious pills" make worse. Many people have been made sick and ill by "antibilious pills" who could have been cured at once by Frootoids. People should not allow themselves to be duped into contracting a medicine-taking habit by being persuaded to take daily doses with each meal of so-called indigestion cures that do NOT cure. Frootoids have been subjected to extensive tests, and have in every case proved successful in completely curing the complaints named.

The ordinary adult dose of Frootoids, of which there are 72 in a bottle, is 2 or 4—more or less as required—taken, preferably at bedtime, when constipated, or at the commencement of any other disease requiring an aperient, as an auxiliary with the special medicine necessary with the case. A constipated habit of body will be completely cured if the patient will on each occasion, when suffering, take a dose of Frootoids, instead of an ordinary aperient, making the interval between the taking of each dose longer and the dose smaller. The patient thus gradually becomes independent of Aperient Medicines.

For sale by leading Chemists and Storekeepers. Retail Price, 1s 6d. If your Chemist or Storekeeper has not got them, ask him to get them for you. If not obtainable locally, send direct to the Proprietor, W. G. HEARNE, Chemist, Geelong, Victoria.

NOTICE.—The Materials in FROOTOIDS are of the VERY BEST QUALITY and consist, amongst other ingredients, of the active principles of each of FIVE different MEDICINAL FRUITS and ROOTS, so combined and proportioned in a particular way that a far BETTER result is obtained than from an ordinary aperient.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Messrs. William Inglis and Son report having sold, on account of Mr. Isaac Earnshaw, the thoroughbred stallion Seal Rock, 4 years, by San Francisco (imp.), from Miss Gladys (dam of Gladsome, Apologue, etc.), to Mr. R. M. Fitzgerald, of Tongy, Cassilis, the price being 550 guineas.

Conde has been scratched for the Second Steeplechase to-day.

The programme for the Canterbury Park May Meeting is published in our business columns. Entries close with the secretary, Mr. W. L. Davis, at 4 p.m., on Monday.

Entries for the May meeting of the Wollongong Jockey Club must be lodged with the secretary, Mr. James Denmeade, at the office of the Warwick Farm Racing Club, before 4 p.m. on Monday. The programme is advertised this issue.

The programme for the next meeting of the New South Wales Trotting Club, to be held on the 4th proximo, is announced, and entries will be received by the secretary, Mr. R. C. Hungerford, up to 9 p.m. on Monday. At the same hour nominations for the Sires Produce Stakes, 1909, close, and each entry must be accompanied by the subscription of 5 guineas.

The privileges in connection with City Tattersall's autumn race meeting, to be held at Randwick on Saturday next, will be offered for sale at Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son's Bazaar, at noon on Monday.

Conde has been scratched for the Second Steeplechase to-day.

The A.J.C. notify the following registrations of meetings:—Carinda J.C. Meeting, July 2, Maitland J.C. Meeting, May 27; West Wyalong Oddfellows' R.M., June 1 and 2.

Though a month has elapsed (writes our Cessnock correspondent), since the newly-formed jockey club applied for registration, no reply has yet been received. The members are becoming impatient at the delay, as the £20 only registers the club till the end of the year.

Our Lismore correspondent telegraphs that the hospital benefit race meeting held on Tuesday last will result in about £150 being handed over to the funds of that institution. The promoters intend making it an annual gathering.

AUSTRALIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

AUTUMN MEETING.

FOURTH DAY.

The autumn racing campaign at Randwick will be brought to a close this afternoon, and the bill of fare to be discussed is a varied and interesting one. The customary transit arrangements will be in vogue, and the first race is timed to start at 1 p.m. The sport opens with the Rous Handicap, which promises to attract a large field, and, at the weights, the chances of Lady Rylstone, Maltine, Lady Ruenalf, Black Mark, and Lady Diffidence seem the brightest, while the judge may declare for Lady Diffidence, Lady Rylstone, and Lady Ruenalf. The Place Handicap should bring about a good contest among Melodrama, True Light, Absentee, Jack Smith, and Miss Simmer, and the places may be occupied by True Light, Miss Simmer, and Absentee. Kuala Lumpur, Eclair, Boomerang, and Blend should have the settlement of the Second Steeplechase among them, and the numbers may be hoisted for Boomerang, Kuala Lumpur, and Eclair. On recent form Poseidon, Tartan, and Dyed Garments should come home in the order written in the A.J.C. Plate. A large field may be anticipated for the Second Nursery Handicap, in which prominent parts should be played by Little Lad, Emita, Lady Maltster, Matchmaker, and Parsee, and the honours may be divided among Emita, Little Lad, and Parsee. The Final Handicap, which brings the afternoon's sport to a close, may be fought out among Grenadier, Melodrama, The Climax, The Castaway, War Bee, and Longchamps, and The Castaway, Melodrama, and The Climax may pass the judge in that order. The programme is subjoined:—

SALES OF YEARLINGS.

TOTAL REACHES 38,587 GUINEAS.

The annual sales of yearlings were brought to a close at Randwick yesterday, when Messrs. M'Cabe and Dodds disposed of the Currandooley and Nandillyan drafts, and Messrs. William Inglis and Son cleared off the balance of their long catalogue. During the three days, 310 youngsters were sold for a grand total of 38,857½ guineas, an average of 125 1-3 guineas.

MESSRS. M'CABE AND DODDS' SALE.

The sale of the drafts entrusted to Messrs. M'Cabe and Dodds, held at their stables near the tramway sheds, was marred by the rain that came down about noon, before the bulk of the buyers had assembled; but the firm kept faith with the public and started punctually. The Currandooley draft was mostly the progeny of imported Orzil, with a few each by Fighting Furley (imp.) and Newhaven. In the earlier stage of the sale low prices ruled, but there was a marked improvement towards the close. The top-price, 410 guineas, was given by the Randwick trainer, I. Earnshaw, for a beautifully-shaped sister to The Owl, and J. Buprton, also of Randwick, secured the sister to Oriellet, for 310 guineas. Mr. E. L. Ramsay takes back with him to the Darling Downs, Queensland, at a cost of 180 guineas, a handsome bay filly, by Multiform from the Perth Cup winner, Novitiate, bred by Mr. Hamilton Osborne, and Mr. Hope Osborne, of Redbank, gave 100 guineas for the sister to that good horse, Currandooley. Two Positano colts, bred by Mr. R. H. Dangar, of Neotsfield, were submitted for sale, but the reserves were above the values placed on them by purchasers, and they retired unsold; as did Fille Fogi's sister—one of the Nandillyan Heights batch—when bidding ceased at 110 guineas. The first of Newhaven's progeny went cheaply, as did those of the imported sire, Fighting Furley. The 22 lots sold realised 1913 guineas, an average of 87½ guineas. The following are the sales:—

On account of Messrs. Osborne Bros., Currandooley Stud.

Ch f, by Orzil (imp.)—Kurry, by Will o' the Wisp—Mr. I. Earnshaw, 410 gns.

MESSRS. WILLIAM INGLIS AND SON.

Messrs. William Inglis and Son resumed their sale of thoroughbred yearlings at 2 p.m. yesterday, at Payten's Newmarket stables, Randwick. The Hobartville draft was first paraded, and they were a fine even lot. The top price, 675 guineas, was given by the Western Australian sportsman, Mr. P. A. Connolly, owner of the Sydney Cup winner, Dyed Garments, for a beautifully-shaped and well-grown three-quarter sister (by Simmer) to Scorn and Niphetos, and he also got from that draft a good stamp of colt by the same sire from the Queensland-bred mare Brise des Nuits. The Victorian sportsman Mr. J. Turnbull gave 550 guineas for a racing-looking colt by Simmer from the Carbine mare Carbina, and the full sister to Borodino, fell to the nod of the Western Australian sportsman, Mr. J. M'Gowan for 250 guineas. The draft of a dozen realised 2610 guineas, an average of 217½ guineas. The half-dozen Maltsters from the Inglewood stud commanded some attention, and the pick of the basket, a big, strapping brother to Lorraine, brought the top price, 360 guineas, the bid of Mr. E. E. Clarke, of Victoria, while the Queensland sportsman, Mr. A. B. Nagel, gave 200 guineas for a half-brother to Talofa and The Master. The half-dozen realised 1135 guineas, an average of 189½ guineas. The sister to the well-performed Malt Queen, bred by Mr. J. B. Morris, of Worondi, failed to reach the reserve, and she was passed out of the arena when bidding ceased at 225 guineas. There was keen competition for the Leeholme youngsters, and P. T. Heywood, a Victorian trainer, secured the half-sister (by Simmer) to Diffidence and Merriwee, for 500 guineas; while Messrs. Moses, of Cambadello, gave 400 guineas for a nice sister to Master Foote. A fine-looking colt by Sir Tristram from the Grafton mare Gillawa, was knocked down to Mr. J. Samuel for 310 guineas; and Mr. Hope Osborne, of Redbank, gave 200 guineas for a handsome daughter of Sir Foote and the Trident mare, Kangulandai. The Duninald batch, a well-grown lot, were sold cheaply, Mr. J. Brown, of Maitland, securing a smart-looking filly by Sir Tristram from the Goldsbrough mare Happy Moments, for 160 guineas, while Mr. H. Mosman, of Queensland, got a brother to Kara for 150 guineas. Mr. E. E. D. Clarke, of Victoria, paid 470 guineas for a beautifully-shaped and well-grown, dark chestnut colt, by Maltster from the Eiridspord mare Pose, bred by Messrs. J. and W. Thompson at Widden, and from the same draft Mr. J. M'Laurin, of Germanton, got a racing-looking brother to Sequent for 410 guineas. The Brocklesby draft sent by Dr. Spooner Hart from Corowa went cheaply. The highest price, 210 guineas, was given by Mr. A. Hooke, of the Tia River stud, for a filly by imported Gluten from Water Nymph, whose breeding was the great attraction. The 80 lots sold during the afternoon realised 11,412 guineas, an average of 142 5-8 guineas. Victorian sportsmen purchased to the extent of 3400 guineas; the sum of 1652½ guineas was expended by Western Australians, and nearly 900 guineas by the Queenslanders. The lots that were sold are subjoined:—

N.S.W. RUGBY UNION.

At a meeting of the council of the N.S.W. Rugby Union last night Messrs. J. M'Mahon, J. F. Macmanamey, and I. C. O'Donnell were elected the New South Wales selection committee for the season.

The formation of sub-branches has been recommended to take in Junee to Hay on the Hay-Narrandera line. Reports are to hand that Rugby is making '' y strides in that district. The formation of a sub-branch is also recommended to take in clubs in Merimbula, Pambula, Eden, Pipeclay Creek, and Wynyard, on the far South Coast, and also a sub-branch to take in clubs around Kyogle and Casino.

A letter has been received from the English Rugby Union, stating that the matter of arranging matches in Ireland for the team to visit Great Britain was to be discussed by the secretaries of the Irish and English Rugby unions, and a decision is shortly expected to be made known.

SYDNEY CLUB.

Sydney will be represented by a number of juniors in their match against Western Suburbs at Rushcutter Bay to-day. The juniors this year in the city district will be given a good chance in the first and second grade to show their worth, as the teams are entirely different from last season. For example, in the first grade, of the 20 players who wore the black jersey last year the club will this year be minus the services of such well-known players as D. Brown, A. Holloway, L. O'Malley, L. Jones, A. Burdon, W. M'Carthy, and D. Frawley, joined the 'league; Seaborn, O'Sullivan, Doyle, and Sayers left the district; and Swannell, Midlane, and Pearce have retired from active playing. Notwithstanding this, when the colts now in the team get going a fair combination will be got together. A good sign for the future of the club is the way the juniors are sticking together, and a large number of promising players are training hard to secure places in the three grades run in connection with the district. In addition a Junior Union has been started with some eight clubs, which should prove of great use in the near future.

RUGBY LEAGUE.

REDFERN PARK LEASED TO THE LEAGUE.

The Redfern Council has accepted a proposal from the Rugby League to fence the Redfern Oval. The league was prepared to bear all the expense of the work, and asked in return for a lease of the oval for three years for the football season commencing on April 1 and ending September 30, 1908-9-10. The league offered 20 per cent. of the gross takings, and at the end of the lease the fencing would become the property of the Redfern Council. At the last meeting of the council Alderman Howe moved and Alderman Holden seconded,—"That a recommendation be made that the terms of the Rugby League should be accepted, subject to certain alterations. They consist of 25 per cent. of the gross takings being handed over, instead of 20 per cent., as offered, for 16 Saturday afternoons, between April 1 and end of August; that 14 first-class matches be played each year; all improvements to be made under the supervision of the council; and no complimentary tickets be issued." The motion was carried by six votes to four, as follows:—For: Aldermen Dudley, Ivory, Howe, Spearman, Holden, Leitch. Against: Aldermen Brierley, Isaacs, Dearing, Savage.

ANGLING

GREAT PERCH-FISHING AT TUGGERAH.

The creeks that flow into Tuggerah Lakes are perch-fishing grounds of substantial importance, and it is noteworthy that these fine sporting fish enjoy a run into the salt water of the lakes at frequent intervals. They are very adaptable fish in this respect, and will bite as freely in the salt water as in the fresh. They are also better worth eating after a marine sojourn. The chief river flowing into the lakes is the Wyong, which has already become a regular resort for many anglers of the city and suburbs. The most successful lure in the fresh water is the spinner, of which there are many varieties; but, in the lake there is no need to keep on working a spinning artificial bait at the end of a rod for the perch, as they will take the same baits as black bream, on similarly light hand-lines. Two city anglers who visited the lake recently had rare sport with the perch, for in less than three hours they caught 120, as well as two black bream over three pounds weight each, and one flathead weighing eight pounds. Many of the perch were three pounds weight, and the two sportsmen had tight lines and plenty of exciting fishing the whole time they were on the ground, which they fished from a boat.

A recent visitor to St. George's Basin describes the perch and bream fishing at Wandandean River as first-class. Very few of the people who fish this South Coast ground use fine tackle and gut. If they did, and could handle it with skill, the hauls recorded by visitors would be very much better than they are. Anglers connected with the clubs of the city might worthily give this locality a trial with their rods. Fishing at the mouth of the lake, as the basin is often called, has been very good at certain corners, at particular conditions of tide.

Easter trout fishermen did not appear to lower the volume of the rivers very much by the number of fish they caught; but some fair individual hauls were secured by men who had the personal equation so strong in their minds that they would not give away any information as to the locality they whipped, the flies they employed, or the size of the fish they caught. It is not too cold in some of the valleys yet, but the season for snow and the end of the trout season are both in sight, and the beautiful trout tackle must be put away from next Friday, when the season will end. On the whole, it has been a good season, although far too many small fish have been bagged.

It is not unseasonable to utter a last word to our country anglers, many of whom are in every essential, except one, true sportsmen, and to ask them to cultivate the use of the fly in preference to angling with the spoon flash and the many devons that are now on the market. These fascinating artificial baits may be suitable for men who fish in the Tasmanian lakes for large salmonidae from the tail end of steam launches or boats; but they are not a fair thing to fish in our beautiful, fast, but comparatively easily-fished streams, most of which one can cast almost across at any place. The game with the fly necessitates great skill, and, while it is not contended that the shining artificial lures with their triangles or flights, are not difficult to manipulate from the bank of a stream, we strongly urge devotees of the sport to think deeply on this subject, and discover the top-line of the moral code for trout fishermen in this country, which reads, "Give the little ones a chance." Having splendidly stocked rivers, it is well to regulate the fishing and prevent wholesale slaughter.

Messrs. Kelso, Johnson, and H. K. Anderson have been trying the Goodradigbee lately at Brindabella, with fair success. Mr. Anderson reported to Eastway Bros. this week that thousands of small trout were visible in the river. He found the little chaps—four inches long, many of them—suiciding at almost every cast, necessitating their careful unhooking and return to the water alive. In three days Mr. Anderson caught a great number of fish, but found only 13 of them weighable. His best fish were a three and a one and a half pounder. The river was low, and slightly discoloured with rain. All Mr. Anderson's fish were caught with the dry fly, and the largest fish took the Gorrick claret quill. The zulu fly was also a favourite.

Greenwell Point is fast coming into favour as a fishing resort, and if well handled by those who wish to make a living there, should hold popularity for some time to come. The writer has not yet seen the place, but reports from others indicate that the possibilities of sport are decidedly alluring.

A party of the A.F.A. members camped at Cowan for Easter, and fished at several places, from Flint and Steel Point in Broken Bay, up to Dangar Island, and at the entrance to Cowan. Some fair hauls were taken, including whiting, flounder, black-bream, and jewfish. Mr. R. J. Geddes placed his launch and tents at the disposal of the party, and was with it right through as guide.

Catfish are as wicked as ever in the Parramatta and Hawkesbury rivers. On Easter Monday a fisherman received a stab in the hand from one of the spines of a catfish in Broken Bay, and although he bore the pain well, was glad to exhibit a little less stoicism when a bottle of ammonia was offered him by some strangers a second time. It is a great mistake to staunch the bleeding from a catfish, flathead, stingray, or other fish stab. The wound should be sucked vigorously for a quarter of an hour, as the barbs are all covered with matter which paralyses the blood at the base of the wound. All this vicious stuff should be got away, for cases of erysipelas have occurred lately through carelessness in regard to fish spine wounds. Mr. H. W. Hepper (hon. treasurer of the A.F.A.) has had his finger bad for nearly three weeks from a catfish wound, which apparently healed over the surface too soon.

Some hauls of the week were: Mr. G. Hollingdale, 20 black-bream, and a few jewfish and flathead, at Broken Bay; H. White and party, at Hawkesbury, a mixed haul; Stephen Murphy, a good haul at the Hawkesbury; S. White, a fair catch of bream at Watson's Bay; J. E. Holloway, four dozen black-bream at Port Hacking; H. Edwards, black-bream and a 7lb jewfish at Woy Woy; Crossman and party at Newport, several good catches at Easter; Clapham and party at Berowra Creek at Easter, bags of red-bream, trevally, flathead, and jewfish. One of this party caught a 9lb jewfish on a No. 24 green silk-twist.

Mr. J. A. Brown (hon. secretary Tramway A.F.C.) has just concluded a memorable angling trip to Byron Bay. Both in the bay and at the mouth of the Brunswick River he found the fish very willing. Whiting up to two pounds weight were caught in the Brunswick estuary. The sport with black-bream was also particularly good, and Mr. Brown's chief difficulty was how to get rid of the fish he caught.

Country anglers should be interested in the formation in Sydney of a Piscatorial Council for the State, which took place this week. As the number of angling clubs increases, this body should exercise a beneficial effect on the fisheries and collate the interests of anglers generally.

ROWING.

TASMANIA'S POSITION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

At the meeting of the Victorian Rowing Association last night, the following resolution was carried, "That as the associations of the States have unanimously decided that only one crew shall be received from Tasmania, and as the majority of the associations of the States appear to consider that the Tasmanian Rowing Association should be regarded as the representative of Tasmania on this occasion, pending a settlement of the dispute at the next conference, this committee regrets that it cannot take any further action with the object of bringing about a full representation of Tasmania in the forthcoming race."

OVERLAND MOTOR TRIP.

TO ADELAIDE AND BACK.

Mr. J. H. M'Farlane, of Glenalvon, New South Wales, has just concluded an interesting motor trip on his Minerva motor car from Young to Adelaide and back. He was accompanied by his wife and a child 3 years old. On the outward trip of 900 miles the car never gave any trouble, with the exception of breaking one front spring. Melbourne was reached without incident, and Mr. M'Farlane then started for Adelaide, making splendid progress over the excellent roads of the western district of Victoria. Casterton was reached after 200 miles having been accomplished in the day's run. "On these good roads," says Mr. M'Farlane, "I had the opportunity of letting the car out to her greatest speed, and one mile was done with a stop watch in 1m 22s. My car is a 16-h.p. Minerva, weighing 22cwt. unloaded. Next day, through a misunderstanding about road directions, we went off a good road into sand, and had a lot of trouble to get back. It had rained a little the night before, and rained while we were stuck in the sand, and this, I think, caused ignition troubles, which necessitated a couple of short stops. About two miles from Strathdownie we got stuck in some very heavy white sand, but eventually got through after putting some bracken fern under the wheels and digging with a spade I had bought for the purpose at Casterton. From Casterton to Strathdownie there are several patches of sand and the one we got stuck in was very bad. From Strathdownie to the South Australian border the road was unmade, and far from good; from the border we had a made road all the way to Mt. Gambier."

The party reached Kingston, S.A., a distance of over 900 miles, without any trouble, with the exception of breaking one front spring, from the shield and back axle had to take a good many bumps from the tussocks in the middle of the track, and Mr. M'Farlane had to take the shield off once and bend it back, as it was rubbing on the fly wheel of the engine. This illustrates a small but very useful feature of the car, that is the very easy mode of attaching and detaching the shield; should anything be dropped into the shield it can be got in a moment.

"After numerous trips to Adelaide and other places, making a total mileage of 2172 miles from Glensloy," said Mr. M'Farlane, "we made a start back, leaving Wellington Lodge on March 18, with a heavy load of luggage and two rolls of matting for getting over the sandhills. Soon after leaving Woods' Well we struck the first sandhill, and the matting was used, which enabled us to get over it, 30 yards being used this time. The matting consisted of four strips of 18 inches wide coconut matting, and each 10 yards long. Each pair of strips were joined together with string, to enable them to be quickly set to the right gauge for the wheels, and to join them eight double-ended hooks were used, and as one strip was left behind it was unhooked and dragged forward and rehooked. We ran over a piece of sand before getting on to the matting, also a piece of the other end, so that the actual length of the matting used does not represent the length of sand. About a quarter of a mile and No. 2 sandhill was met, and here, again, 30 yards of matting was used; the third sandhill was the longest, and required 80 yards of matting to get over it. Here our trouble began, as one front tyre was down, and also the Adelaide-made front spring was broken. The tyre was pumped up and the spring lashed to a piece of dry mallee. About 56 miles from Kingston we struck another sandhill, and the worst one. It was almost perpendicular on one side, and about 4ft high. After some surveying of the country we managed to get a run round, through sand, but downhill, and thus missed the hill. Then we got on to the Coorong pipeclay; this was damp, and very heavy going. With the throttle wide open the speed was not much over 20 miles an hour. When we came off the pipeclay, being nearly dark, to avoid sand we accidentally ran into a rabbit warren, and which brought the car to a stop. In trying to get a start again one of the back wheels fell through the burrow, till the footboard rested on the ground, and left the car in a hopeless position. As the situation looked so bad, and it was dark, we unloaded all the luggage. Early next morning, after using the spade and setting the matting, a trial was made to get out. The engine was capable, and we got out, leaving a hole like where a waggon had been bogged. Just after passing Cantara we went through about a quarter mile of wet sand, which had drifted over a pipeclay lagoon. This was very heavy going, and in first speed the throttle had to be almost fully open all the time, and even then it became too much for the engine, and the car stopped, and matting was put down and a fresh start made, which carried us on to firmer ground. The matting had to be used once more, and Kingston was reached at 9.58. Here we stayed the rest of the day and that night, and got a temporary spring fitted and tyre fixed up, and a new spring wired for, to be sent to Mt. Gambier.

The rest of the journey back was accomplished without serious trouble or delay, Mr. M'Farlane observing, in conclusion:—"The tyres were the only things to trouble us, the engine gears giving no trouble, and with the magneto always in use the dry cells that I started with from Young on December 11 are still in use for starting purposes. I find no trouble with the magneto, excepting occasionally cleaning the make and brake, and the distributer. The spark plugs never require taking out, except to now and then put the points a little closer to make up for slight wear. The oiling looks pretty well after itself, but on a long day, after a day's trip like I have done, I used to let the crank chamber oiler feed fast occasionally till I noticed slight smoke at exhaust, but if possible I avoid a smoky exhaust. The gear box, holding oil, dies not require looking to, and the differential being oiled from the dashboard, also looks after itself. It may be noticed that I did not need to pick up petrol very often. This is accounted for by having a large tank to hold over 13 gallons, but this I made myself and put in in place of the one sent with the car, which only held about 8½ gallons. I have since taken my gear box down to examine gears, and find them as good as new, not worn, and only have a slight roughness on the edges, and this is not too bad after completing 7000 miles of real hard use over all sorts of country."

Big Fish.—Do you know that you can get splendid sport here with big fish? Middle Harbour is not far away; and yet this place abounds in splendid sporting fish for the rod. We have laid ourselves out for catering for sportsmen who delight in this kind of angling—sea rods and reels, Hardy's famous twisted steel wire, "Punjab" traces, and all the necessary accessories for this style of fishing. "Eastway's," the anglers' friends, George-street, 7 doors below the G.P.O.—Advt.

BOWLING CARNIVAL.

DAY WITH THE PRESIDENT.

BOWLERS AND CAPTAIN COOK.

Mr. W. M'Leod, president of the New South Wales Bowling Association, entertained yesterday the whole of the visiting bowlers and their lady friends, and the New South Wales teams, and officers of the association, at a picnic. The outing, despite the fact that the weather was most unfavourable in the early part of the day, proved one of the most enjoyable on the programme of the carnival. Over 250 assembled at St. James' Square at 10 a.m., where two special trams were in waiting to convey them to La Perouse. There the morning was spent in viewing the various places of interest, including the cable station, monument of La Perouse, and the aborigines' camp, where the shell work and boomerang-throwing attracted much attention.

At 1 o'clock lunch took place in a marquee. The chair was occupied by Mr. M'Leod, who had on his right Mr. Charles Wood, president of the Victorian Bowling Association, and on his left Mr. Waddell, president of the New Zealand Association.

The chairman proposed "Success to Bowling." They were met in a unique spot in the history of New South Wales, and he was pleased to see such a representative gathering of bowlers from Australasia. (Cheers.) The elements found fault with New South Wales in having been beaten all round, and the sun refused to shine upon them that day. (Cries of "No, no.") Bowls had made rapid strides in every Australian State, and in God's own country of New Zealand, and the support the ladies gave it helped the game along much. (Cheers.) It certainly was very disappointing to New South Wales that its bowling representatives had gone down all round, but the perfect team which Victoria had sent over, and the splendid play of the New Zealand men, who had won the rubber both in New South Wales and Victoria, had proved too much for the Sydney representatives. The performance of the Armadale men from Victoria, a club into which no liquor was allowed to enter, spoke volumes for the non-whisky-drinkers as bowlers. (Hear, hear, and a voice: "No, you don't"—laughter). The Armadale men without drawing a cork had won all along the line. (Hear, hear, and laughter.) Notwithstanding the loss New South Wales suffered, they were the best of friends, and all were as jolly as if each side had won. (Cheers.) That showed what an honest game bowls was. No gate money, no professionalism, nothing but the best of feeling among the States, and also between the Commonwealth and the Dominion. (Cheers.) There was no doubt the game had made great strides in New Zealand, and they could teach the Australian States a lesson in that respect. But when they met New South Wales and Victoria again they would find that great progress had been made in Australia also. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Wood responded for Victoria. He paid a high eulogium to Mr. M'Leod, the president of the New South Wales Association, who, he said, was proving a worthy successor to the father of bowls, the late John Young. (Cheers.) There was no doubt this was the best team that Victoria had ever sent here, and they had done well. But he could not help noticing what strides the New South Wales Association was making. He and Mr. M'Leod had given a trophy to be competed for 12 months ago. Victoria won it in Melbourne, and he, Mr. Wood, brought that trophy over here this time, hoping that New South Wales would get it; but he had to take it back again. (Laughter.) There was no doubt the Victorians were out to win. They would beat their grandmother at the game if they could, and to again secure that trophy was the aim of their present tour. They had got it; but perhaps New South Wales would come over to Melbourne next year and secure it from them. (Cheers.) A great deal of the success in bowls was due to the absence of whisky-drinkers—(cheers)—and the non-smokers, too, had come out on top. (Laughter.)

Mr. Waddell responded for New Zealand. He hardly believed in the teetotal players. (Laughter.) He would rather not win than have to do without his little drop of whisky. (Laughter). He would remind them, however, that there must not be too much whisky. (Laughter.) The New Zealand bowlers had been well treated in their tour through Australia, and they would be glad to come back again, but not until Australia had paid New Zealand a visit. (A voice: "We'll be there.") He hoped so. Bowling had made great strides in the Dominion. It was nothing new to see 200 players in one competition, and to finish that competition in a few days. (Cheers.) Wherever they went in the island they would find plenty of bowlers, and he trusted there would always be the annual match, New Zealand against Australia. (Cheers.)

Mr. Wood proposed the health of Mr. M'Leod, which toast was heartily honoured.

After lunch, at the invitation of the trustees of the landing-place of Captain Cook, the party crossed over to Kurnell in the Government launch, Premier.

Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, M.L.A., acting chairman of the trust, welcomed the visitors, and after conducting them round the place, delivered an oration on the arrival of Captain Cook, explaining everything as he went in a lucid manner. He was followed by Mr. J. J. Cohen, M.L.A., and Mr. Houston, secretary of the trust.

Mr. Crouch, vice-president of the Bowling Association, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. O'Sullivan for his address, which was carried with applause.

The party then returned to La Perouse for afternoon tea, and Sydney was reached about 6 p.m.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME.

AUSTRALIA v NEW ZEALAND.

The great match of the tour will be played this afternoon on the Ashfield green. It will be a five-rinked game between Australia and New Zealand. It was intended to have made it a six-rinked contest, but some of the New Zealand men are not too well and at their request it has been altered to one of five rinks.

The Australian team, which was selected last evening, should prove a powerful one. Three of the skippers are Victorians, and two are from this State. The following are the names of those selected:—

F. J. Walters, G. W. Johnson, H. A. Young, J. Reeder.

S. Marks, H. Francis, H. Moses, J. Strong.

J. J. Bromwich, S. Smith, J. H. Sheedy, L. Waxman.

W. Taylor, W. S. Cowley, W. W. Stephens, W. Barr.

W. Stephen, G. Batchell, J. S. Wasley, W. Stanhope.

The New Zealand team will be chosen this morning.

PARRAMATTA DISTRICT.

LOCAL OPTION COURT.

On Friday Judge Backhouse (president), Mr. W. M. Macfarlane, S.M. (chairman Parramatta Licensing Court), and Mr. G. H. Smithers, S.M., sat as the special Licensing Court at Parramatta, to deal with licenses in Granville in connection with the late local option vote taken at the Parliamentary election. The Bench heard claims of brewers (owners or lessees of different hotels), and others—licensees, lessees, and owners—and admitted the claims presented by them for representation at the Court (to sit again in May) to deal with the classification of hotels, wine shops, etc.

CARBUNCLE CAUSES DEATH.

Mr. F. Adrian, D.S.M., held an inquest on Thursday, at Rookwood, touching the death of a married woman named Catherine Sheerman, who died at her residence on the previous day.

Patrick Joseph O'Connor, a vendor of medicine, deposed to the deceased coming to him for treatment for a pimple under the nose. He advised poulticing, and also prescribed some ordinary liver pills.

Dr. F. H. Furnival stated that the medicine or treatment of Mr. O'Connor would not, in his opinion, contribute to or hasten in any way the death of deceased. He had made a post-mortem examination of the body, and found that death had resulted from acute blood-poisoning, resulting from a carbuncle on the lip. As far as he could remember, there had been three cases in the district, and two out of the three had died.

The Coroner found that death resulted from natural causes, to wit, blood-poisoning, arising from a carbuncle.

THE CORRIMAL STRIKE.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

The strike at the Corrimal pit is still unsettled. It appears that the question in dispute had been already referred to the Board of Conciliation to be dealt with; but they had not given their decision when the men came out. The men met on Wednesday, and decided to leave it to the board; but did not agree to resume work. At an interview with the manager, a deputation was informed that he was willing to withdraw O'Neil from the stables or pit until the board gave its decision. This morning he failed to do so, and the mine is still idle. A meeting is to be held to-night. As a result of the strike the steamer Ouraka will not be able to load 2200 tons for which she was booked.

THE MILK DISPUTE.

UNANDERRA, Friday.

The milk dispute is not yet settled, as far as the Farmers and Dairymen's Company is concerned. Mr. W. H. Cook, of Unanderra, one of the country directors, has resigned, and Mr. J. Taylor, the other country director, has taken a similar step.

Several suppliers here have transferred their supplies to the other companies, and it is considered that the outstanding company will lose a considerable portion of the South Coast trade.

VICTORIAN LAND.

NEW SYSTEM PROPOSED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Interesting developments are apparently pending in connection with State land taxation. Actuated partly by the fear that the revenue returns will shortly commence to be less satisfactory, partly by the desire to promote land settlement on private estates, and partly with a view to giving effect to his personal views on the question of land taxation, the Premier (Mr. Bent) has of late devoted considerable attention to the matter, and today he announced that an alteration in the system was to be brought into operation in the near future. The time has arrived, said Mr. Bent, when we should remodel many of our systems of taxation. Particularly does this refer to the "sheep tax," and we are going to have no more of it. The Premier explained that by sheep tax he meant the present land tax, which was based on the grazing value of the land. He would not indicate, however, what was to be substituted, although he remarked that it would be possible to arrive at an idea of the system he favoured by reading his speeches of 30 years ago. "I propose to remove the anomalies in the existing Act. At present the Act commences to operate at the holdings of 640 acres of first-class land, and it ranges to 2500 acres of fourth-class land, valued on its grazing capacity. Now, the idea which I am evolving is to reclassify all land at present on the land tax register, not according to its grazing capacity, but according to its productive capacity; then, working on this basis, to classify the acres in landed estates, instead of making an all-round valuation. That is differentiating between good land fit for cultivation and poor land, only fit for grazing, and to have determined what proportion of each estate is best suited for cultivation and what best suited for grazing. This differentiating system is one suggestion. The second is a scheme of taxation on the unimproved land values with an exemption fixed at £6000. The third proposal, aiming, like the second, at land settlement, is a scheme for the compulsory selling of private estates by their owners, which has been advanced by the Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Swinburne)." The three schemes are at present, or will very shortly be, under the consideration of the State Cabinet, and it is considered that at their next meeting Ministers will make a definite move towards the new system which Mr. Bent has said he would set himself to introduce.

UNEMPLOYED IN MELBOURNE.

CAUSE OF THE DEPRESSION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A great deal has of late been said and written regarding the unemployed problem in Melbourne. With the object of obtaining some reliable information on the subject Mr. D. Whitehead, officer in charge of the Government Labour Bureau in King-street, was interviewed after he had disposed of a number of applicants for employment. "There is no doubt," said Mr. Whitehead, "that unemployment in Melbourne is more pronounced this year than it was in the corresponding period of 1907. This is largely due to the comparative failure of the harvest. The shipment of wheat provides work for a considerable number at Port Melbourne, Williamstown, and the Melbourne wharfs. The unsettlement in the iron trades has also caused many men to be out of work. Anticipating the harvest manufacturers of agricultural implements reduced hands. Operations have been resumed, but not to the same extent as previously. There has also been a large influx from Africa and New Zealand, owing to depression in those countries. Added to this a slump occurred in the building trade of Melbourne, particularly in the suburbs. Generally speaking, the average number of men registered on our books at the end of each month has been about 1000. This month, however, the list contains over 2300 names."

FALL IN LEAD.

PREVENTS PAYMENT OF DIVIDEND.

The secretary of the B.H. Proprietary Company advises that the directors have decided that, owing to the decline in metal values, and the additional costs of material and working, the results will not permit of any dividend being declared.

London quotations, dated April 23, received by the company yesterday, give the following buying quotations:—Silver 2s 1 1-16d, lead £13 6s 3d, company's shares 36s, spelter £21 5s.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

AUSTRALIAN RIFLE REGIMENT.

CANDIDATES FOR BISLEY.

To-day will see an important event in the records of rifle shooting in this State.

Although the Federal authorities have not seen fit this year to subsidise a rifle team for Bisley, the Australian Rifle Regiment will as usual despatch a representative to uphold the honour of their regiment at the great British meeting.

The method adopted by the regiment for selecting their representative is devised to encourage the regimental rifle club, and to reward regular attendance and consistent shooting by its members. Every candidate for selection must qualify as an efficient member of the regiment during the two preceding military years. The five members who are otherwise eligible, and who obtain the highest aggregate of points off the rifle at two out of three club shoots in each quarter during the preceding year, in addition to three other members nominated by the officers of the regiment, are selected to compete in a match at the ranges of 200, 500, 600, 800, 900, and 1000 yards. The candidate scoring the highest aggregate in such match is made the regimental representative for Bisley, subject, however, to the commanding officer's right of veto.

All the expenses of the selected candidates are borne by the officers of the Australian Rifle Regiment and their friends.

The final match this year takes place to-day on the Randwick Range, commencing at 1 o'clock. There will be nine competitors, as Lieutenant-Colonel Cooke has decided to allow a representative from the Gosford Company of the regiment to compete, in addition to the usual eight candidates.

The Australian Rifle Regiment has in its ranks the following Bisley shots who have all represented Australia:—Lieutenant R. C. Dawson, Sergeant Edwards, Armourer Sergeant H. Motton, and Private W. H. Cutler. Last year Lieutenant Dawson was the regimental representative at Bisley.

Efforts are also being made to have the regimental representative selected to represent New South Wales in the Olympic competition in England.

Major Dobbin, assisted by six of the regimental officers, has charge of this match, which will be governed by the usual N.R.A. conditions. The following are the competitors:—Sergeant Bugler Thomas, Sergeant Green, Colour-sergeant Taylor, Colour-sergeant Arnold, Private Thompson, Sergeant Coulter (of the Gosford Company), Sergeant S. Edwards, Corporal C. Edwards, Corporal Lewis, the latter three being the nominated competitors.

THE EMPIRE MATCH.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The following cablegram has been received by the Minister of Defence (Mr. Ewing) from the High Commissioner of South Africa (Lord Selborne):—"April 14. I beg to inform you that the National Rifle Association, with the approval of Mr. Haldane and Lord Elgin, has accepted a 100-guineas challenge trophy from Lieutenant-Colonel Raymond Schumacher, Witwatersrand Rifles, to be competed for throughout the British Empire annually on Empire Day, commencing this year, under the following conditions, of which fuller details are being posted by the National Rifle Association:—

"Open to teams of 40 from any regiment, cavalry battalion, infantry brigade, artillery, of the regular volunteer and auxiliary forces; also any of his Majesty's ships, service rifle sighter, and seven shots at 200yds, 500yds, and 600yds; any position, head to targets, second and third class, as used this year by the National Rifle Association; time limit, 20 minutes per detail, but the details to be composed of a minimum of eight members; teams to be nominated before competing; shooting on own ranges; qualification of three months' active and efficient membership of corps; entries to be cabled beforehand to the secretary of the National Rifle Association up to a date to be notified later; no entrance fee; medal to each member of winning team; results to be certified by two independent range officers, and must be forwarded on the day of shooting to the secretary of the association, Bisley, England; also cable the name of the team, and the total score in words. Owing to Empire Day falling on Sunday, and Monday not being a holiday everywhere, shooting will be permissible on either May 23, 24, or 25, but only one of these days.

"Will you kindly have this information promptly circulated in the necessary quarters, so that teams may have due notice and time for practice before the coming Empire Day."

In a subsequent cable message, dated April 15, the Minister was informed that the date for shooting the match had been definitely fixed for Saturday, May 23.

PROFESSIONS, TRADES, ETC.

D.—A GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.
fraught with the gravest consequences to the interests they have most at heart, rests upon parents in the education of their sons and daughters.
GOOD EDUCATION is a powerful aid to the attainment of a Prosperous, Happy, and Successful Career.
BAD EDUCATION is a hampering impediment that often completely frustrates the most strenuous efforts to get on. Therefore—
AN IMPORTANT CONSIDERATION in the selection of a Business College is the QUALITY of the TEACHING imparted to its students, whose EARNING CAPACITIES, and the positions they will occupy in commercial life, are determined by the kind of training they receive. It is in this connection that the
SMITH-PREMIER BUSINESS COLLEGE
SMITH-PREMIER BUSINESS COLLEGE
—LEADS THE WAY.—
—LEADS THE WAY.—
—LEADS THE WAY.—
THE HEAD-MASTER,
Mr. H. G. Farrell, F.I.P.S., is admitted to be Australia's Premier Business Educator.
HIS EXPERIENCE is a Unique and Extensive one. Besides having been Head-master of leading Business Colleges (Remington B. C., Adelaide, Central B. C., Melbourne), he has been connected with a number of the leading Business Colleges in Adelaide, Melbourne, and Sydney, and knows the strength and weakness of their methods. This is an ENORMOUS ADVANTAGE, which cannot be claimed to the same extent by any other Business College in Sydney. Our Head-master has drawn upon his valuable knowledge and experience in organising the above College. He knew what to avoid, how to improve what he included, and where to find the best teachers. Thus it is that the REALLY SERVICEABLE TRAINING
our students receive has earned the warm commendation so frequently expressed by parents and business men.
INVESTIGATION INVITED.
Our Head-master's hobby is Business Education. He likes talking about it. Parents, and any who are interested, will find his valuable experience entirely at their service.

S.—YOU WILL DECIDE TO-DAY
whether your sons and daughters are to return to school after the Easter holidays, or whether you will send them to STOTT'S NEW BUSINESS COLLEGE, to be thoroughly equipped for a BUSINESS CAREER.
THIS COLLEGE IS WIDELY KNOWN AS THE "INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION" COLLEGE.
IT HAS NO CONNECTION WHATEVER WITH ANOTHER SYDNEY BUSINESS COLLEGE OF A SOMEWHAT SIMILAR NAME.
AND THE ONLY ADDRESS OF THE COLLEGE IS NORWICH-CHAMBERS, HUNTER-STREET.
SEVERAL REASONS WHY
You should enrol at
STOTT'S NEW BUSINESS COLLEGE.
1. THE PROPRIETOR, Mr. SYDNEY STOTT, was the pioneer of Commercial Education in Sydney, where he carried on business for 12 years prior to 1901, when he sold the Business College he founded, reserving to himself the right to commence business again in Sydney after three years had elapsed.
2. A SYSTEM OF INDIVIDUAL INSTRUCTION has been instituted. The progress of a bright student is not retarded by the instruction being based on the average progress of an unwieldy and overcrowded class. In this respect we differ from other Sydney Business Colleges, which profess to follow our lead, but which are incapacitated from doing so by reason of their antiquated conservative methods.
3. OUR INSTRUCTORS are the BEST QUALIFIED IN AUSTRALASIA.
4. OUR CURRICULUM is the most comprehensive and up-to-date. No charge is made to students for "Stationery," the cost of which in most Business Colleges is as much as the fees.
5. The FURNISHING and EQUIPMENT of the College are more UP-TO-DATE and adapted to modern requirements than those of any other Sydney Business College.
6. YOU WILL BE EDUCATED FOR BUSINESS LIFE. You will not be neglected while the instructors are devoting their whole time and energy to coaching one or two students in order to obtain academical examination results for advertising purposes.
7. Having been THOROUGHLY TRAINED for Business, you will be CERTAIN OF OBTAINING a POSITION. No competent stenographers are, to our knowledge, out of employment in Sydney. We do not, when booking Students, mislead them by promising them positions indiscriminately. Many colleges do so, and repudiate their contract at the end of the year. Do not be misled by the dangling of a mythical "position" before you by specious advertisements. Attend the college that will FIT YOU FOR A POSITION. When you have completed your course of instruction you will NOT be one of the "incompetents" who cannot obtain positions.
8. Parents who value high tone and refined influences invariably send their sons and daughters to us.

ALWAYS AT THE TOP.

Some business schools make large claims that cannot be proved, but there is Only One Business School which can claim and prove that its students are "Always at the Top," where they come into competition with those of other similar schools. That School is

STOTT AND HOARE'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.

The following is only a selection from a long list wherein the RESULTS have PROVED that our teaching IS the Best.

ALWAYS AT THE TOP — in the Shorthand Examinations of the Incorporated Phonographic Society, including the highest speed attained in these Examinations in Great Britain or Australia.

ALWAYS AT THE TOP — for the past six years in every examination held by the Public Service Board for appointment of Lady and Male Shorthand Writers and Typists.

ALWAYS AT THE TOP — in the annual Shorthand Medal Competitions of Sir Isaac Pitman and Sons.

ONE GREAT ADVANTAGE enjoyed by our students is that when they become proficient we have the means of immediately placing them in suitable appointments at good commencing salaries.

New students may commence at any time, term dating from entry.

THESE MOTOR CARS ARE DEPENDABLE ANY TIME AND ANYWHERE.

We have proved it, and others have proved it, under all sorts of conditions. We chose them as specially suitable to Australian roads, and are perfectly willing to give you the most thorough demonstration of their good qualities.
Where necessary these cars have been specially strengthened to withstand the rough trips all cars get here, and they will serve you well and cost little for repairs. Call in and inspect them and arrange to have a trial trip.

THE F.I.A.T.
An Italian-built record breaker that has proved its mettle in all the big Continental events, and has found a hearty welcome in Australia. The 15-20 h.p. is a beautiful car of great strength.

CLEMENT-BAYARD.
This handsomely finished French Car will hold its own on the roughest roads in the roughest weather. Essentially a car for sound service and always dependable.

DE DION.
The 8-h.p. and 12-14 h.p. De Dion are wonderfully strong and very fast for their size. Economical in up-keep, easy to control, and long-lasting, you cannot go wrong when you buy a De Dion.

THE NAPIER.
We are just landing one of these handsome Cars. It is a 30-h.p., with six cylinders, and all the newest appointments and conveniences. If you want an exceptionally high-class car this is the one you should see.

STAR CAR

in the recent Reliability Trials was the best of the bunch, and a long way in advance of high-priced cars of twenty horse-power and upwards. In the latest New Zealand Reliability Run two 12 H.P. STAR CARS were entered, and came through without a single mechanical or tyre trouble, scoring 1992 out of a possible 2000 marks. STAR CARS in everyday use excel in reliability, economy of naphtha and tyre consumption, and hill-climbing power.

GENUINE B.S.A. CYCLE FITTINGS are all Stamped with the Famous Trade Mark of THE THREE PILED RIFLES.
If you are in doubt, write for a B.S.A. Handbook, which will tell you how you can identify the genuine from the cheap imitation. It will cost you nothing, and may save you pounds in value.
THERE IS AS MUCH DIFFERENCE between steel and iron as there is between genuine B.S.A. and so-called "pattern" fittings.
No racing cyclist or record-breaker would dream of riding a "pattern" bicycle, and even if speed is of no object to you, surely the security, comfort, and general satisfaction that GENUINE B.S.A. Fittings will ensure to you are of the greatest importance.
If you want to be quite sure that every part of your bicycle is genuine B.S.A., ask your dealer to affix the B.S.A. transfer. It will increase the value but not the cost of your bike.

TO CYCLISTS.
Those who have not used MOSELEY'S "ARDWICK" TYRES should do so now. IMPROVEMENTS have recently been made to meet AUSTRALIAN conditions, and whilst they are RESILIENT as the old hand-made Tyres, they are very DURABLE, being made of a tough, hard-wearing rubber, and lined with MOSELEY'S celebrated FLEXIFORT FABRIC.
The Tyres carry liberal guarantees, and can be obtained from leading Cycle dealers throughout the country.

THE HIGHEST LAND ON THE MAIN SUBURBAN LINE,

FROM 10/ FOOT.

On the Arabi Hills Estate, Enfield, known to local residents at Croydon Park, we have elevated Building Land from 10/ foot. Never before have such desirable sections been sold in this locality at so low a price.
A better residential site than Arabi Hills it is difficult to imagine. Two minutes from tram, and but six miles from Sydney. Just far enough to be out of the noise and bustle of the city. Workmen's Weekly Tickets cost but 1/9 each to Ashfield. The property is little more than a pleasant walk from either that station or Croydon. The Croydon Park School is quite close to this fine land. Gas and Water are there. Street Lamps light the locality, and Sewerage will be along shortly. Once more, let us call your attention to the Price—from 10/ to 47/6 foot. Terms: From £2 down, £1 month. Ask us some questions about this Cheap Land. We will be pleased to answer them.

THE PLACE TO PITCH YOUR TENT, YOW YOW, AT WOY WOY.
Where you find all the attractions and advantages of a real holiday resort. There are about 300 level Lots, including 4000ft of water frontage. The position is unequalled, as Yow Yow adjoins Jenkins', at Davistown. The train and launch services are perfect. This, with its proximity to Sydney, means a great saving of time and expense to the city man. Yow Yow is particularly well adapted for camping purposes. It is, no doubt, an ideal spot to spend the usual week-end holiday. The attractions are many—fresh air, beautiful scenery, sandy bathing beaches, and the best fishing ground in N.S.W. Above all, the terms are easy—only £1 deposit and 5s monthly per lot, equal to 2d per day. Interest, 5 per cent., charged on quarterly balances only. Torrens Title. A plan and beautifully illustrated booklet may be had from HENRY F. HALLORAN and CO., 82 Pitt-street.

WE ARE addressing you who would to-day pick up the Daily Paper, with the object of seeing by advertisements what is offering in the shape of desirable properties for residential purposes. Let us, therefore, ask you to give us your attention whilst we are bringing under your notice the now famous which is so discussed throughout the city, suburbs, and State generally, and which has been a surprising revelation to all concerned. You have here a most complete, highly sanitary, healthy, and at the same time picturesque locality,

WITHIN 30 MINUTES OF THE G.P.O.
by electric tram, which practically lands you at your front door, passing through the heart of the suburb. Each Cottage is compelled, by covenant, to have a large area of ground surrounding it. The class of building is laid down as brick or stone, the roof must be of slate or tile, and no business premises are allowed excepting in a small reserved area set apart for that purpose. Then a double-fronted Cottage, 4 large rooms 15 x 12, 13 x 12, 18 x 12, 10 x 12, kitchen 13 x 12, laundry with tubs, bathroom with lavatory basin, linen press; handsomely designed and highly finished inside, marble mantels, tile hearths, grates, and verandah, fibrous ceilings throughout.

TAKE FOR EXAMPLE
A cottage such as we describe with a large block of land may be had for £550. Larger cottages containing 5 rooms, 8 rooms, 10 rooms, at prices according to the size and description. If you pay cash you will

GET YOUR DEEDS FREE.
If you require terms we will take each case on its merits, and you are at liberty to pay us an amount equal to your own financial position, and the balance may be paid as rental weekly or monthly, paying off principal and interest.
We also give you power to pay any sum upon any day, interest ceasing the day you pay. We have a qualified architect whose sole business is the designing of Haberfield. We have competent workmen, and expert tradesmen. Fault cannot be found with the class of work we are doing. Any reasonable guarantee will be given by us if it is thought necessary.

SATURDAY IS A DESIRABLE DAY TO VISIT HABERFIELD, AND WE INVITE YOU.
Call at our Summer Hill office and we will drive you to inspect.

BEST OF MOUNTAIN LAND FROM £13 BLOCK.
The Balance of the GREENLAND ESTATE, up the Mountains, between Leura and Wentworth Falls, is now for Sale at from £13 to £35 Block.
This price does not nearly represent the value of the land, but as weather conditions were so unfavourable on Saturday last, our Auction Day, competition was not so keen as it would otherwise have been, and buyers benefited accordingly.
Notwithstanding the low figures which buyers bought at on this account, we have priced the remainder on the same basis. Hence our low quotations.
The £13 land is of course not quite so good as some of the Sections priced a little higher, but, all the same, better land at the money was never offered.
The Blocks include Main Road Frontages, each about a quarter-acre, and other Blocks ranging up to nearly 4 acres in area.
Main Road Lots are for sale at from £20 each, and £50 will purchase a section of over 3½ acres. The other Allotments vary considerably in area, and are priced accordingly.
The Terms for Greenland Lots are from £1 down, 10s month, Title is Torrens, position excellent, and Leura Golf Links are but a few minutes' walk.

STATIONS AND FARMS FOR SALE.

MAGNIFICENT ORCHARD.
In the zenith of its golden prime, and the full vigour of maturity, eighty acres of wealth, planted by an experienced and far-seeing man, in the famous Hills District, outside Parramatta—perhaps the finest in Australia.
Massive 2-story br. Residence, with balcony and every convenience, on a commanding eminence, embracing views of the country for miles. Only 4½ miles from rail, and handy to city markets.
The majority are citrus fruits, and show promise of a bountiful crop. Everything is in thorough working order, and it must prove a veritable gold mine in the coming winter. The present occupants have lived in luxury, and earned a competency at the same time.
It is only placed on the market to close accounts in a deceased estate.
The minutest inspection is courted, as the more it is examined the stronger the truth must force itself home to one who knows the prizes there are in fruit-growing.
The absurdly low price of £2250 has been placed upon it—half cash, and the balance over 5 years. Title, Torrens.
But don't delay. "Lost chances seldom come again." This is yours.
Take it.
W. F. KAY, Sole Agent, Granville.

HARDIE AND GORMAN. (5a-162)

A HOME POSSESSING INDIVIDUALITY AND CHARM, AWAY FROM THE INTERRUPTIONS AND DISTRACTIONS OF THE GROWING CITY.

REDLEAF, at WAHROONGA, with an elevation of about 700ft, THE WELL-KNOWN AND MUCHLY-ADMIRED RESIDENCE AND GROUNDS (6a 2r 8p), the property of W. G. PARISH, Esq., having a frontage of 818 FEET to the LANE COVE-ROAD, and extending through to the RAILWAY LINE, close to WAHROONGA RAILWAY STATION.

REDLEAF is a delightful home, and enjoys all the accessories of a Gentleman's abode, and possesses all the advantages of a modern and up-to-date residence, with a large area of grounds, close to the station.

THE HOUSE itself, erected ON AN EMINENCE, commanding some LOVELY VIEWS of the surrounding vastly interesting country, is a modern building of pleasing and quaint design, built in brick, with tiled roof,

AND CONTAINS

ENTRANCE HALL and SMOKING-ROOM (a combination of effect), LARGE DINING and DRAWING ROOMS, BILLIARD-ROOM, HANDSOME STAIRCASE, 5 BEDROOMS, 2 SERVANTS' ROOMS, 2 BATHROOMS, usual Domestic Offices, Wide Verandah and Balconies, STABLING for 2 horses, Coachhouse, Harness and Man's Rooms, also Gardener's Room, Dark Room, etc.

THE GROUNDS

were laid out by the late SAMUEL PURCHASE, of Parramatta, and are an evidence of the skill and taste characteristic of his work.

THE ORNAMENTAL PORTION, comprising at least 2 ACRES, insensibly merges into paddocks, producing a perfect harmony of PARK LAND AND GARDEN PLEASAUNCES.

THE GARDEN PORTION comprises EXTENSIVE LAWNS, in perfect order, intersected by HEDGES, PATHS, and CARRIAGE DRIVES, while in specially appropriate spots are BEDS containing the CHOICEST BULBS, PLANTS, and SHRUBS, including said to be one of the finest about Sydney.

A UNIQUE COLLECTION OF RHODODENDRONS AND HIPPEASTRUMS,

Many thousands of small Flowering Bulbs, such as DAFFODILS, IXIAS, SPARAXIS, FREESIAS, etc., are scattered through the Beds and Lawns.

NUMEROUS ORNAMENTAL TREES, such as DEODARS, MAPLES, LIQUIDAMBERS, HAWTHORNS, SCARLET OAKS, HOLLIES, etc., are planted on the Lawns.

THE WHOLE FORMING

A MINIATURE BOTANICAL GARDEN, of unique character and design, enjoyable at all seasons of the year—a harvest of bloom in the Spring; a feast of colour in the Autumn.

TITLE, FREEHOLD.

The site upon which REDLEAF is erected is admitted on all sides to be the PICK OF WAHROONGA, the Highlands of the North Shore Line of Railway, and cannot be duplicated.

THE WELL-KNOWN WAMBO ESTATE.

WAMBO HAS ONLY BEEN PLACED ON THE MARKET FOR THE PURPOSE OF REALISING THE ASSETS OF THE MacDONALD ESTATE.

FOR SUBDIVISION SALE, ON MONDAY, APRIL 27, 1908.

Situated 18 miles from Singleton, 2 miles from Post and Telegraph Office of Warkworth, and about 50 miles from the Shipping Port of Newcastle.

TREBECK, SON, AND CO.,

Sydney (in conjunction with H. YORK and SONS, and GRAINGER and FALKINER, Ltd., Singleton), have received instructions from Messrs. ALLEN and MACDONALD to sell the above well-known Property by Public Auction, at the PERCY HOTEL, SINGLETON, on MONDAY, 27th APRIL, 1908, at 2.30 p.m.

WAMBO comprises 7100 acres of Freehold Land (Torrens Title), and has been subdivided into 8 lots, ranging in area from about 180 acres to 2000 acres. About 150 acres are already planted with lucerne, and 70 more acres just planted, and there are quite another 1000 acres on the Estate that would grow Lucerne. Most of the country has been ringbarked and burnt off. The water is very good throughout, and from wells of 18 to 30 feet deep water can always be had in the driest times. Some of the wells now being used have windmills and troughing to them. The property also has a double frontage to the Wollombi or Cockfighter's Creek, Reedy and Wambo Creeks. The attention of Stud Stock Owners is specially drawn to the Homestead Block. On this portion there is a splendid house, in good order and very comfortable, with kitchen and other outbuildings. There are also at the back of the homestead, on splendid ground, 20 Loose Boxes, 18 Stalls, and Yards attached. All new and very heavily timbered, and will last for years. Water is laid on, and Haysheds and every other convenience are very handy, so that all labour is reduced to a minimum. The other portions of the Estate will make ideal Dairy Farms, and amongst the numerous advantages are the following:—Splendid roads everywhere, weekly produce markets at Singleton, where two Butter Factories are continually going, also a Concentrated Milk Factory and a Bacon-curing Factory. Splendid rainfall of 30 inches. To say nothing of the good markets for all produce now established at West Maitland, where the consumption is increasing enormously, as the population working the coal mines is still growing.

Buyers will be met and driven over the property if they will advise either of the Auctioneers. Meantime, Plans and fuller particulars can be obtained from—

TREBECK, SON, and CO., SYDNEY; H. YORK and SONS, Singleton; and GRAINGER and FALKINER, Ltd., Singleton.

"ALL AMONG THE BARLEY."

That the best barley-producing area in N.S.W. is in the Gunnedah-Manilla district can be easily proved by the latest Government Statistics—nor is barley the only big product, for wheat, maize, and oats are all heavy croppers. . . . . while dairying and fat stock raising are also highly profitable.

11 miles from Gunnedah and 18 from Manilla railway stations, on the banks of the Namoi River, is the

of 26,000 acres, cut up into 41 farms of from 195 to 1670 acres, rich, heavily-grassed land, part black soil plains, and the rest red wheat land. . . . Thousands of acres ready for the plough, and most of the timber dead many years.

Beside the river and the two creeks on the estate there are dams, wells, and bores, with windmill and troughing attached. . . . . Every Farm over 400 acres has its own permanent water supply.

FOR AUCTION JUNE 11, at Gunnedah. . . . On Easy Terms of 15 per cent. deposit, no payment of principal till Feb. 1, 1910. . . . . Balance in 8 equal yearly instalments. . . . . Interest at 5 per cent.

For descriptive plan and particulars of cheap railway trips to inspect write to DALGETY and CO., Ltd., Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, N.Z., and all branches, LOWCOCK, BROUGHTON, and KING, Gunnedah and Tamworth, N.S.W., or M. S. HAWKER, 34 Brookman's-buildings, Grenfell-street, Adelaide, S.A.

COMFORT AND EFFECT IN CORSETS.
In the Australian market there are to be found many varieties of CORSETS.
Some are made for comfort, while others are built for effect. Many ladies prefer comfort, and to obtain this they are quite content to dispense with effect, and vice versa.
AT THE BUCKINGHAM
PALACE EMPORIUM,
OXFORD-STREET (CITY), which carries the largest stock of Corsets in Sydney, there are two makes of Corsets, which combine both the desired qualities of
COMFORT AND EFFECT.
One is the WARNER'S RUST-PROOF CORSETS, every pair of which is guaranteed.
These RUST-PROOF CORSETS are undoubtedly the best medium-priced Corset to be had. We sell hundreds of them, and have never had a single complaint. WARNER'S RUST-PROOF range from 7/6 to 15/6, post free. To fit all figures.
The other great Corset combining is the REDFERN IMPERIAL CORSET, all Real Whalebone Fitted.
COMFORT AND EFFECT
This truly beautiful Corset must be seen to be fully appreciated, and is to be had only at the BUCKINGHAM PALACE EMPORIUM,
Prices range from 25/ to 2 guineas, post free.
Every Pair is a Model.

THE BEST IS GOOD ENOUGH FOR ANYBODY.
In Beverages the best is that which does the most good. In BENSDORP'S COCOA
the full perfection of quality, goodness, and purity is unquestionably attained, and it is this that makes it the best of all beverages for health, and therefore "good enough for anybody."
You only need use half as much as other Cocoas, so it's the most economical as well as the most delicious.

BEAUTY'S CHAMPION
is VALAZE. Valaze, you see, merely equips Nature, enabling her to assert herself. The complexion Valaze gives you is not made, it is won; it is a natural complexion, yours, and it remains with you as long as you take care of it. Valaze feeds and stimulates the skin into a condition of perfect health and vigour. To the wise woman who values her beauty at its true preciousness, Valaze is a priceless gift. In jars, 3s 6d and 6s 6d, 6d postage. Having in mind the value of Valaze, let nothing tempt you away from the Valaze Herbal Soap, 2s 3d, posted. It is a trusty handmaiden to that queen of skinfoods—that incomparable Valaze.

There are some few blemishes that even Valaze will not remove, such as moles, warts, and superfluous hairs. If you suffer from any of these blemishes, do not despair. There is a reliable and permanent remedy for them all at the Valaze Massage Institute. Each treatment has been thoroughly tested, and is identical with those practised in the largest and most up-to-date Beauty Salons in Europe. Apart from these remedies, there is the electrical face massage, which is especially for tired and faded skins, neglected complexions, and furrow-lines faces. This treatment not only eliminates those enemies of Beauty, but energises the tissues and nerves, and restores the natural vitality and stimulus of the skin. A course of Electrical Massage will work wonders with your skin, and will make you look years younger. Test it for yourself. There can be no disappointment where there is no failure. Call and make an appointment with Mlle. RUBINSTEIN, who will gladly advise you on all complexion matters.

Mlle. HELENA RUBINSTEIN and CO., Valaze Massage Institute, 158 Pitt-street, Sydney.

MARK FOY'S,
OPEN TO-NIGHT TILL 10 O'CLOCK.
April made an earnest effort to live up to its requirements as an Autumn month yesterday, and so went out of its way to make things unpleasant.
It was a low-spirited day—as the liquid in the thermometer showed—with some emotional spasms of rain.
And the wind put a few shivers in the air, calling to mind those soft, fleecy may be seen this morning in the parlours at modest prices, ranging from 18/6 to 25/. The styles are up to the moment, and are really adaptations by our own Milliners from Parisian and London models. Come and see them, Ladies.

MILLINERY MODES
THE GLOVE SECTION
has been busy, and the reason is not hard to find. The news that Dent's Fine Naples Suede Gloves could be had for 1/11½ would line anyone's counters up two deep, but when that news is from FOY'S—where good Bargains abound—it has greater effect.

That's right.
This is the largest house devoted exclusively to tailoring for cash in the metropolis.
There's nothing strange about it. Everybody knows what a powerful magnetic thing cash is—that it will always buy better value than credit, and that it works wonders in other ways.
So if you want to get a better suit for less money than you probably pay now, just try Pitt-street Howes' Cash Tailoring.

We are making a special window show of these high-class Woollens. When you see them you'll say you never saw such handsome designs at the price.
We have gone out of our way to select materials that are the very newest in designs, and long wearers. Many of them are exclusive, and no other tailor can have them. No other firm could possibly give you such materials at the price—especially if it is a credit firm.

We make a nobby Morning Coat and Vest for 87/6. Many men like one for best wear.
It is suitable for most occasions, even for weddings, and the man who hasn't got one usually finds himself somewhat hampered. You never know the time when something will happen when a morning coat and vest will be absolutely necessary—when it will be bad taste not to wear it. There's a splendid range of materials—especially blacks—for you to select from. A perfect fit and the latest style are assured things.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR AND MOLES.
My warning to you, if you contemplate using a depilatory on your face, is—DON'T.
Any doctor will support me in saying they are very dangerous. Besides, there is no sense in using anything that simply encourages the growth of hair.
The only method that has been proved that will remove these facial disfigurements permanently is Electrolysis—the system I have been practising so successfully for many, many years.
Let me show you how painless, yet reliable, it is, by removing a few hairs for you free of charge.
Appointments may be arranged by telephoning No. 193. If you cannot call, write for a copy of my new Illustrated Booklet.
